WHIP attacks plan for vote by districts

Several members of the Wheeling Improvement Party (WHIP) Wednesday night spoke out against Trustee John Koepfen's proposal to divide the village into six election districts.

Koepfen made the proposal last week, saying that dividing the village into districts, with trustees or aldermen elected from each district, would assure equal representation throughout the village.

Members of WHIP, said if the proposal is adopted it would likely break the village into factions and hurt the overall effectiveness of the village board.

Plan Comr. Gilbert Monoson, a new member of WHIP, said he thinks the proposal would be a "step backwards for the village." "I don't think from a municipal standpoint John Koepfen did his homework. Under the proposal, you won't have six men working for you, but rather one man working against five others," he said.

CONNIE HEITKOTTER, a WHIP candidate for trustee in the last election, said she feels the six trustees should continue to be elected at-large.

"If the person is really interested in a better Wheeling, that's all that's important," she said. "It shouldn't matter what part of the village he's from, we're all working for the same thing."

Trustee Donald Jackson, new president of WHIP, and the only WHIP candidate to be elected to the village board, said he feels Koepfen's proposal has merit, but said he is not sure it is necessary.

"It seems to me that the village is a fairly homogenous group and shares the same problems," he said. "Under the new system, residents would have one trustee when now they have six."

Otis (Skip) Hedlund, who lost to Village Pres. Ted Scanlon by 11 votes in the last election, agrees that the proposal has merits, but could hurt WHIP as well as opposing parties if enacted before next spring's village election.

Donald Jackson

Gilbert Monoson

MOST OF WHIP'S members come from two or three areas of the village and creating districts could hurt their chances in the next election, he said.

"If all the candidates happen to come from one area of town, well then fine," he said. "If they all have enough interest in running, they should be allowed to run."

Harold Fagan, former president of WHIP, said the proposal is an attempt by political opponents of WHIP to "divide and conquer" the village in the next election.

The legality and feasibility of Koepfen's proposal is in question and is currently being reviewed by the village attorney who will present a report to the village board next week.

WHIP members met Wednesday night at London Junior High School to elect new officers and approve the party's by-laws.

Besides electing Jackson, 44, the party also chose Doris Kerr, 52, of 20 Berkshire Ln., as vice president; John Shelk, 16, of 177 Sunrise Dr., as secretary, and Christa Heitkotter, 18, of 158 St. Armand Ln., as treasurer.

Haunted House here Oct. 26

The Buffalo Grove Jaycees will sponsor their Halloween Haunted House next Saturday Oct. 26 through Oct. 31. The house will be set up at the corner of Arlington Heights and Lake-Cook Roads.

Hours for the house will be 6-11 p.m. Saturday, 3-11 p.m. Sunday and 7-11 p.m. the following Tuesday through Thursday. The attraction will not be open Monday, Oct. 28.

An admission fee of 50 cents will be charged.

IS THIS THE Cheryl Fischer party? Dropping in as an early birthday present for Cheryl, Alphonse School, Prospect Heights, who'll be 16 later this month, is her brother, Michael, 20. The jump Wednesday was above St. Alphonse School, Prospect Heights.

Birthday gift a flighty affair for chutist

Michael Fischer, 20, of Prospect Heights jumped 3,000 feet Wednesday to bring his younger sister a birthday present.

Fischer, a skydiving enthusiast, and a friend jumped from a single-engine airplane at 5:30 p.m. and landed in a field south of St. Alphonse School, 411 N. Wheeling Rd., Prospect Heights. The jump was an early birthday gift for his sister, Cheryl, who will be 16 Oct. 28.

"Cheryl and my parents really never saw me jump before," Fischer said, explaining his unusual gift. And Cheryl's reaction was that "it was neat but I was scared to death."

Fischer's mother shared a bit of anxiety. "It was frightening until his chute opened up," she said, admitting having had a few fleeting thoughts the parachute would not open.

The jump went smoothly, Fischer said. It was his 260th jump and he has yet to be injured. "There are very few injuries in this sport," he explained.

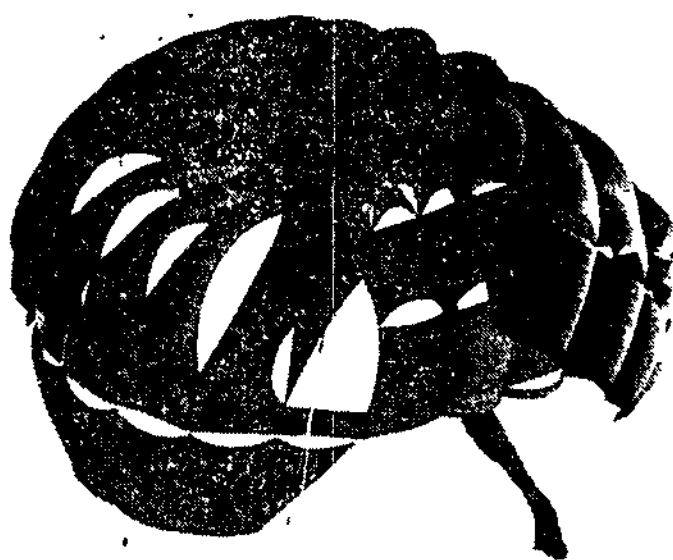

IN ADDITION TO family members, about 35 neighbors and friends watched Fischer and his companion, Norm Prien of Park Ridge, descend toward their aluminum foil marker.

The pair jumped on the fourth pass, having dropped a wind indicator on the second pass. They rode in a friend's airplane and took off from the Chicago/O'Hare Airport on Milwaukee Avenue.

Fischer landed nearest the onlookers and was greeted with a bottle of wine, while Prien was quickly surrounded by a group of football players who were practicing nearby.

Fischer, who lives at 208 E. McDonald Rd., has been skydiving for three years and is a member of the Northern Illinois Sky Divers Club. As of Jan. 1 he will be the new owner of the club, which is based in Hebron, Ill.

The costs of owning the club will be small, he said, because the $20 annual dues and the $4 jump fees are used to cover expenses. "It's not a business, it's just a club," he said.

Palatine girl, 7, killed in home fire

A seven-year-old Palatine girl was killed early Wednesday when fire broke out in her home. Kathleen O'Neill was found dead of smoke inhalation outside the door of her second-floor bedroom. Her parents, Bernard O'Neill, 42, and his wife, Joan, 41, were pulled unconscious from the house and were reported in serious condition. Kathleen's three brothers were rescued from the roof of the burning house.

Deer Grove body identified

Sheriff's investigators have identified a body discovered two weeks ago in the Deer Grove Forest Preserve near Palatine as a Schaumburg youth missing for 17 months. Investigator William Buford said the remains were those of David Sholsberger, 19, of 527 S. Plymouth, who was reported missing in May 1973. Sholsberger was involved in a traffic accident near the preserve and reportedly staggered into the woods after getting out of his car. The body was identified through dental charts.

Small fire at St. Viator

St. Viator High School in Arlington Heights was evacuated Wednesday because of a small fire in the locker room. A tossed match was blamed for the fire, which was contained to one locker. Fire Chief Jack Hayden said damage was minimal.

Dundee Road nearly finished

Work crews are applying the finishing touches to Dundee Road in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove. Work is proceeding slightly ahead of schedule, with completion of the three-mile stretch between Elmhurst Road and Ill. Rte. 53 now scheduled prior to the late November target date. Students at London Junior High School in Wheeling are planning a royal welcome back for the road, complete with a band, balloons and a song "Hello Dundee" to the tune of "Hello Dolly."

Raise gasoline taxes: Percy

U.S. Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., Wednesday called for increased taxes on gasoline, mandatory "no drive" days and strict enforcement of the 55 m.p.h. speed limit. Because the United States is being forced to pay high oil prices, "a cornerstone of our domestic energy policy must be energy conservation," Percy said in a statement at a Senate subcommittee hearing on energy.

Library's location up in air

A consultant's proposal has left Mount Prospect officials undecided on the location of the village's new library. The library, which has been set for the Central School property, Main Street and Central Road, should be built a block away at Emerson Street and Busse Avenue, the consultant said. Mayor Robert Telchert said the purchase of the school property and issuance of library bonds will not be affected while officials decide where to put the library.

Bus service's future questioned

"How much" and "how long" were the primary questions raised Wednesday at the first meeting of the Des Plaines mass transportation study committee. The committee was considering the future of bus operation in the city, and expressed concern about how much the city would have to subsidize service and how long the subsidies would have to be paid before the Regional Transportation Authority takes over.

Village sidewalk policy hit

An "unrepresentative" village board was blamed Wednesday for a policy that forces some Arlington Heights residents to finance sidewalk installation while allowing other residents to go without sidewalks. William Gillingham, 1103 E. Euclid St., a leader in the movement opposing sidewalk installation, called for scrapping the present at-large system of electing trustees in favor of dividing the village into districts, with one representative elected from each. "If we had district representation, we'd have a voice on the board," he said.

Pikarsky may get RTA post—but at a cost

A News Analysis

CTA Chairman Milton Pikarsky may become chairman of the Regional Transportation Authority, but only at the cost of some specific concessions to the suburban communities.

The rigid support of Pikarsky by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley is unlikely to yield, tying up the four city votes on the RTA board. The only solution — a suburban concession — may be possible with a guarantee that would dilute some of the chairman's powers.

One suburban planning expert has suggested privately that the suburbs might gain assurance of a suburban vice chairman with certain mandatory powers in the operation of the RTA. Pikarsky has reportedly disapproved of a vice chairman with powers that would tie the hands of the chief executive.

IT IS UNLIKELY that Daley and Pikarsky would back down publicly on the issue, partly because of the embarrassment it would cause to the traditionally powerful mayor, and partly because city officials and several close-in suburban mayors are convinced of Pikarsky's qualifications for the job.

Pikarsky can be expected to fight to the end for the opportunity because he is a career transportation man, and loss of this powerful plum would be a major setback, at least in the eyes of his competitors in other major cities.

Pikarsky has yet to make any promises of equal consideration for the suburbs, and such promises would not likely be believed. The two RTA board members from the outlying five counties are reportedly promising that Pikarsky will not be chairman if they can help it, but the two suburban Cook County members cannot make such pledges.

Joseph Tecson of Riverside and D. Daniel Baldino of Evanston are under the pressures of a divided constituency. They are being told by some political friends and municipal officials to fight Pikarsky to the death. The commuter railroads have apparently taken a similar stance, according to suburban state legislators whose opposition to Pikarsky was solicited recently.

ON THE OTHER hand, the close-in major suburbs of Evanston and Oak Park, served by the CTA now, support Pikarsky strongly. Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel is believed to have similar sentiments, and there are indications that five suburban mayors selected to represent all suburban mayors on the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission also support Pikarsky. It bears mentioning that Pikarsky is a NIPCC commissioner, and has attended meetings regularly.

He is frequently asked to comment on programs and is respected by most of the NIPCC commissioners.

A compromise of some sort may have to come soon, if the suburban bus and rail companies and the CTA are expected to survive. All of them need subsidies, although the CTA cries for help have been strangely absent since the RTA was approved.

The RTA board meets at 10:30 a.m. today and may have such considerations in mind. Tecson, temporary board chairman, said two discussions are planned — the possibility or legality of providing aid to bus companies and other carriers before the chairman is selected, and the issue of the chairman's selection process itself.

POLITICS IS seldom black or white, and the gray area in between this issue leaves a lot of room for imagination. If a compromise candidate were selected to break the deadlock over Pikarsky and the alleged suburban support of former American Airlines Pres. George Ward, it would only assure that the chairman would be a second choice for both sides.

A compromise that would please the suburbs and the outlying counties may not exist, but some form of organizational protection might be perceived as the best chance.

Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia Hayter has indicated she won't rest until the powers of the chairman are divided. She is disturbed that the executive director of the RTA will be the same person as the chairman of the board.

Mrs. Hayter says she will press for legislation to restructure the chairman's job, to prevent a dictatorship of the RTA that would be hard to break.

U.S. low in Mexico's priority

Cuba first up for new oil

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—Mexican government officials say Cuba and Latin American nations — not the United States — will get special treatment in sales of newly discovered oil reserves.

National Properties Minister Horacio Flores de la Pena said Cuba was the first country given an opportunity to buy Mexican export petroleum.

Antonio Dovall Jaime, director of the PEMEX state oil monopoly, said Mexico "will seek maximum diversity of buyers and will try to give special attention to the needs of developing countries, above all, those in Latin America."

Flores de la Pena and Dovall Jaime called a special press conference to emphatically deny U.S. statements implying that new Mexican petroleum finds could weaken the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Mexico will become an OPEC observer as soon as possible and has left open the possibility of full membership in the 12-nation group when Mexican exports grow more substantial.

Mexican officials have confirmed that the new Tabasco-Chiapas oil deposits are "enormous," but said they will not discuss numbers until studies are completed in 1975. U.S. estimates are that the new fields can produce 20 billion barrels.

Meanwhile, Prince Fahd bin Abdul Aziz of Saudi Arabia hinted Wednesday in an interview with a Beirut newspaper that the Arabs might reimpose their oil embargo on western countries if there is not a reasonable Arab-Israeli peace settlement.

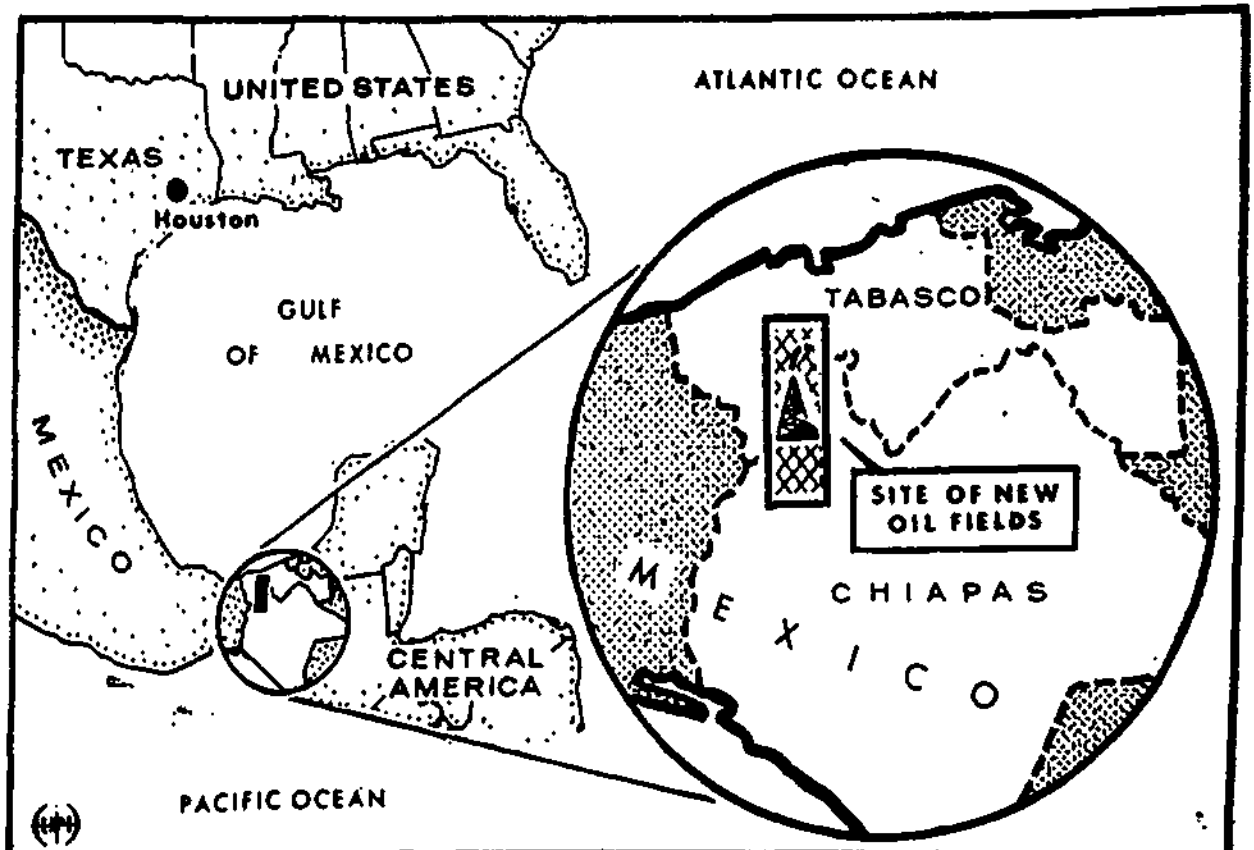

Prince Fahd, one of many half-brothers of King Faisal, is the Saudi second deputy premier and interior minister.

"Nothing stands in the way of any Arab in his attempt to reach an acceptable and just solution to the Middle East question and the restoration of the Palestinian people's rights," he said. "We will not spare any part of our strength, finances or resources in order to reach that solution."

In Caracas, Venezuelan government sources said Venezuela will propose limiting international oil companies to 40 cents a barrel profit when OPEC economic experts meet next week in Vienna.

THE NEW OIL fields in Mexico — covering an area 35 miles long and three miles wide — reportedly lie in the southern states of Tabasco and Chiapas. Unofficial sources say the fields may contain double the amount of oil under Alaska's north slope.

Ford wraps up campaign blitz

President Ford, in Indianapolis, capped a campaign blitz through Middle America last night with a warning that widespread Republican losses Nov. 5 could produce "a lopsided majority of big spenders" in Congress that might undercut his anti-inflation battle. Ford also urged voters not to boycott GOP nominees in next month's elections or blindly penalize good Republican candidates for misdeeds of others. The president also visited Kansas City, Sioux Falls, S.D., and Lincoln, Neb., yesterday.

'Rockefeller family' loan studied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chairman Howard Cannon, D-Nev., disclosed Wednesday that the Senate Rules Committee is investigating a $50,000 loan made by "Rockefeller family interests" to a former New York Republican chairman later convicted of bribery.

Cannon made the disclosure after rejecting a request by Nelson A. Rockefeller for an immediate reopening of public hearings on other matters that threaten his confirmation as vice president.

The loan to L. Judson Morhouse, Cannon said, was in addition to an $88,000 gift Rockefeller made to Morhouse after granting him clemency on the bribery conviction.

Cannon refused to reveal details of the loan, but said the matter was being investigated by the Manhattan district attorney's office.

Rockefeller's press secretary, Hugh Morrow, said the loan to Morhouse was made by Laurence Rockefeller in 1950.

Morhouse used the money to buy stock in American Cyrogenics, shortly before the company made a public stock issue.

He later sold the stock, with a substantial profit, and repaid the loan.

Since the loan was not made by Nelson Rockefeller, it was not included in material he filed with the committee disclosing he had given $2 million in gifts to associates.

Morhouse was Republican State Chairman when Rockefeller first ran for governor of New York in 1958. Several years later, he was convicted of bribery in a liquor scandal. Rockefeller later commuted his sentence.

Cannon said the investigation of the Morhouse loan was one of the reasons for refusing Rockefeller's request for immediate new hearings. He said the committee hopes to reopen the hearings Nov. 13, the week before Congress reconvenes following the election recess.

"My own feeling is that eventually he will be confirmed," Cannon told reporters, "but I must say I am not as certain as I was when we began hearings."

He said he was "not very much concerned" about the disclosure that Lau-rance Rockefeller had financed a derogatory biography of Arthur Goldberg, who ran against Nelson Rockefeller for governor in 1970.

Cannon also said he "deeply regretted" leaks of information which Rockefeller filed with both the Senate Rules Committee and the House Judiciary Committee on a confidential basis.

Earlier Wednesday, Senate Republican leaders charged that Democrats were playing politics in delaying action on the Rockefeller nomination.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John W. Dean III testified Wednesday that Richard M. Nixon's closest aides — John N. Mitchell, H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman — were involved in a consuming flurry of cover-up activity after the Watergate break-in.

Chief trial prosecutor James F. Neal led Dean, Nixon's former counsel and the government's lead-off witness, through the meetings surrounding the June 17, 1972, break-in. It was expected the subpoenaed White House tape of Dean's Sept. 15, 1972, conversation with Nixon would be played Thursday afternoon in historic courtroom drama.

Dean, who is imprisoned at the Ft. Holabird, Md., federal facility after pleading guilty to his part in the cover-up, is expected to be questioned by the prosecution in the Watergate conspiracy trial for the rest of the week with cross-examination taking several more days.

In testimony yesterday, Dean said that on June 19, 1972, Haldeman's former political liaison officer, Gordon Strachan — also indicted in the cover-up — told him he cleaned out White House files "on instructions from Mr. Haldeman."

One of the destroyed files, Dean said, was a memo from Haldeman instructing deputy campaign director Jeb Stuart Magruder to have the intelligence operation transferred from Sen. Edmund Muskie to Sen. George McGovern.

Dean also said that on Jan. 27, 1972, G. Gordon Liddy presented to him and Mitchell a campaign intelligence plan for kidnapping, kidnapping and prostitution.

"I looked over at Mitchell and he winked at me," Dean said. "Mitchell sat silent for a moment, puffed on his pipe and said, 'This wasn't exactly what I had in mind,' and suggested the plan be somewhat tailored down."

Dean said the plan included "mugging squads" capable of roughing up anti-Nixon demonstration leaders; "kidnaping squads" which could remove the leaders of demonstrations at the Republican National Convention and take them to Mexico, and prostitutes who would be used to compromise Democrats at their convention in Miami Beach.

The plan was scaled down at a Feb. 4, 1972, meeting, Dean said, to include possible bugging of the Democratic headquarters and the hotel of Democratic presidential contenders at their convention.

Meanwhile, lawyers for Ehrlichman, who have contended that Nixon repeatedly lied "to save his own neck in the Watergate scandal," said in briefs that Nixon's testimony "is absolutely indispensable" to prove Ehrlichman's innocence.

They urged Sirica either to compel Nixon's appearance as a witness or at least to require he undergo questioning at his home in California.

Killing of calves called shocking, publicity stunt

From United Press International
There was strong response Wednesday to the protest slaughtering of 650 calves by farmers in Wisconsin.

President Ford, in a statement issued in Sioux Falls, S. D., said he was disturbed by the "shocking and wasteful" action at a time when the nation is trying to increase its food supply.

And an official of the American Farm

Bureau Federation deplored the slaughtering before television cameras as "nothing but a publicity stunt" which left the public "more confused than ever about the nation's livestock situation."

Meanwhile, the Agriculture Department's chief economist said Wednesday the effects of the current feed shortage will be felt in higher retail meat prices through 1976.

The slaughter Tuesday was organized by the Wisconsin chapter of the National Farmers Organization in an effort "to bring to the attention of the public that there is a problem out here in rural America."

Ford explains pardon today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford goes before a House subcommittee today to further explain his pardon of Richard M. Nixon and answer questions about the agreement giving the former president custody of his White House tapes and documents.

Ford's historic appearance before the judiciary subcommittee on criminal justice is to begin at 9 a.m. Chicago time and will be nationally televised.

Historians have concluded that Ford's appearance will be the first formal one by a president before a congressional panel.

Two years later, Boggs still missing

Wednesday made it two years since a twin-engine plane vanished between Anchorage and Juneau, Alaska, carrying four men never seen again — including House majority leader Hale Boggs, D-La., and the man for whom he was campaigning, Rep. Nick Begich, D-Alaska. Because the powerful Boggs was among the missing, the Air Force pulled out all the stops in coordinating a search that lasted 39 days, covered more than 325,000 square miles and involved more than 3,600 flight hours — including with the then-secret SR71 spy plane. But no trace ever was found, and officials had to give up with the conclusion that someday, by chance, someone might stumble on the wreckage.

Thousands of his friends and fans said farewell Wednesday to Ed Sullivan in a funeral mass at New York's St. Patrick's Cathedral. The mourning for Sullivan — TV pioneer and one-of-a-kind impresario — was led by Cardinal Terence Cooke, himself pale and weakened from malaria but determined to be there in special tribute to a man considered one of the best friends performers and millions of Americans ever had.

Jumping parties would be nothing new for outgoing California Gov. Ronald Reagan, who was a Democrat until 1962.

North Carolina Sen. Helms warns GOP against 'apathy'

U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., came to suburban Chicago Wednesday to warn Republicans of "a bothersome apathy" in their party that could "be ruinous to us as a party and disastrous to the nation" on election day, Nov. 5.

Helms flew in from Washington to address the 12th Congressional District Republican Women's Organization on behalf of U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, of whom he said, "There is no one in the United States Congress whom I respect more."

Helms, elected to the Senate in 1972 as the first Republican senator from North Carolina since Reconstruction, left immediately after his noon speech to return to Washington.

He declared that "we are tampering with the free enterprise system every day we live... and it will perish" under continued government interference.

HELMs SAID THE public continues to view runaway inflation as the responsibility of the President. "But the U.S. Congress is where the body is buried," he said.

"You must think about who has controlled that Congress for 40 years," he added, sounding the 1974 GOP campaign theme that Democratic domination of Congress has led to inflation.

Sen. Jesse Helms

Rep. Philip M. Crane

"You must take that message to those faint-hearted Republicans who are fed up with Watergate and who intend to stay home Nov. 5," he said.

However, the former newspaperman and television commentator said that neither national defense nor inflation are the biggest problems of the nation.

"I have become absolutely persuaded," said Helms to vigorous applause, "that we aren't going to solve America's problems until we achieve America's No. 1 priority — a spiritual rebirth all across this land."

ANSWERING questions following Helms' hurried departure, Crane drew applause from the Republican women when he declared he is "totally opposed" to President Ford's proposed 5 per cent surtax on federal income taxes.

"In no way will a surtax attack the problem of inflation," he declared. "The argument that it will take money out of circulation just won't wash — it would just take money from individuals and give it to the government to spend."

Crane also was applauded when he declared that he had been disappointed in Ford's nomination of Nelson Rockefeller as Vice President "because of his record as governor of New York," before disclosures of Rockefeller's campaign contributions and ties to publication of a book unfavorable to political opponent Arthur Goldberg.

Crane said these disclosures have placed Rockefeller's confirmation by Congress in question. "And I understand," he added, "that there is other information, which has not been brought to light, before the House Judiciary Committee which also is damaging to Rockefeller."

Letters to the Editor are a daily part of the HERALD's friendly concern with community affairs. Let's hear from you.

PRACTICE MAKES perfect, so students work diligently on the keyboard in general music. Students select the kinds of music they want to study.

Accidentally left out of story

More players in Summer Youth Music program

by JUDY JOBBITT

A din erupts when the general music classes at Cooper Junior High School meet.

The students at work are too busy to notice the noise they are creating or the many other activities going on around them.

It's the result of a different approach to get students who would usually "turn off" to music excited about what music can offer them.

Teachers Cheryl Gibson and Karen Kolls decided to offer music electives this year, rather than the traditional approach in which students work together.

Instead, they take six different units during the school year. The units include guitar, keyboard, recorder, opera, orchestra instruments, rock and jazz.

"NO LONGER IS the program as teacher-centered," said Mrs. Gibson. "There'll be as many as six activities going on during one period."

"We're guiding rather than just teaching and testing," she said. Instead of lecturing, assigning homework and giving tests, the teachers are resource people for students to come to with problems on their units.

By letting them pick areas they want to study, students also can advance at their own rate. Those students who have a background in guitar, keyboard or recorder, can work with other beginning students and test them, said Mrs. Kolls. These advanced students also can use class time to practice on their instrument.

"This is the last time they are required to take music," said Mrs. Kolls. "We want them to leave with a good taste in their mouths for music."

"WE EXPOSE them to the music elements. We're not out to make exceptional musicians but want them to see the relationship between music and instruments," said Mrs. Gibson.

Students are even picking up the music jargon, said Mrs. Kolls.

Several eighth grade students, who had taken one year of the traditional general music course, said they enjoy this year more.

"It's more fun," said Cathie Blennerhassett. "You get to do everything. Last year we didn't have time to do all this."

"All the eighth graders last year got to do was listen to records and all that," said Diane DaPisa. "This year I know I'm learning a lot more."

A group of boys were huddled around the record player working on the opera unit. The unit includes listening to "Carmen," "Jesus Christ Superstar," and "Tommy."

The boys didn't think it odd that they were studying opera. It's just part of the work, they said.

Susidies sought from municipalities

Chicago-suburb bus link in jeopardy

Bus service between the Northwest suburbs and downtown Chicago is in jeopardy of being discontinued.

The North Suburban Mass Transit District (NORTAN) has petitioned communities served by United Motor Coach Co. to contribute money to help offset the bus company's operating deficits.

"Without such funding we will have no choice but to eliminate those routes serving your area," said Joseph DiJohn, executive director of NORTAN in a Sept. 27 letter to area officials.

UNITED MOTOR Coach makes two bus trips daily along Northwest Highway from Barrington to Des Plaines, with stops in Palatine, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Des Plaines. From Des Plaines, riders can transfer to a number of other routes, including one to downtown Chicago.

Two municipalities already have turned down the plea for financial assistance. The Elk Grove Village Board said No to a $13,279 request, and this week Mount Prospect rejected a request for $1,997.

Requests are still pending before Palatine, Arlington Heights, Des Plaines and Wheeling. NORTAN has asked for the following amounts: Palatine $1,274, Arlington Heights $1,404, Des Plaines $32,000, and Wheeling $1,630.

The subsidy requests were determined by the number of miles that the bus company services in each community.

MOUNT PROSPECT'S refusal to grant funds could end the twice daily bus service along Northwest Highway from Barrington to Des Plaines, including service in Palatine and Arlington Heights.

NORTAN's application for funds from the Regional Transportation Authority has been held up because of RTA's inability to choose a chairman. "We're caught in the middle of that whole political squabble," DiJohn said, referring to the controversy over the nomination of Milton Pikarsky to head the RTA.

Palatine officials plan to ask NORTAN to make a formal presentation to the village board before acting on the subsidy request. The trustees are concerned about the number of Palatine residents using the bus service, number of bus runs, fares, the time and place the bus service is available, in addition to the company's financial condition.

Questions were raised about the necessity of a bus line paralleling the Chicago and North Western Ry. line by both Palatine officials and Arlington Heights Assistant Village Mgr. Darryl Kenning.

Wheeling officials are considering NORTAN's request and are expected to act on it by Nov. 1.

Hazel Steinke, 100 Deborah Ln., Wheeling, this week told the village board that a group of senior citizens are disturbed over the possibility of the bus service being ended.

"If the bus service is discontinued they (senior citizens) won't be able to get anywhere without a cab and cabs are costly," she said. "We would like to see the buses remain and be increased if possible."

Mrs. Steinke suggested the village board negotiate with NORTAN for more buses and better service before making a decision on the subsidy.

"We need not only a complete, but a dependable bus service," she said. "We hope the village fathers will do something to help the poor people who have to walk."

Parks schedule Saturday movies

West."

• Oct. 26: "Francis in the Haunted House."

• Nov. 2: "Born Free."

• Nov. 9: "Pollyanna."

• Nov. 16: "Brightly of the Grand Canyon."

• Nov. 23: "80 Steps to Jonah."

• Nov. 30: "Island of the Blue Dolphin."

Meeting tonight on retention basin problems

The Wheeling Park District tonight will discuss problems at the Heritage Park West retention basin.

The park board two weeks ago rejected a two-phase program proposed by the Metropolitan Sanitary District that was designed to correct problems at the basin.

Land for the basin was donated by the park district in 1969 with the understanding the retention lake would be suitable for fishing and boating. The basin has never been used for recreation because of its size and depth, and it has been described as a "mudhole and eyesore."

The park board is considering legal action against the MSD and village if problems are not corrected at the basin. The park district attorney has said it has grounds to sue because the easement agreement has not been carried out by the two bodies.

In other business tonight the park board will consider playground plans, planting of shrubs, lighting specifications, installation of a gasoline pump and paving of parking lots and sidewalks at various sites throughout the park district.

The meeting will be at Heritage Park, 222 S. Wolf Rd., starting at 8 p.m.

THE REAR OF THE O'Neill home, 1432 Lake Louise Dr., Palatine, was gutted by flames and smoke early Wednesday. The fire began in the recreation room on the first floor of the bi-level home. Fire officials do not know the origin of the fire that took the life of the family's only daughter, Kathleen, 7.

7-year-old killed in early-morning blaze

by DIANE MERMIGAS

It was nearly 3 a.m. when two Palatine policemen broke down the door at 1432 Lake Louise Dr. and tried to save the lives of the six members of Bernard O'Neill's family. They rescued five persons but couldn't rescue 7-year old Kathleen O'Neill.

"The little girl's brothers were in shock and there were flames and smoke pouring out of the back of the house," said Palatine Police Sgt. Ralph Winkelhake.

Winkelhake was one of the first to arrive at the fire-ravaged house early Wednesday.

ANOTHER POLICEMAN JACK McGregor, and Winkelhake responded to the fire call at 3 a.m., broke down the front door of the house and rescued the parents who were unconscious and lying by the front door. Bernard O'Neill, 42, and his wife, Joann, 41, are in serious condition at Northwest Community Hospital. They are suffering from smoke inhalation and burns.

McGregor helped rescue three brothers from the roof of the house before firemen arrived. Michael O'Neill, 17, had jumped from the roof to get a ladder from the garage.

Michael was helping his brother, Bernard Jr., 14 down the ladder from the roof when McGregor arrived at the scene. The officer suffered smoke inhalation but was not seriously hurt when he climbed the ladder to the roof and brought another brother, Thomas, 4, down to safety, Winkelhake said.

Kathleen was found later by firemen in the hallway outside her second-floor bedroom. Fire officials said she died of smoke inhalation.

"THE SITUATION was really bad because the smoke was so thick. Officer McGregor and I did all we could for the five family members until the fire department arrived," said Winkelhake.

Palatine fire officials said that the fire originated in the first floor recreation room in the back of the rustic bi-level home. They have not determined the cause of the fire.

"I just can't believe that something like this happened to a family who is as nice as the O'Neills," one neighbor said as she stood with other neighbors looking at the O'Neill house.

"They are such a close-knit family and very active in the St. Thomas of Villanova Church and the PTA in Palatine," she said.

NEIGHBORS WERE aroused from their sleep by the sounds of 17 Palatine firemen fighting the blaze. A close friend of the family's that lived across the street accompanied the three O'Neill boys to the hospital.

"All three boys were confused and frightened. The poor kids didn't know what to think or say, and all of us were just trying to do everything we could to help them," he said.

Neighbors supplied clothes for the boys, Tom, 4, Bernie, 11 and Michael, 17, to wear after leaving the hospital. An older son, Patrick, who is a freshman at St. Norbert College in Wisconsin, was not home at the time of the blaze.

THE O'NEILLS, long-time residents of Palatine, lived in the house on Lake Louise Drive for five years. Kathleen O'Neill had been a student at the Lake Louise Elementary School, located directly behind their home, for the past two years. Her second-grade teacher, Rena Marcotte, said she was a "freckle-faced tomboy" who was always "smiling and friendly with everyone."

A fund to aid the family has been established at the First Bank and Trust Co. of Palatine, 35 N. Brockway. Contributions may be made payable to "O'Neill Fire Fund" and brought to the attention of Carol Halpaus at the bank.

Katherine Portera, whose husband works with Mrs. O'Neill, said the fund was established as a means of helping the O'Neill family when personal help is difficult to give.

Dundee Road nearer opening; four lanes poured

Four lanes of concrete have been poured for Dundee Road in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove but opening of the lanes to traffic still is several weeks off while crews apply finishing touches, a spokesman in the Illinois Dept. of Transportation, said Wednesday.

Crews soon will begin installing left-turn lanes and officials are trying to arrange for temporary traffic signals to be installed at major intersections, said the spokesman, Albert Sifer.

He said, however, the two south side lanes would remain closed while the turning lanes are being installed. Work was running somewhat ahead of schedule and opening may occur ahead of planned opening around Thanksgiving, he said.

The two newly paved lanes could be used during the turning-lane installation but Sifer said that phase of the job would be completed faster if they remained closed.

THE MEDIANS ALSO will have to be filled in with soil and asphalt but should not delay the four-lane operation, he said.

He also said only half, rather than the entire entrance to Buffalo Grove Road at Dundee Road would be closed off during work on the intersection.

A median has to be installed and the entrance has to be widened on about 600 feet or roadway in front of the Ranch Mart Shopping Center.

Sifer said the state was originally hoping to close down the entire entrance so the work could be completed faster, but decided not to after objections were raised by Bank of Buffalo Grove officials. The bank is located on the northeast corner of the intersection.

VILLAGE OFFICIALS said earlier this week the entire entranceway would be closed and traffic would have to use Golfview Terrace as an alternate route.

Half the intersection will remain open during the job and Sifer said the work will take "twice as long."

He was unable to estimate when that part of the project would take place saying that depended on the weather and the availability of cement.

'Hello Dundee' theme of students

Although the road is still under construction, students have prepared a fanfare to recognize the completion of the portion of the road near London at 1001 W. Dundee Rd.

The band will be playing, posters will be waved, balloons will be released and a special song to Dundee Road will be sung.

The idea for the festivities started in the music department when students wrote words to the tune of "Hello Dolly" creating "Hello Dundee."

The choral students brought band students into the event to accompany them. Other students soon became involved, working on posters and the banner that will drape across the overpass bridge between Field School and London over Dundee Road.

The bridge will be the stage for Friday's activities. Starting at 3 p.m. students will march to the bridge singing "Hello Dundee," carrying their posters and 100 balloons.

The activities will include renaming the bridge to the London Bridge by Village Pres. Ted Scanlon of Wheeling.

With that announcement, confetti will be flung and balloons released to give a colorful display for all to see.

Dundee Road project. Dundee is being expanded to four lanes between Elmhurst Road and Ill. Rte. 53 through Buffalo Grove, Wheeling and Arlington Heights.

Construction has been going on since 1972 and the cost of the entire project has been set at $3 million.

Michael Wolfe named to plan commission

The Wheeling Village Board has appointed Michael Wolfe to the plan commission to fill the unexpired term of Desere Smet who resigned last month.

Wolfe was one of three candidates that applied for the appointment. Wolfe's term will expire June 30, 1977.

Smet, reappointed to a three-year term last July, said he no longer could serve on the commission because of commitments to his employer.

10-year agreement expires

Schools, parks seeking new pact

The Wheeling Park District will continue using school facilities in Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 until the two boards meet to discuss a new joint agreement.

A 10-year agreement between the two districts expired Tuesday. According to the agreement, the park district cuts the grass on school property in Wheeling and in turn uses school facilities for park district activities.

The park district has notified the school district that it doesn't want to cut the grass on school property anymore.

David Phillips, park district superintendent, said the park district is having difficulty maintaining both park and school property. The park district has about 83 acres and the school district, about 110 acres.

UNDER THE AGREEMENT, the park district has free use of school facilities except on Sundays and holidays. On those days the park district pays Dist. 21 $8 an hour for custodial service.

Phillips estimates the park district spends about $4,000 annually for upkeep of the land.

Even though the agreement expired, the school district has agreed to allow the park district to continue using the school facilities under the expired agreement's provisions, Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill said. This agreement will continue until the two boards meet Nov. 7 to discuss a new pact, he said.

GILL SAID IF the park district drops its provisions to cut the lawns, the school district might charge the district set fees for using school facilities.

Current fees for use of school facilities by groups other than school or community organizations are $2 for a classroom, $25 for junior high school gyms, $10 for elementary school gyms and $10 for cafeterias.

The park district had estimated it would cost about $1,000 to rent the facilities under the $8 an hour arrangement. Gill said this estimate would be considerably higher if the park district had to pay the established fees.

Residents take part in UI music program

Several local pupils attended the Illinois Summer Youth Music program at the University of Illinois, Champaign-Urbana, and were not listed in a recent Herald story on the program.

In the Junior Concert Band were Laurel Moe, flute; James Maynen, clarinet; Teresa McCabe, clarinet; Karen Conran, clarinet, and Bob Locke, tuba.

Playing with the Senior Orchestra wind ensemble were Kim McGovern, bassoon; Robin Ratt, bassoon; Emily Mulligano, violin; Joyce Hansen, viola, and AnnLobby, cello.

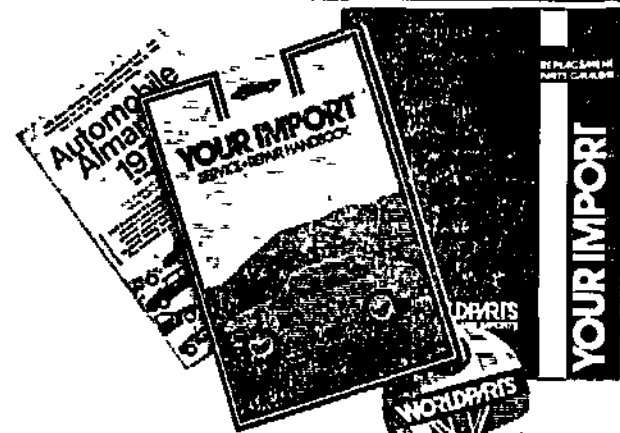

Kim Mason sang with the senior chorus.

Agencies in 11th-hour push for defeat of water bill

by LIA TONKIN
Water fight: The Illinois Environmental Protection Agency and the state Dept. of Public Health pushed strongly for the defeat of the Safe Drinking Water Act, which comes up for a vote in the U.S. House of Representatives this week. The bill's chief sponsor, U.S. Rep. Paul Rogers, D-Fla., and other backers of the bill contend that beefed-up water supply regulations and enforcement are needed throughout the nation.

Commenting on the reasons for the recent state EPA telegram blitz to Illinois congressmen urging defeat of the Safe Drinking Water Act, Ira Markwood, the EPA's manager of public water supply, said, "The regulations as proposed would have no great impact on water supplies, which are now regulated by the state. It would apply to nonregulated supplies, which would include many motels and restaurants now supplying their own water and which are in unincorporated areas."

The state EPA regulates 1,600 public water supplies. If the Safe Drinking Water Act was passed, Markwood says, another 3,000 water supplies would be added to his department's jurisdiction — a heavy added enforcement cost burden. Water supplies not regulated by the state EPA are checked by the state Dept. of Public Health under less stringent requirements. For example, a certified operator is required for all public water supplies regulated by the state EPA. The rule does not apply to other water supplies.

A CHANGE in definition of public water supply could alleviate some of the added burden that would be imposed by the Safe Drinking Water Act, Markwood contends. The state defines a public water supply as one in an incorporated area, or one that supplies 10 or more separate properties. The federal definition includes any supply that serves 15 or more separate properties, or that serves 25 or more people a day (restaurants, gas stations). The bill could serve a useful purpose in other states where there is a lack of adequate water supply regulation, Markwood said.

"Present standards for drinking water are incomplete," countered David Zwick, an associate of consumer advocate Ralph Nader in Washington, D. C. Zwick is among the backers of the Safe Drinking Water Act who believe that present state standards are aimed only at control of communicable disease. Testing for chemicals and compounds that result from the breakdown of industrial wastes is not included in state regulations, he contends.

"Second, existing standards, as incomplete as they are, are not being met," Zwick said. He cited several government studies — which do not include a survey of Illinois enforcement procedures — that indicate a serious surveillance problem. Ninety per cent of water supply operators in other states had measured no chemical contaminants for an entire year, and 50 per cent could not remember when they were last checked by officials.

Zwick said the Illinois EPA's complaint that it will receive insufficient funding to carry out the water supply monitoring program is a misunderstanding. Illinois' share of the total $15 million for fiscal 1976 and $20 million in fiscal 1977 is approximately $1.5 million, he said. The Safe Drinking Water Act has been "four years in progress," Zwick said. A similar measure passed the U.S. Senate two years ago.

barrier can absorb more than 70 per cent of the slashing power of waves — even during storms. The University of Michigan study will consider a scrap-tire barrier at Michiana, Mich.

'Up, up and away ...'

The wilds of New Mexico and west Texas have been chosen as the site for a manned, meteorological balloon flight Saturday. With this probe of the Earth's lower atmosphere, scientists hope to be able to draw up a composite picture of a single air mass within which the balloon will travel. Such composite may help in assessing how various atmospheric forces — radiation, inversion, turbulence, pressure, temperature and other variables — contribute to the dissipation of pollution, the balance of the earth's heat "budget" and other important modifiers of the air. Named Project da Vinci, the balloon flight will float at altitudes ranging from 4,000 to 14,000 feet. It's a region little examined in the past. The balloon will be launched at Las Cruces, N. M. Following a 36-hour flight, the balloon and its four-man crew is expected to land near Lubbock, Tex. The project is sponsored by the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, the National Geographic Society and the U.S. Army's Atmospheric Sciences Laboratory.

Tire barriers effective?

The Lake Michigan shoreline and the Atlantic Coast will be used as testing areas for a group of scientists and conservationists who are trying to determine whether shore-protection devices constructed from worn-out tires are effective. The tests are funded by the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. They will be conducted by the University of Rhode Island and the University of Michigan. According to Goodyear, tests at Rhode Island already indicate that a floating scrap-tire

High lake level puts focus on water diversion

by ANNE SLAVICEK
High water levels in Lake Michigan are drawing attention to the question of lake water diversion and allocations.

After nearly a 1½-year procrastination in setting up new allocation hearings after a court decision invalidated earlier distribution plans, the Illinois Division of Waterways of the Illinois Dept. of Transportation now is planning new hearings in December.

At those hearings, the Metropolitan Sanitary District and suburban water commissions are expected to be among those squabbling about the way the 3,200 cubic feet per second of legal diversion from the lake is divided.

ALLOCATIONS made in 1970 to take effect in 1973 had promised lake water for drinking to both the DAMP water commission seeking to supply lake water to Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine and to the Tree Towns Water Commission which may sell lake water to Elk Grove Village.

Other Northwest suburban municipalities including Buffalo Grove have also expressed interest in getting access to lake water, at least to supplement drinking water from municipal wells.

When the Lake County Circuit Court scrapped the 1973 allocations in 1973, the court said that the public hearings held in 1970 were inadequate for the state to use in making the allocations.

However, no new hearings have been scheduled in the year and a half since that decision and the question of 1975 allocations has been left up in the air.

WHILE PLANS to apportion the existing legal diversion are under way there are also moves afoot to increase the amount of water Illinois can take from the lake.

Both MSD Trustee Joanne Alter and State Sen. Robert W. Mitchler, R-Oswego, testified this week in Washington on behalf of a House of Representatives bill to increase the Illinois diversion to 10,000 cubic feet per second.

The bill, sponsored by U.S. Rep. James G. O'Hara, D-Mich., has support of congressmen from Michigan, Indiana, Wisconsin, Ohio and Minnesota who are concerned about damage from high water levels.

Opposition is coming from the U.S. State Department, however, because of Canadian opposition to any increase in the lake diversion from the Great Lakes.

Mrs. Alter said the increase in the average allowable diversion would improve water quality in the Illinois River and other downstream waterways.

TESTIFYING BEFORE the subcommittee on water resources of the House Committee on Public Works, she said passage of the bill would increase the domestic water supply in northeastern Illinois, increase hydroelectric power output at the Lockport station and help protect shoreline property by slightly lowering the lake level.

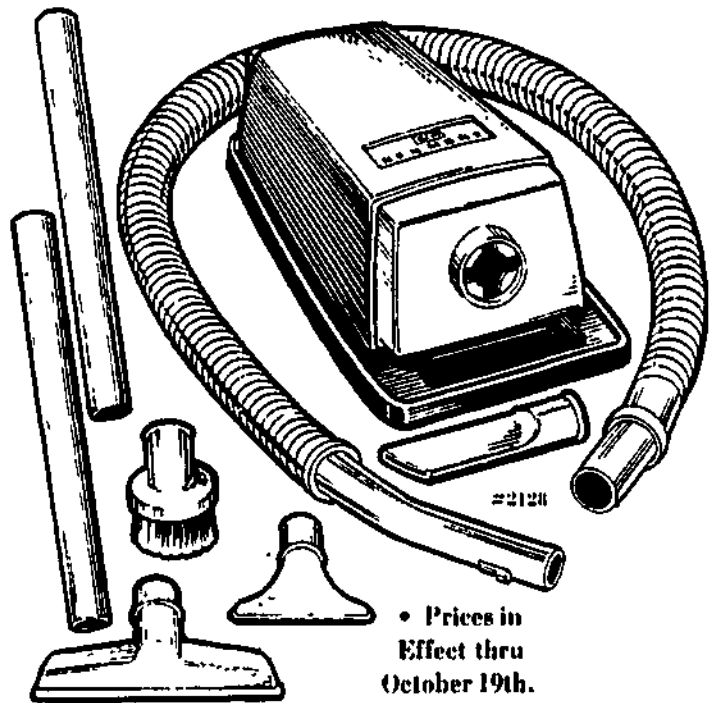

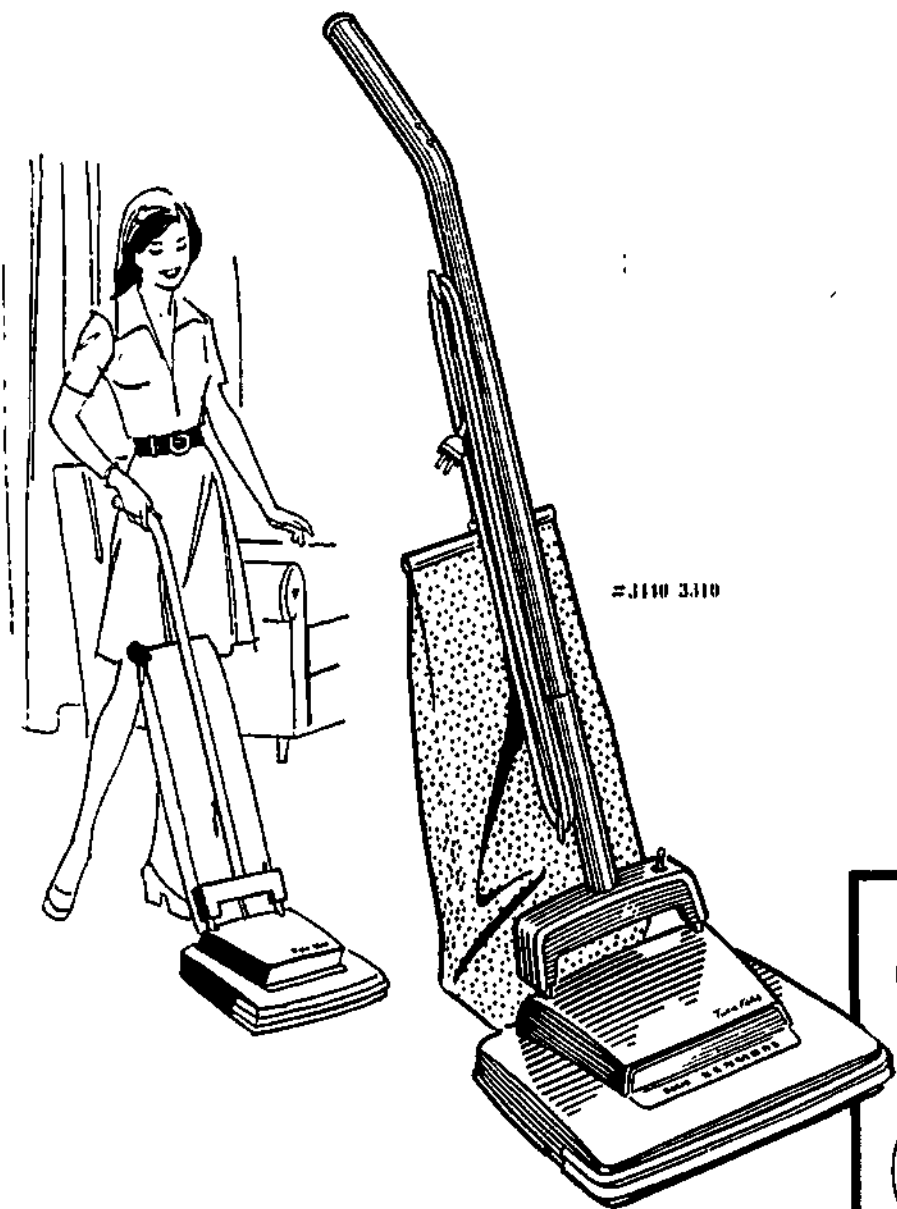

Mitchler spoke for the Illinois Water Pollution and Water Resources Commission, which he chairs. The commission backs the increased diversion both to benefit suburban communities that need drinking water and to improve the quality of the Illinois River, he said.

Mitchler told the subcommittee that if Illinois is to establish coal gasification as a means of providing energy, the diversion will have to be increased because a moderate size coal gasification plant needs 13 million gallons of water per day and the water is evaporated in the gasification process.

Bike-a-thon at track

The Arlington Park Race Track will host a bike-a-thon Oct. 20 to raise money for Shelter Inc., an emergency foster care program for abandoned children, and the Northwest Opportunity Center in Arlington Heights.

Although the bike-a-thon will begin at 9 a.m., bikers can start and stop any time between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Each biker finds sponsors to pledge a donation for each mile he rides and then collects for each mile completed. Sponsorship forms can be obtained by calling 235-3458.

Shelter Inc. will provide emergency care for abandoned, abused, neglected and dependent children on a short-term basis starting in December. The opportunity center helps low-and poverty-level income people in 26 programs in the community.

For further information call 235-3458.

Hospitals get grant

A $150,000 grant from the U.S. Dept. of Health Education and Welfare has been approved for funding emergency medical service training at 13 north and north-west suburban and Chicago hospitals.

The hospitals, partners in the North Suburban Assn. for Health Resources, will share the grant with Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights, the designated recipient of the HEW funds.

The hospitals include Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village, Holy Family in Des Plaines, Lutheran General in Park Ridge and Resurrection in Chicago.

Through NSAIH these hospitals are partners in an areawide paramedic program providing on the scene rescue service for the 1.5 million residents in the 13-hospital area.

Grant funds will finance training of physicians, nurses, paramedics, medical students and consumers in emergency medicine. The NSAIH project goal is to improve the quality of care of the emergency patient at the scene, in transport and in the hospital emergency room.

Tentative plans call for establishment of emergency physician training programs at Evanston Hospital, Lutheran General, Northwest Community, Resurrection and St. Francis Hospital in Evanston. Emergency department nurses will be trained at Lutheran General.

The grant will cover instruction and material costs. Per-person training will cost $247.50 per physician, $202.67 per nurse and $248.17 per paramedic.

Diabetes Assn. meeting

The Greater Chicago and Northern Illinois chapter of the American Diabetes Assn. will hold a meeting Oct. 30 to plan future programs.

Northwest suburban residents are invited to the meeting at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights to share in the planning, an association spokesman said. The meeting will begin at 6:45 p.m.

Dr. Sheldon Berger will speak at 8 p.m. on research and cure for diabetes. The American Diabetes Assn. is a not-for-profit agency working to help diabetics and their families find a cure for the disease.

For more information call 943-8668.

Bicentennial funds

Up to $240,000 will be available to each state for Bicentennial programs, the America Revolution Bicentennial Administration has announced.

The board recently approved guidelines for applying for the funds, which will be distributed on the basis of matching grants. Projects to be supported by the grant must be conducted directly by the Illinois Bicentennial Commission, by state or local government agencies or nonprofit organizations. All money will be awarded through state commissions, which will also monitor the grants.

Communities and nonprofit organizations must apply to their state Bicentennial commissions for the grant money and the projects must be officially endorsed by the commission to be eligible. To be eligible, projects must be within one or more of the three basic national themes of "Heritage," "Festivals," "Festival USA" or "Horizons '78." The guidelines also include accounting and reporting requirements.

The administration is also encouraging people to buy historical medals that will be part of the commemoration of the country's 200th anniversary. The 1974 Bicentennial medal, available in silver or bronze, is produced by the U.S. Mint.

The silver medal is $15 and the bronze, $3.50. Net revenues from the sale of the medals will be used to help fund Bicentennial projects in each state.

Medical orientation

More than 100 high school students interested in the medical profession have signed up for an orientation program at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines.

Sponsored with the Boy Scouts of America, the program is designed to make it possible for students to evaluate their interest and to provide further information on the medical professions, a spokesman said.

The hospital will conduct monthly programs on the hospital as a whole, a doctor's view of the hospital, the physical therapy department, the respiratory therapy department, radiology, nuclear medicine, the pharmacy and the laboratory.

Sunrise Lake Camp in Bartlett received a $500 donation for maintenance and equipment from PLEASE, a parents group for the benefit of handicapped children.

Parents League Established to Assist Special Education raised the money at the Mount Prospect Charity Fair held last spring. The group includes parents of handicapped children who attend Einstein School in Hanover Park and Berkeley-Rand Campus in Arlington Heights. Students who attend these schools live in the area serviced by the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization.

'Life' plans dinner

The organization is one of the leading opponents of abortions (except to save the mother's life) and euthanasia. Tickets for the seven-course steak dinner and dancing afterward are $10 per person. Persons interested in attending the dinner should write to: Illinois Citizens Concerned For Life, P.O. Box 377, Glen Ellyn, Ill., 60137.

Retention lakes, essential for flood control, also can be attractive Develop, conserve—or both?

Mighty oaks suffer the ravages of development.

MARSHY LAND, east of Schaumburg High School was of little use until it was designated a park area. Children now enjoy hours of fishing there, and the North Cook Soil and Water Conservation District praises use of the land for recreation and open space. Wildlife also inhabits the wet low-land area.

Can the conflict between development and conservation be resolved?

North Cook Soil and Water Conservation District officials believe there is a solution to developing land without destroying it. They are in the process of showing local officials what is good and bad about current development in Cook and Lake counties.

Using speakers and tours of the area, the district is attempting to improve knowledge about what can be done to improve environment without turning down development.

The district has the power to review and can make recommendations about use of land in flood plains and in poor soil areas. Although there are feelings that the recommendations have been ignored in several cases, the district is embarking on its "educational program" to reach local officials who make the decisions.

RONALD GEBHARDT, district conservationist for the U.S. Soil Conservation District, has selected several sites in Schaumburg Township as examples of good and poor planning for development.

He praises the retention lakes at the Bar Harbor complex because they were placed in the low section of the project site, which he says prevents a lot of future flooding problems.

Gebhardt also approves of Henry Teraud Park near Schaumburg High School, because the land was low and marshy and unsuitable for any kind of building. The area is effective open space and provides some recreation, he says.

The Woods of Schaumburg development draws criticism, however, because it has resulted in the deaths of several large oak trees. Gebhardt says oaks are particularly susceptible to soil disturbances and will die if construction is not properly planned around them. Dead tree trunks, some as much as 60 years old, are monuments to this problem in the Woods of Schaumburg.

Gebhardt said other parts of the wooded area have been developed without killing so many trees. He also complains that killing of the trees wastes a valuable commodity. He says an 18-inch (diameter) oak tree was valued at $2,000 in 1957, and the replacement cost has skyrocketed because of inflation.

In all developments, prevention of erosion is also an overlooked but essential practice, he says.

Low-class swindle good enough

"Deleted, deleted, deleted," swore South. "expletive, expletive! I squeeze them and finally fall for a second-class swindle."

Seven notrump was a mighty good contract. If hearts broke better than 5-1 South should have had 13 top tricks. As it was he worked out a perfect three-suit squeeze.

He won the spade lead with his king; played two rounds of hearts; stopped to regroup when West showed out and after considerable slow play came down to a three-card ending. He held a heart, a club and a high diamond, which he led. West sitting in front of dummy had to discard down to a high spade and one club whereupon the eight of spades was thrown from dummy to leave the king and jack of clubs.

East, sitting in back of dummy, had to hold a high heart and hence had to unguard his queen of clubs.

Unfortunately for poor South, West had discarded the four of spades on the second heart; played the 10 of spades when the suit was next led; discarded the jack of spades and hung on to the nine.

South knew that one of East's last two cards was a heart. He finally decided that the other one was the nine of spades

JUSTICE: reform needed in selecting judges...

Every two years, Cook County voters face the totally bewildering task of electing or retaining judges — and it's about time this system was changed.

This year, voters will face a list of 118 candidates for election or retention on the bench. It's impossible for even the most conscientious voters to make a decision based on a reasonable assessment of all 118 persons.

However, there are ways to reform Cook County's judicial system, such as a proposal from Circuit Court Judge Reginald J. Holzer. Holzer's proposal includes:

- Election of judges for life terms;
- Division of the county into three judicial districts;
- Election from nonpartisan ballots;
- Voting in off-election years;
- Retention of countywide election of Illinois Supreme Court and Appellate Court judges.

Reginald J. Holzer

Judge Holzer is a sharp critic of the merit selection of judges, or the appointing of the judiciary to the bench. He fears the merit plan would encourage "ivory tower" judges who are responsive to no one.

The Herald has supported the merit selection of judges in the past, and we still believe it is the best method of selecting judges.

Removing them entirely from the electoral process would encourage nonpartisanship, and it would hopefully free the judicial system of political favoritism which has been part of the slating process in the past.

However, Judge Holzer's proposal accomplishes many of the same goals as does merit selection, in that it would give voters more of an opportunity to study and select judges in a year in which there are no other distracting political races.

Cook County's judiciary has been sharply criticized in recent years for its absence of quality judges. In part, the system's been the culprit, because few voters have cared about making decisions on judges when faced by a bedsheet ballot containing far too many names. Let's change the system to make it easier for all of us to shoulder the responsibility for selecting top-flight judges.

Praises Dwyer School

In your column of Oct. 10, written by Miss Rice as Education Today, you quote Margaret Quane, an eminent Illinois educator in the field of treatment/education of the "emotionally disturbed," as saying "I guess I'd rather err on the side of caution. . . ." and go on to say that if errors were made at Dwyer School, they were not "on the side of caution." Then you concede, and again I quote, "It is also possible that 'caution' has been as deep an error as one made by people who tried to do too much." I agree — no extreme can be sensible.

I am a "Dwyer parent." Our child has been severely disturbed since infancy. I cannot say enough about and in appreciation for what the Dwyer concept is trying to do.

My child's progress in his one year at Dwyer has been marked and remarkable enough to intrigue a great deal of interest in his neurologist, pediatricians, and the various specialized therapists who have seen him since the age of two.

If my child had been born when I was, or even as lately as 12 years ago, there would have been fewer people who would take the "risks" that have been taken to keep him in society and to persuade him to accept it. He would quite possibly be by now one of our "hopeless" cases in some backwater dumping ground such as the "school" at St. Charles, Dixon or one of the state mental hospitals, at taxpayers' expense.

As it is, he is able to work at near-age level academically. He visits and understands the principles behind grocery stores, department stores, theatres and parks. He is constantly in contact with the society that he once decided to withdraw from, and which he may someday be able to contribute to. He is a source of daily delight for his family, their friends and a few good neighbors.

Chance set us down barely within Dwyer's borders. So long as I have breath I will not stop counting this as a blessing, and trying to tell my Northwest suburban neighbors the good that Dwyer can do for many of us.

I hope my neighbors do not err on the side of caution when we come to our decision regarding Dwyer. There are many more children like mine (to one degree and another); does any one of you want to support them as wards of the state at a cost of thousands of dollars per child per capita? Or will you decide to help Dwyer be all it can and wants to be — a home-based treatment for loved children who may (nothing is certain in life) someday work and pay their own share of taxes, give their own measure of human value and love back to society, and never know what they missed, separation from their families and consignment to a life sentence in hopelessness.

Bob Lahey's column

by BOB LAHEY
Political Editor

Complaints about possible tampering with voter registrations in some suburban areas, although at first not supported by much hard evidence, point up the need for bolstering the method of registering voters.

In some precincts in Niles, Maine and Wheeling townships, according to a couple of Democratic candidates, as many as 180 voters (out of perhaps 700 or 800) were removed from the rolls of eligible voters during the recent canvass of those registered.

These candidates conducted their check of the canvass in precincts where Democrats normally carry the ticket, and so it is understandable that they are inclined to suspect that something may be amiss.

They further have the testimony of several qualified voters who received notice that they were being dropped from the rolls, although there has been no change in their voting status and there should be no reason for them to have to do anything to retain their eligibility.

In fact, one of the candidates, Patton Feichter, who is running for the state Senate in the 4th District, himself was notified that he was being disqualified, although to his knowledge no one made any effort to verify his status.

The candidates, who called the matter to the attention of election officials, ascribe these occurrences to two possibilities:

- An organized effort on the part of someone to thin the ranks of voters in normally Democratic precincts, or

- Sloppy work on the part of canvassers who are supposed to contact each household in their precincts to verify the presence of the voters listed in the registration books.

Both the state's attorney's office and the county clerk's office are inclined to the latter view in this instance.

A casual check with canvassers in other precincts, however, suggests a third explanation for the large numbers of voters who were dropped. That is, rather than being sloppy, they were in fact conscientious and efficient. In actually checking every household in the precinct they simply found people on the rolls who would have been dropped in the canvass long ago.

Canvassers in Arlington Heights found voters still registered although they have been dead or had moved away as much as eight years ago.

The wonder is that any of the canvassers — who receive about $63 for two and a half days of arduous work — perform so thoroughly.

The fact is that it is much easier for these grass roots election officials to simply cross someone off the voting rolls after a perfunctory check. The burden of restoring eligibility then falls on the voters, and he may not learn of it until he has been deprived of the opportunity to vote.

That creates the potential for a form of election rigging, especially in precincts so heavily dominated by one party that it is not even possible to enlist election judges of the opposition party. There are many such precincts in Chicago, and some in the suburbs.

One obvious form of election reform is for the legislature to raise the pay of these overworked election judges and at least make the long hours required of them worth their time.

...seek a 'total' view...

Crime is on the increase again, according to statistics, just as it is the sometimes-misleading and oversimplified rhetoric which is offered as an explanation.

Last month, the FBI reported that a sharp increase in crime which began late last year had continued through the first six months of 1974.

In the Chicago metropolitan area, crime reports show a sharp increase, especially in burglaries and thefts. The problem was underscored last weekend when 23 persons were murdered in Chicago. It was one of Chicago's bloodiest weekends on record.

As the crime rate increases, so does the rhetoric. When the FBI's nation-wide figures were released, U.S. Attorney General William Saxbe cited violence on television and the fact that "a lot of people think they can get away with crime and they do."

Perhaps Saxbe's assessment of the causes of crime is partly correct. Perhaps some persons are inspired to violence by the kind of mindless criminality depicted on TV and at the movies.

But Saxbe's explanation ignores the complexities which create crime, "TV violence" and the popularity of crime must be joined by a host of other factors which contribute to the crime rate.

First, FBI statistics reflect an increasing sophistication in reporting crime, and the opportunity exists to juggle numbers within the crime figures. Remember, too, that "reported crime" differs from "actual crime." It may be that there's more crime occurring than is actually reported to the police.

William Saxbe

Second, crime is reported increasing in the suburbs, but so is the suburban population. In other words, even if crime appears to be increasing, it may really be holding steady or dropping, depending on the growth of the population.

Third, we are currently in an economic downturn, or recession. That could be considered as a reason for the increases in the rate of burglary, for example.

The point is that simplistic explanations and easily attacked scapegoats aren't going to make the crime rate decrease. What's required is a thorough understanding of social factors, plus an effective functioning of the entire criminal justice system, starting with more vigilant citizens to an effective prison and parole system.

Even then, crime won't disappear overnight, but perhaps it will give us the chance to begin a wholesale war on crime and its root causes. Sloganeering will do little, if anything, to aid that battle.

Tom Tiede's column

...crime 'success rate' staggering

by TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON — Being front line troops in the war against crime, so to speak, it is only natural that police argue the subject with as much emotion as reason. Unfortunately, the emotion often does more to cloud than to clarify the issues.

Such is the case, again, as the FBI launches another effort to convince the public that rising crime is primarily the fault of a lenient, lazy, corner-cutting, bureaucratic or inept court system.

Speaking before the International Association of Chiefs of Police recently, FBI Director Clarence Kelley guessed that two-thirds of all serious crime is committed by criminal repeaters. He said indignantly that "this recidivist problem is aggravated by the wholesale use of concurrent sentences and unreasonable plea bargaining." His implication, clearly, was that if the courts would get tough then the thugs would get theirs — and, la-la, the American good fellows would again be able to walk the streets safely after dark.

There will be no refutation here of one part of Kelley's theme. His view of the court system as bungled is well documented. But we cannot agree that the courts' flawed participation in the criminal justice system is much more than a portion of the problem.

Actually, the courts deal only with a small percentage of America's crooks, because indignant cops like Kelley only nab a small percentage, and so herein is the real dilemma: the fundamental reason for rising crime is that the risk of apprehension is low. Contrary to police propaganda, crime does pay. Statistically, it pays handsomely.

Kelley's own FBI statistics, published in the Uniform Crime Reports, indicate that only 21 per cent of known serious crimes were cleared by arrest last year. This means police collared perpetrators in merely two of every ten of the 8,538,400 reported serious crimes. What's more, the FBI statistics actually give police more credit than they're due. Since there are probably twice as many crimes committed in the nation as reported to the Bureau, the number of them cleared is therefore considerably less than known statistics presume.

The conclusion then is sobering. The criminal rate of success is statistically staggering. A thug's chance of committing any given crime with impunity is now at least 80 per cent. Few legitimate enterprises can boast the same assurance. Police do arrest nine million people a year (for all crimes excluding traffic offenses) but at least that many and perhaps several times that many go free. Moreover, the criminal success rate seems to be rising. The clearance rate for known crimes was down one per cent last year. Even as regards violent crimes where police investigation is most intense, fewer and fewer crimes are being closed by apprehension.

Thus the implication here is arresting in itself. Cops who are blaming others for rising crime are, to a degree, guilty of it themselves.

The scope of this degree, perhaps, would be a more profitable subject for a Clarence Kelley address than endlessly repeated denunciations of the court system. Kelley is quick to boast that "never before has law enforcement been more capable, energetic, and responsive to its duties." Why then can't it solve more than two of ten known crimes? Why are more crooks free than doing penance? The courts can't be blamed for mishandling suspects they don't see.

It is true, certainly, that police are merely human. A force of Sherlocks could not fully cope with the extent of U.S. crime. For one thing, the nation has some 15 million laws on its books, many of them illogical, and so cops spend as much time chasing harmless whores and drunks as they do tracking society's genuine culprits.

Yet evasion of the truth helps nothing. Neither does simplistic, emotional finger-pointing. The fact is there is no magic solution to crime and neither the finest court system nor police force can make it disappear. A kid in school, a woman well fed, a man with a future — these people, and only they, can halt the criminal trend.

Deafness hard to overcome

It's hard for someone who can hear to imagine what it must be like to be deaf, particularly to be deaf from birth.

A group of parents of deaf children met last week with a group of deaf high school students — and watching how well the students had learned to cope with their handicap was a little awesome for someone who is used to hearing voices and noise.

Some of the students were totally deaf, while others used hearing aids and could hear some things. Some use sign language while they spoke, while others didn't.

But watching these high school kids brought to mind all the cliché words like "courage" and "spirit." One of the boys explained that he hadn't talked until he was 4 years old; a girl said that she found vocabulary hard, bringing to mind a question — can you imagine trying to read a word you've never heard, and never will hear?

The mothers, who have deaf children ranging in age from 9 to 12, met with the students in order to talk to them about the best way to educate a deaf child. The mothers are afraid that the educational program their children are receiving does not put enough emphasis on teaching the children to talk and allows them to rely too heavily on sign language.

THERE WERE SEVERAL things that became clear during the conversation. For one thing, the deaf students themselves did not agree on the best way to teach deaf children. In addition, it was clear that some deaf children need sign language much more than others. A couple of the students who had partial hearing did not use sign at all, while one girl could not make herself understood without sign language.

The session seemed, to some extent at least, to bear out the feeling that some of the mothers had that young deaf children must receive a lot of encouragement in order to learn to talk. At the same time, however, the students were emphatic in their belief that sign language was helpful, both in allowing them to communicate with other deaf people and in helping them to improve their vocabularies and language skills.

After the mothers toured Hershey High School and saw how the deaf children went to class with children who could hear, one of the mothers commented to me that the experience was depressing because "no matter how old they get, they're still deaf."

I don't know if that mother felt the same depression after she talked to the deaf children. But it seems to me the remark points out some of the difficulties involved with dealing with programs for the deaf.

THE FRIGHTENING thing about deafness for people with normal hearing, I suspect, is that it interferes with normal human communication. It can be embarrassing to talk to a deaf person and have to ask him to repeat words because he cannot speak plainly. And I'm sure a deaf person, who has no idea what a voice sounds like, finds talking a terrifying business, at least at first.

The mothers who have been complaining about the educational program for their children are, I suspect, acutely aware of those problems — and they want their children as "normal" as possible when it comes to dealing with people who can hear.

The problem arises when the parents and teachers of deaf children have to decide how to best help the children. By teaching them sign language, the teachers can assure that the child will be able to communicate with some people, but that means that people who don't know sign will have to make many accommodations.

The ideal solution would be if every deaf child could be taught to speak clearly and also to use sign language to help him learn new words and communicate with other deaf people. If the ideal is not attainable, then someone will have to decide what will give the child the best chance.

New Dwyer boss calm about job ahead

by WANDALYN RICE

The man who sits on the hottest seat in any Northwest suburban school seems calm about it — or as calm as any person would be under the circumstances.

Michael Smith is his name and he now sits in the chair once occupied by John Whipple before charges of child abuse and mismanagement of Dwyer School for emotionally disturbed children hit the headlines.

Smith, former assistant principal in Schaumburg Township Elementary Dist. 54, was hired to replace Whipple when the charges against Whipple reached the level of a county investigation.

"I missed all the publicity about the program because I was out of town all summer," Smith said recently while relaxing in his office. "It has been my own decision not to become too knowledgeable about that so I can make my own decisions. I have never met John Whipple and I don't know all the implications of the situation — and I don't think I care to."

The publicity Smith missed involved charges by Cook County School Supt. Richard Martwick that Whipple, a school psychologist, allowed child abuse at the school, harassed and threatened teachers and was unqualified for his job, among other things. Whipple is now involved in a protracted hearing before the State Teacher Certification Board in which he is fighting a recommendation from Martwick for revocation of the certificate which allows him to work in Illinois schools.

WHILE THAT FIGHT is going on, Smith, hired by the Northwest Education Cooperative governing board in September, has taken over the day-to-day operation of the Dwyer program. So far, he says, he has been pleased with the staff, about half of whom are new since last year, and has been working on administrative details, such as providing forms authorizing field trips.

MICHAEL SMITH is the new head of the Dwyer School program for emotionally disturbed children, a program that has come under fire because of charges made against former director John Whipple. Smith, who has been on the job since September, says he has a good "gut feeling" about the program and has tried to stay out of the controversy.

"The staff seems enthusiastic," he says. "I think they felt there was a crisis and just the fact that somebody new is in the situation gives them a chance to start over. There is a sense of relief. They were in limbo throughout the summer — this is a new beginning."

In the Dwyer elementary school program, housed in the Dwyer school building in Arlington Heights, there are now eight classroom teachers, seven teachers' aides, two psychologists, two social workers and two learning disabilities teachers working with about 70 students. The junior high program, housed at Hoffman Estates High School, has 40 students, four teachers, four aides, one psychologist and one social worker.

The junior high program has been the place where there has been the most trouble finding staff since the summer's controversy. Two of the teachers from the program last year were found to be uncertificated and were not hired this year. This week, the fourth junior high school teacher finally started work, allowing 10 students who had been scheduled in September for the program a chance to finally start school.

SMITH'S BACKGROUND includes work with emotionally disturbed children in Michigan and Virginia. In addition, he started an alternative high school program in Waukegan's school district, a program which, he says, "was an alternative to permanent expulsion."

In the Waukegan program, he says, he had 27 students who ranged "from boys who had committed murder to alumni of the Audi Home." He took a job in Dist. 54 after moving to Hoffman Estates and says he found the Dwyer job attractive because it got him back to his specialty and into school administration.

He says that much of his reaction to the Dwyer program is still "gut feeling and I feel very good about it." He says he can't point to specific changes he has made because "I don't know what went on before. I'm following the written procedures." One thing the staff is working on, he says, is improving the academic program available for children. Improvement of the academic program was one of the things planned even before the charges were made by Martwick.

ON THE CONTROVERSIAL issue of paddling students, Smith says the newly passed NEC policy allowing paddling only with parental consent and after consultation among all the people working with a child will be followed to the letter.

The problems created by the hearing on Whipple's certification have not disrupted the program, Smith says. When members of the staff have taken time off to be available to testify, he says, "We have been able to find substitutes for them."

Smith adds that while he is aware that "there are some bad feelings" stemming from the charges against Whipple he has tried to stay aloof from them. Also, he says, plans are being made for him to meet Whipple, who now heads the Center for Child and Family Studies, an outpatient center for children with learning and emotional problems, also operated by NEC.

Smith's voice betrays little uneasiness but some caution when he talks about the projected meeting with Whipple. "I will meet him as a professional meeting — another professional," he says. "Some people who know us both tell me I'm really going to like the guy and there are some things I'm going to have to find out from him because much of this program wasn't written down — it's in his head."

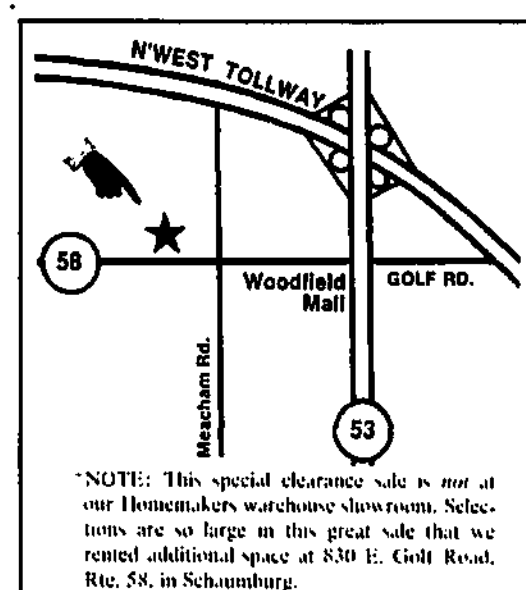

He adds that in looking at the program he has found "there are some very good things that John Whipple did. Some of the reports he put out and the policies he developed have impressed me. What's happened has been really unfortunate."

Heart disease most common reason given by those receiving benefits

Heart disease is the most common cause of disability among people getting Social Security disability payments.

Social Security pays monthly benefits to more than 2 million people under 65 who are severely disabled and cannot work for a year or more. Thirty-three per cent of them have severe heart disease, according to a recent study.

The study, conducted by the Social Security Administration, also showed that 16 per cent of the disabled people getting benefits have musculoskeletal disorders, such as arthritis, gout, and amputations. Ten per cent have mental disorders and another 10 per cent have neoplasms (abnormal tissue growth).

Other basic causes of disability among people getting Social Security payments include accidents, 8 per cent; respiratory disease, 7 per cent, and disorders of the nervous system and sense organs, 6 per cent.

Many people who have heart disease and other impairments can and do work. Social Security disability benefits are paid to severely disabled people whose impairment prevents them from working.

The average Social Security payments to a disabled worker is now $205 a month. Monthly checks also go to more than 1.5 million dependents of disabled workers. In selected cases, social security helps pay for vocational rehabilitation of disabled workers.

For more information about disability benefits, get in touch with your Arlington Heights Social Security Office, 120 W. Eastman, Arlington Heights. Phone 255-7512, toll free.

How many Social Security credits can a person earn in a year?

A person can earn 4 credits a year towards getting social security benefits. In nonagricultural work he gets one credit for each quarter of the year he earns at least $50 from one employer. In agricultural work he gets one credit for each $100 earned from one employer. A self-employed person gets 4 credits if he has a net profit of not less than $400 for the year.

Cross country finals at Busse Woods

Can any team catch Fremd in league run?

by AIT NUGALIAN

Cross Country Editor

When it comes right down to it, the Mid-Suburban League cross country conference meet will be decided the moment the Fremd team bus rolls up to the curb at Busse Woods in Elk Grove today.

The consensus of MSL coaches seems to be that if the Vikings of coach Ron Menely can get to the meet on time (4:30 p.m.), they'll win. Even Menely concedes it would be a monumental upset if a team other than his own captured the first-place trophy.

"We're not overconfident," the Fremd coach said. "We're just going to go out and run the best race we can and not take anything for granted."

"But only three guys in the league have broken into our top five all year,"

Menely continued, "so if we run to form, we should win it."

Fremd's record has indeed been sensational this season — undefeated in conference and nonconference dual meets and unbeaten in invitationals. The top five Vikings — Wil Fieldhouse, Paul Kinyon, Dave Scott, Jim Galls and John Flota — have been running as a unit all year. And now, two others, Kevin Richardson and Dan Tischler, have shown that they can run near the top.

"We've been running much better the last couple weeks," said Menely. "Every boy improved his time by at least a minute or a minute and a half at Libertyville last week. We're coming along fine, our attitude is good, and we haven't even reached our peak yet."

So if there is a coach in the MSL who thinks his squad can prevent Fremd from successfully defending its thirteenth title, he isn't talking about it.

"No one is going to be able to touch Fremd," said Forest View coach Bill Mohrmann. "They've got a heck of a program — you have to give them credit."

Hersey coach Larry Travis agreed. "Fremd is going to be tough to touch in the state meet," he emphasized.

"I don't think Fremd can be beaten," ventured Joe Johnson, head coach at Palatine.

As a matter of fact, since almost the first week of the dual meet season, the MSL coaches have been keeping a very low profile, all the while pointing out that there was a pretty hot race for the league's second-place berth.

And that's what it comes down to today at Busse Woods. The big question on everybody's lips is: Who will assume the position of first runnerup behind Fremd?

"Any one of six or seven teams could take second place," said Prospect coach Joe Wanner. "I haven't ruled ourselves out of it, either."

The Knights are just one of several teams that will be chasing Fremd around the three-mile course in Elk Grove. Prospect has been coming on strong lately, getting good performances from sophomores Pat White and Matt Lawson. Wanner is also getting good efforts from seniors Rich Podgorny and Greg Tobiasz.

If there is a favorite for second place, it might be the Conant harriers. The Cougars appear to have the strongest trio of runners aside from Fremd.

"It'll be a good battle for second," said Johnson. "But Conant is probably the favorite with their 11-1 dual record. They lost only to Fremd."

Conant's top three — Mark Kaufman, Dave Elderkin and Mike Moran — seem to be on the upswing following a midseason slump brought on by illness. With a good performance from fourth man Pat Hagan, the Cougars are a definite threat — for second.

"I would be steering my kids wrong if I told them they could go out and win," said Conant coach Jack Ary. "We just don't have the depth. But we want to protect our second-place standing."

Palatine, 10-2 in league duels, Hersey (9-3), Forest View (8-4) and Wheeling (6-6) are also good bets to challenge for that number-two spot, along with Prospect and a surprising Hoffman Estates crew that finished the MSL season at 7-5 without a senior on the squad.

Johnson's Palatine Pirates are riding the crest of fine performances by Jim Shaffer, Carl Kiewert, Pete Kearns, and freshman Chuck Elliott. With soph Tony Vargas running well, the Pirates will make their presence felt today.

Two of the top individuals in the conference are Wheeling's Augie Ziccarelli and Hersey's Jay McCarthy. Both will be key ingredients in their team's chances for second place.

Ziccarelli was defeated only three times in league duels and he may represent the strongest challenge to Fremd's Fieldhouse for top individual honors.

McCarthy, on the other hand, has won only twice this year, but he has been coming on strong of late, and he too might give Fieldhouse a run for his money.

Forest View's Darryl Robinson, with three dual victories this fall, will lead his Falcon teammates, along with mate Tony Hess. The sophomore Robinson, like Fieldhouse and Ziccarelli, has shattered a number of course and school records during a very successful season.

The Hoffman Estates team coached by Jim Swift, will be running in the varsity race for the first time. The school is just two years old, but already they have enjoyed much success in cross country. Led by juniors Sam Cox, Dave Porzel, Steve Lind and Ed Elliott, and soph Kevin Rooney, the Hawks might take wing today.

When it comes to the individual title, Fieldhouse's name is most prominent. Among those hoping to run with the Fremd senior, besides Kaufman, Ziccarelli, McCarthy, Robinson, is Fieldhouse's senior teammate Paul Kinyon, who has been overshadowed much of the year.

"I really think Kinyon is the second-best runner in the league," said Viking coach Menely.

For that matter, it might not be a mind-shattering surprise to anyone should Fremd take the first five spots. But that's what makes a horse race.

SHADES OF AUTUMN. The Mid-Suburban League's cross country meet will be held today at Busse Woods beginning at 4:30. The Fremd Vikings will be trying to defend their conference title and 12 other teams will be vying for the second spot. Fremd ranks up among the state's top teams.

Same old story...Fire beaten, 27-0

Special to The Herald

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (Oct. 16) — Unable to capitalize on their only deep offensive penetrations, the Chicago Fire lost to a better football team here tonight, rubbing more dirt into their waning hopes for a World Football League wildcard playoff berth.

The Charlotte Hornets delighted a near capacity crowd at Veterans Legion Field, about 23,000 fans, with a 27-0 shutout after leading by just one touchdown at halftime.

It was the seventh straight loss for despondent Chicago, now 7-0, which has dropped nine of its past 12 games. The Fire operated here without full services from running backs Cyril Pinder and Leroy Kelly who played sparingly.

Reggie Sanderson started for Kelly who didn't appear until briefly in the second half. Sanderson rushed well but fumbled twice inside the Hornets' 40-yard line, killing Fire efforts in the first and third quarters.

Kelly was sidelined with a hamstring muscle pull. Chicago didn't further endanger his health after Charlotte took a 19-0 lead through three quarters.

Pinder started at running back with Sanderson but was out more than in after coming up with an apparent shoulder injury in the second period. Bill Rudder substituted.

Before gametime, Hornets' owner Upton Bell announced his club would play the game under protest if Chicago utilized quarterback Bubba Wyche, picked up from the now defunct Detroit Wheels.

The WFL has repeatedly pushed back drafts to reallocate players from the dead Detroit and Jacksonville franchises. So the Fire moved to acquire Wyche, seventh leading passer in the league despite playing on its worst team. That move didn't impress Bell.

Wyche entered the game for Bill Cappelman on Chicago's fifth offensive series. He worked until the fourth period when the Fire's pass blocking broke down and Cappelman returned to face the Hornets.

It was scoreless after one period although Chicago had seven first downs at one point when Charlotte had run just six offensive plays.

Basically behind Sanderson who rushed nine, seven, 14 and two yards, Chicago reached Charlotte's six-yard line on its second possession. A 15-yard illegal receiver penalty backed the Fire up. Allen Watson came on to miss a 38-yard field goal.

Don Highsmith punched in from two yards out early in the second quarter, giving Charlotte an 8-0 lead when Tom Sherman passed to George Sauer for the action point.

Wyche nearly tied the game near halftime, completing passes to Rudder (32 yards) and Mike Reppnd (43 yards) on the second period's last plays. Reppnd was hauled down at Charlotte's two-yard line by Jere Brown and Larry Shears, ending the half. Already, Wyche was five-for-10 passing with 124 yards.

Charlotte began icing its victory with Highsmith's second TD, a 15-yard option sweep five plays into the third period.

That followed his 31-yard gallop on the same pattern one down earlier.

Identical 26-yard punts from Chuck Ramsey preceded the Hornets' last two scores. The first, coupled with an interference call, gave the Hornets third quarter possession on Chicago's 21. Pete Rejecki kicked a 40-yard field goal as Charlotte led, 19-0.

In the fourth period, Ramsey booted 26 yards to the Fire's 44. Highsmith and substitute quarterback Brian Dowling raced 13 yards each before Dave Richards went 15 yards on an end around to Chicago's three. Ed White scored with Dowling's next handoff.

One of Chicago's few bright spots was wide receiver Lonnie Crittenden who unofficially caught 10 passes for 158 yards. The Fire also employed a new tight end in Jim Kennedy, released by the Washington Redskins.

The Fire returns to Soldier Field against Hawaii next week, its final home appearance of a season that began with great hopes but will apparently end in ashes.

by DOROTHY OLIVER

"I didn't know what it meant to sit in the back of the bus until I became a woman interested in girls' athletics and asked to sit up front," Dorothy McIntyre, assistant to the executive secretary for Girls Interscholastic Sports of the Minnesota High School League, told Illinois principals Wednesday.

"I was told girls should play on and use facilities discarded by the boys," she continued in her address to the Illinois High School Association and Illinois Principals Association.

Miss McIntyre, the principal speaker Wednesday at Arlington Park Towers, said the pendulum is bringing girls athletics back into the school program. Administrators, school board members and coaches are reacting to the demand for girls athletics from a number of perspectives, however, she said.

"Some take the perspective that they'll soon be gone and then we can get things back to normal," said Miss McIntyre.

Others, she continued, view girls athletics as a wrecking ball "coming in to destroy everything we've got going on. They as much as say, 'You don't expect us to ruin a good boys program for girls athletics, do you?'"

A third group will take the time to study the need for a program and eventually make necessary changes, she said.

"You as principals have a difficult decision to make. I believe you should study athletics programs for equal opportunity for all students, make the changes and set a timetable for implementation."

Dorothy McIntyre

"You need to help teachers, students and the community to understand your program; then go about enlisting their support. If you are fortunate it will mean girls will be able to enjoy all the facilities of your school," she said.

Miss McIntyre pointed out that federal law, under the Title IX provision, specifically defines how discrimination must be eliminated in athletics on the secondary level. "We are seeing a 1974 demand for equality and involvement."

Administrators should be able to see the other side, understand what girls want from an athletic program by seeing things through their eyes, she added.

The Minnesota state association had a report developed on the elimination of sex bias in education as one of the first steps in developing athletic programs for girls. "The association has one premise — that students of each sex must be given the opportunity of equal status," she said.

Diminutive Ms. smashes sports broadcasting barriers

Let me jog your memory a bit.

Two Sundays ago, thanks to a generous man who bought up the remaining Bear tickets, CBS-TV aired the Chicago-New Orleans football game. Remember the woman who joined announcer Brent Musburger and color man Johnny Sauer?

It was Jane Chastain.

The following Monday some of the office's male sports buffs stopped by the can do that. She was just a token to get women to watch the game."

Having been familiar with Jane's work before, I found myself trying to shoot down these chauvinists. Since they didn't come back with any further remarks, maybe it worked. But it left me wondering how many other people, both men and women, came away with a bad impression of her.

Being the third person in the broadcast booth is a difficult assignment. If you remember those early Monday night football games several years ago, the famed trio had problems with everyone wanting to talk at once.

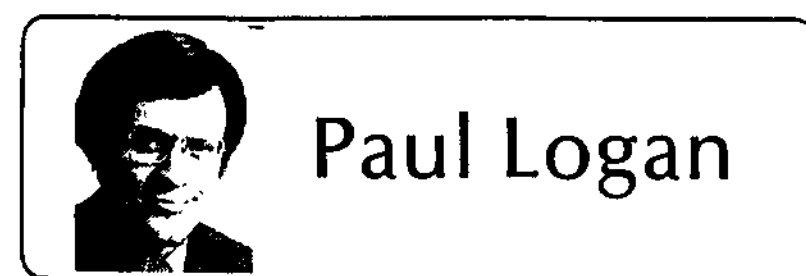

That was Jane's predicament. She tried to be low key because Sauer was expected to do most of the color and Musburger was to handle the play-by-play.

Once in a while she had a chance to ask typical fan questions. One such time she asked this question of the new timing rule that allows just two outside players to go down field before the ball is kicked:

"How do you think these interior linemen decide when to go? Do they do it with the sound of the foot on the ball or do they do it on a count?"

"To me that's not a dumb question," said Jane. "He's the expert. It's better to let him comment."

Jane doesn't ask dumb questions because she's a pro herself. This is her 13th year doing television sports. And she considers it "my lucky 13th year" because she was recently hired by CBS as a national sports reporter.

She made her national network debut the day before the Bear game as the color person with Musburger at the Brunswick World Open bowling tournament.

"I practically lived with Shirley Garmes (former Palatine resident), a member of the hall of fame, for three or four days," said Jane, who the Herald finally reached for an interview late last week in Denver. Jane, who lives in Florida, was out there for last Sunday's Bronco game.

"The night before that bowling tournament, I turned off the lights in the pressroom at the bowling center at 3 a.m. I had sat there and had watched all the girls until the finalists had been determined. Then I typed up sheets on each of the girls — everything I could remember about them because I wanted to be sure that I had it in my mind."

Those who watched that show may have made the same mistake I made. Having turned it on late, I thought the woman doing the color commentary was a pro bowler who had failed to make the playoffs. Jane was that good.

Since she's only 5-foot-2 1/2, she burned herself out with all the homework she did before the tourney. Then she was asked to help out on the Bear telecast the next day.

The petite brunette admitted that she was "wiped out from bowling." Nevertheless, she was told by CBS to work the Bear game the following day, but she hadn't had the time to prepare much for the telecast.

"I really wasn't that pleased," she said of her Bear-Saints debut. "I wasn't really too happy to be on that game, truthfully. That's not because football's not my favorite sport, because it is. The reason was that being in Miami the last five years, I have been seeing mostly AFC teams. Now I'll be with the NFC and I'm really excited about it."

You might say this 30-year-old woman pioneer in sports broadcasting got her first break because she was a tomboy with "huck teeth so bad that . . . I couldn't close my mouth." Her parents sent her to modeling school "to get over the awkward stage."

"She'll never be a model, but we'll take her for improvement." I guess that was my first challenge," said Jane, who was first discriminated against for being smaller than average.

Hard work brought success. A success led to commercials. Eventually, a hometown (Atlanta) TV station picked her to make football predictions. "It was kind of a gimmicky thing. I guess they decided to do it as a lark, but the ratings the night I was on doubled. I guess it was the right thing at the right time."

If it was a gimmick, it didn't turn out that way. Instead, it proved a golden opportunity for Jane, an only child who grew up "loving the out-of-doors and competition. I guess my dad always wanted a boy."

Doing more than was asked of her and constantly working to better herself in the industry, she finally was allowed to do sports shows on the weekends "at 11 o'clock when nobody else wanted to work."

Her experience led her to another television and radio sports job at Raleigh, N.C. After "almost killing myself there" with many varied shows each week, she moved up to Miami's CBS affiliate to anchor noon sports and filling in for the regular sports anchorman in the evenings.

Along the way, she became — as far as she knows — the first woman that did sports broadcasting. She's definitely the first to work national telecasts for a major network. Just as minority groups have had a tough time breaking the barriers, I had to wonder if she experienced this in breaking into a formerly all-male occupation.

"I've always been told you can't do this BECAUSE," said Jane. "Which has always been just another challenge. I guess when you really prove to people that you really are serious and that you're really willing to work, the barriers fall down."

She's not a radical feminist who's out to change the world, but she's helping to do it just the same. Her goal has been "just to prove that I can make it with the network. Working with the network has been a long time ambition of mine."

You'll be seeing her on upcoming broadcasts dealing with tennis, football and basketball. Once male chauvinists have seen that she has expertise in many sports, they'll accept her and respect her.

When you've been blessed with both knowledge and good looks, you can't Ms.

Jane Chastain

sports department to comment on the game. A couple also commented about Jane. They went something like this:

"Did you hear that WOMAN on the Bear game? All she said was 'Isn't the view of the lake from Soldier Field something?' Or 'What a magnificent skyline Chicago has.' She sure doesn't know much about football."

"Yeah — all she did was read off the scores from around the league. Anybody

Highlights in Mount Prospect Midget Football play

Celtics 6, Cardinals 0
The middle of the Colt line (Bruce Shaffer, Jerry Ferguson and Mike Polizzi) opened holes for hard running backs Tom Conlin and Dave Anderson. Jeff Meyers passed to Bill Zahack to tie the score in the 2nd quarter. Safety John Lenzak, Don May and Kevin Jacobs did a terrific job as the Cardinals continually filled the air with passes.

Jeff Meyers' 40 yard pass reception from Steve Weissenstein scored the Cardinal TD in the 2nd quarter. Offensively, ends Mike Skow and John Peterson ran well after pass receptions from Weissenstein. Kevin Keady ran tough on sweeps. Brian Gwynn, Mickey Reder and Brett Blaney were excellent blockers. Stewart Oswald and Scott Kroschel intercepted three passes between them. Mike Fleischer, Tom Brothers, Adam Girsch, Bob Rebsamen and Matt Deherly played an excellent defensive game.

A strong offensive effort was put forth by Parker, Steve Brucki and Jeff Enkelking. Jack Pahl's alertness gave the Packers a new hope when he picked up a Bear fumble and outran everyone for a 73 yard TD. Jeff Enkelking broke into the end zone for the extra point. Packers held the lead until the last minutes of the game, when the defensive unit wore down, after an outstanding effort the entire game.

Juniors Division
Jets 11, Eagles 7
The Jets defense went to work early in the 1st quarter as John Koepke retrieved an enemy punt and dove in from the five yard line for six points. Kicker Dave Gill added the two point conversion. Offensive blocking was excellent from Mike Money, Angelo Damiano and Mike Johnson. Mike Lescavage tallied the 2nd TD on a two and sweep. Steve Smith, Jim Vlach and Dave O'Connell were great on defense. Mike Haffertep had a great interception and Tom Pravit, Jeff Koepke and Mike Kellerman were hard-hitting blockers.

An Eagle drive of 54 yards behind the blocking of John Staher, Corey Douglas, John Waters, Bob Fisher and Bob McKenney opened good holes for the running by Pat Ruane and Doug Wolff, ending in a two yard TD by Paul Bateman. Steve Prischel scored the extra point on a pass from Bob Holloway. Learning the Eagles in defensive points were Dave McGee, Bob Patterson, Mike Hirschfeld, Mark Zielinski and Brad Kay.

Steelers 13, 49ers 12
The Steelers squeaked by a determined 49ers team to remain undefeated. Pat Toepper scored the first TD on a dazzling 62 yard run. Steve Schurr scored again on an end run. Mike Martinski scored the all important extra point. The strong defense was led by Don Junin, Quirk, Kurnat, Flickinger and Schnelder. Offensively, John Ford, Tod Lowry, Don Fricone and Randy McLeod gained good yardage for their units.

The 49ers tied the score in the first quarter with an 18 yard pass from Jim Neugebauer to John Magnus. Playing a determined defensive game were Steve Engel, Mark Szymanski, Jim Neugebauer, Scott Francis, John Magnus, Bill Moran and Paul Cantieri.

Opposition blockers were recovered by Scott Francis, Dave Turman and Steve Engel. Jim Neugebauer and Mark Szymanski had pass interceptions. Scoring early in the 4th quarter on a 18 yard run by Mark Szymanski, the 49ers elected to go for the lead with a two point conversion, but fell short when the attempted kick was partially blocked.

Falcons 18, Redskins 6
The fighting Falcons fought their way back after a 6-6 tie at halftime to beat the Redskins. Bobby Dixon's 50 yard scamper gave the Falcons the tying score at halftime. Tom Watzke powered his way 10 yards on a keeper for paydirt. Miklos Kurovacz intercepted an opponent's aerial and scooted 33 yards for the TD. Mike O'Malley, Gene Thiel, Tim Ellis and Steve Krasnowich were tough on defense.

The Redskins' offense was led by Steve Thompson with the running and blocking of Doug Herbold, Paul Weissenstein and Jeff Harlow and the line play of Mike Baker, Brian Shay and Jim Heiler. The Falcons were in their own territory most of the game. FB Paul Weissenstein scored the only TD on a one yard plunge. Tough on defense were Billy Schmitz, Jesse McCormick, Greg Michalis and Wally Cichon.

Rams 31, Vikings 7
Rams offense sparked as Dan Korddeck put a QB snap for a six yard score. FB Dave Cusack scored on three yards down the middle. Ang. Sacramento tallied on a 15 yard power play. Mike Holmke scored on three yards down the middle, and on a 73 yard interception. Jeff Zander was credit with the extra point. Jeff Zander and Jim Pappas had fumble recoveries. Zander and Dave Korddeck blocked two punts, and Holmke intercepted two passes.

Viking QB Jerry Martin scored the TD on a 12 yard run. Tough defensive players Pat Carver, Carl Kotelka, Greg Granier, Jim Laver, Dwayne Denzinger and Jay Nitch all played outstanding games.

Chiefs 11, Raiders 6
Mike Denner scored on two passes for the Chiefs, and Mike Matella scored by P.A.T. Denner's TD in the 4th was the highlight of a strong drive. Tim Maloney's hard running behind the blocks by Kevin Maloney, Angelo Tiesi and Gus Ventrone kept the Chiefs a constant threat. Defense's standouts were Scott Lapovich, Mike Hylwell, Randy Trachman and Tim Vall.

The Chiefs, behind some fine blocking and all-around play, scored the Raiders their first defeat of the season. Louie by six points at halftime, the Raiders came back and tied the game via an Anderson-Stathakis pass play. In the final period, the Raiders threatened to tie again, and came within a few yards of a score.

Cowboys 36, Browns 0
Cowboy Mike Schmidt scored three times, and Mike Kolls tallied the fourth TD on a three yard plunge. The Cowboy offense was highlighted by running backs Jeff Petrait, Joe Johnson, Mike Kolls, and Mike Schmidt, with solid line blocking from Ron Politz, Bill Wells, Matt Belgeri, Orson Browder and Jim Chipchase. The defense was led by Tom Bray, Jeff Bour, Steve Rudnick, John Frum, Matt Bulaw, Mike Conlin and Tom Bohl.

A rugged brown offense was led by Steve Willie, Jim Brown, Frank Tanney and Mike Willie. Jim Brown had a 35 yard run in the 2nd quarter. A tough defense was led by Frank Kavanagh, but couldn't hold the Cowboy offensive machine. Jim Neidau, Tim Barrett and Jay Grear also played an excellent game.

Hoffman Boys Club
Scores from the Hoffman Estates Boys Club: Lancers 7, Hanover Park 6; Titans 27, Hanover Park 0; Crusaders 13, Melrose Park 0; Glenside 19, Trojans 0; Schaumburg 20, Colts 7.

John Draper and Nino DiGiullo did some very good blocking.

A tremendous defensive team effort led to the Spartans' TD and containment of the hard-hitting Bollermaker attack. Bob Grasse's punt block and Matt Burke's recovery on the Bollermaker nine yard line set up Mike Don-ner's one yard plunge after Bill Gubbe's eight yard drive. A hard charging line (Dan Boyles, Mike Schals, Grasse, Burke, Kevin Bolger and Bill Rehling) combined with sparkling stops

The fumble recovery by Gregg Schreiber in the first quarter was not enough to get the 49ers on the board. A good offensive effort was put forth by David O'Connor, Mike Stevens and Jeff Sauer. The defense was led by Mike Moran with good assistance from Jim Cole, Bill Hertzel and John Neme.

Bollermakers 6, Spartans 6
Ken Iwanaki scored on a 45 yard sweep on the last play in the first half for the Bollermaker score. Joe Burd, Brian Corry, Bill Scott and Roger Nelson carried the ball for extra yardage. Jerry Ruderman, Dan Golec, by the secondary (Mark Predovich, Dan Kilroy, Donner, Mark Blumstein and Gubbe) to keep the pressure on. Tough performances were also turned in by Rick Glaser and Gary O'Brien. Bolger was credited with a fumble recovery.

Hawkeyes 7, Badgers 6
Eddy Wallace caught a 10 yard pass from Eddie Cheatham and raced 20 yards for the only Hawkeye score. Ricky Lake scored the extra point, and had an excellent day, behind the blocking of Marty Langowski, Pete Zenter, Brian Newsum, Jeff Bak, Jim Blomdell, and Brian Hopkins, who blocked a punt. Defensive player of the day was Lance Kostur, whose saving tackle in the first quarter held the Badgers scoreless.

The Badger offense, behind the running of John Laansma, Jeff Francis and Pat Kliney had the ball down to the Hawkeyes two yard line, but could not score. "Red defense" led by John Nowacki, Pete Kretschmer, Jeff Walker, John Graham and Mike Scully held the powerful Hawkeye running attack in check. Andy Gertner and Tom McEnaney were credited with fumble recoveries.

Tigers 12, Buckeyes 6
The Tiger offensive line opened a hole, Czajka handed off to Jim Freko, and he ran 61 yards for the tally. Ed Czajka converted for the extra point. Freko took the ball again and ran 60 yards for the score. Sam Mangham led the Tiger defense, with help from T. Carlson, Canpin, Freko, R. Girard, Brett Gorgol, J. Hunyadi, K. Palsley, J. Paraguisid, J. Stanlak, J. Stapleton, R. Teufel and Bob Russell.

Jim Gibbons scored for the Buckeyes on a 68 yard pass from Mike Jachec. The Buckeyes gave all they had in the battle for second place. The defensive line led by Gordon Miller, Chuck Hersey, John Vogt, Brad Schaffer, Tom Gunderson and Scott Brice was superb all afternoon. Bill Schroll led the offense in rushing. Dave Jachec passed for over 100 yards for the second time this season. Jachec and Vogt both recovered Tiger fumbles.

Wolverines 12, Illini 6
The Wolverine offense was highlighted by running backs Bill Cavanaugh, Jim Wilcox, Jim Foley and John Sersen. A 20 yard pass reception was made by Jay Kozni. Dave Kozal scored on a sneak and again on an end run. The "Wolverines" showed a solid defense spearheaded by Jim Bouc, Bill Steinmetz, Dave Boyle, Joe Hunkston, Paul Daley, Scott Vrabie and Len Lanner.

The Illini scored on an off tackle play by Chris Boyde, set up by a pass from Hugh Nickel to Todd Mathias. Defensive standouts were Jim Vile, Paul Johnson, Scott Moehling and Bob Mathias. Opening holes for the Illini backs with fine blocking were Leo Kilroy, Mike Schals, Grasse, Burke, Kevin Bolger and Bill Rehling) combined with sparkling stops

Hoodlars 20, Wildcats 6
The good leadership of Brian Krause led the Hoodlars to a decisive victory. Krause scored TDs in the 1st and 3rd quarters. Grant Puchs scored the final TD. Brad Markowski played a tough defensive game. Ricky Corso had a fumble recovery. Louis Haas, George Limporis and Arthur Brand made several good tackles on the tough defense.

Offensively, the Hoodlars had Mark Vartano and John Jennings running strong in the backfield, as well as John Altenbern, Brian Mitato and Joe Allegretti. Mike Tangney and Brian Allegretti played a good, tough game. Randy Paff intercepted a pass and Billy Ney broke one up, almost intercepting.

PALATINE CELTIC SOCCER

Juniors

Hellpina 2, Alligators 1

The undermanned Alligators put up a good fight and made one goal by Steve Sier on an assist by Tom Dahlborn. The Hellpina trailed 1-0 at the half, but dominated the second half, allowing the Green no shots on goal. Both their tallies were by Erik Peterson (assisted by Mark Roe and Gary Seydler). The improved play by the Red brothers and Jeff Theders helped out a real team effort.

Sharks 2, Monkeys 1

The Monkeys took their second defeat of the season, in spite of superb play from Steve Peterson, at the hands of Priver's Sharks, on two goals by Tom Kearns — one on an assist by Kevin Rudasnan and the second on the rebound off a shot by Mike Jennings. Substitutes Coach McElman was amazed, as they were substitute Coach McKenna on the only other occasion that the Monkeys lost.

INTERMEDIATES

Lions 2, Wildcats 1

Lion John Jennings led the scoring in this match with two, and Paul Exger followed with one. Outstanding support came from Edwards Matt Helderer, John Byrne and Robby Burns. Matt Burgess and Erik Bo Hansen shared Cat scoring honors and Mike Deutschmann, Martin Kruz, and Bo Bergstrom were cited by Coach Drex for superior field play.

Panthers 1, Cheetahs 0

The Cheetahs looked good — and — Jeff Selzer and Tom Brunk — as did the whole team, but the enemy goal eluded them. For the Panthers, Jeff Moore booted in the only tally of the game. Little Lange and Jim Martin were very strong at halfback, and goalie Joe Cole saved his own shutout by stopping a penalty kick.

Gladiators 1, Cheetahs 1

This match was a real treat for soccer aficionados as the advantage moved up and down the field and the suspense never died. Cougar Chris Harding scored first followed by Cheetah Greg Gliden. Both coaches commended their goalies. Tim Ryan and Jim Feicht, while Coach Hubler cited Billy May for excellent work at halfback and Coach Renie cited Steve Smith, Michael Diamond, Scott Hamilton, and C. C. Smith for all around good field play.

Lions 3, Wildcats 1

The Lions tallied were by John Jennings, Billy Murphy, and Tom Chernick, and the Wildcat goal was booted in by Martin Kruz on an assist by Erik Hollander.

SENIORS

Head Runners 1, Eagles 0

The Eagle defense, starting Mark Capello and Tim Conidine, was edged out only once, by Mark Brum on an assist by Steve Sier. The Green defense, on the other hand, starting Tom Meyer at fullback and Dan Wendel in goal, kept their act untouched by opposition goals.

Bluejays 5, Owls 1

Red hot Bluejay Jerry Nury dominated the game with four goals (one on a penalty kick) and one assist. Chris Braun made one tally, and Bob Taylor and Greg Braun were credited with assists. Brad Byker made the lone Owl score.

Eagles 2, Cardinals 0

Mike Oswald got his first shutout of the season as the Eagles got their first win on goals by Charlie Marland (assisted by Mike Johnson) and Peter Mahmann (assisted by Brian O'Callahan). Coach Hirschfeld cited the whole team for their work and Stu Smith for his performance at right wing.

Head Runners 2, Blackhawk 1

In the wettest, soggiest, muddiest game of the season, the Runners won on goals by Dave Miller (assisted by Bill Landene and Tom Meyer) and Bob Gudney (assisted by Chris Collins). The Blackhawk defense looked good and worked hard, particularly halfback Paul Cornwell and fullbacks Mike Chambers and Mike McKenna. Their only goal was by Tom Cornwell.

GLADIATORS

Head Runners 2, Morning Glories 0

The Glory wings, Mary Sheller and Laura Wolter, fighting gamely, could not reverse the Dragon tide led by Sue Fraser with two goals, and Patty Nowakowski, Kim Felix and Nancy Melberg with one each.

Cardinals 2, Impatiens 0

The Impatiens played well in the first half, but faded in the second. Although Lisa Conover was particularly good in defense. On the Cardinal side, fullbacks Joanne McElman and Karen Olson played strongly — even against the wind as did Lisa Renate at center half. Debbie Wynn at inside forward, Jennifer Joll and Sharron Scipione — both of whom scored.

SENIORS

Runers 2, Blue Hells 0

The usual excitement prevailed as these two topnotch teams fought down to the wire. The Hell defense was sparked by Sheila Ulender,

Hoffman Estates PeeWee hockey

Goals by Mark Roselli and Tony Cardona couldn't prevent the Des Plaines Blues from dropping their opener to Hoffman Estates 4-2 in PeeWee hockey. The two clubs will have a rematch Oct. 20.

Case Ford defeated Kunkel Dealers behind the goaltending of Fred Ruffalo and the hat trick of Steve Gutz. The Case Ford defense allowed only six shots on goal.

Case Ford came out on the short end of a 5-0 score in their second game of the season, this one against First National Bank. The bankers were led by Tony Ligetta's four goals.

Bison, Vikings share title in frosh-soph golf

Balance was the watchword at Buffalo Grove Golf Club Tuesday as Bob Hoffman, Mark Othick, Dave Wilhelm and Doug Warman all fashioned scores in the mid-80s to steer Buffalo Grove to Mid-Suburban League frosh-soph tournament honors and a share of the overall golf championship.

The baby Bison came up with a 340 composite to thunder past Fremd at the Rolling Meadows-hosted gathering. Buffalo Grove and the Vikings both subsequently shot past favored Prospect to gain a half slice of the league trophy.

The Knights had headed into the meet possessing a circuit leading 11-1 dual meet slate. The Vikes were 10-2 in second position and the Bison 9-3 in third.

Hoffman came in at 83, two away from medalist honors over the par 72 layout. His support included 85s from Othick and Wilhelm and an 87 from Warman. Fremd, meanwhile, had their own 83 shooter in Darryl Mueller and added an 84 from Scott Thorne, an 88 from Dave Witt and a 92 from Mike Quaranta to total out at 353.

Two other squads — Hoffman Estates and Arlington — also squeezed in past the Knights and contributed to their capitulation. The Hawks, with an 85 from Bob Demont and an 86 out of Jeff Curtin hit 353, and the Cardinals, paced by Jeff Gutowski's 84, finished at 354.

Then came the Knights, another stroke back. Bunched in another few shots behind were Forest View (358), Rolling Meadows (361) and Conant (361).

In the final overall standings it was Hoffman snaring fourth, the Cards fifth, Meadows sixth and the Falcons seventh.

Forest View also fielded the top individual performer in Don DeGrande. His 81 led a medalist list that had Hoffman tied with Mueller for second while Thorne and Gutowski deadlocked in fourth place.

Fitton, Kay pace Lions to win in league meet

Mike Fitton and Greg Kay stormed over the familiar environs of Rob Roy Tuesday, directing their St. Viator club to an easy romp past three other Suburban Catholic North entries for 1974 conference honors.

Unlike most other leagues, the Suburban Catholic places no weight on dual meets and total emphasis on the conference gathering. Coach Ken Peck's Lions totaled out at 310 to win handily over Carmel (328), Notre Dame (343) and St. Patrick (351).

Fitton headed up the local barrage with a 74, good for first place medalist honors. Kay was just one stroke back and came in second alone in the individual race.

Other Viator scorers were Tim Brennan at 80 and Mike Allare at 81. The fifth Lion entry, Jim Trausch, registered an 83.

To round out a perfect day, St. Viator also breezed to a win over two other schools for the frosh-soph title. They came in at 330 to 341 for the Corsairs and 362 for the Dons.

Bob Cantieri was low Lion at 79 while Jack Patterson charted an 82, Tim Beatty at 84 and John Saxer an 87. The medalist blue ribbon at the soph level went to Mark Essler of Carmel with a 78.

TOP SHOT. Forest View's Cathy Rodeback was deadly accurate in Saturday's Mid-Suburban Conference archery meet at her school. Rodeback fired a 280 from 30 yards — tops among all archers that day.

However, she could only total 288 from 20 yards and lost the high series title by just two points to Gary Avischious, one of two boys in the meet. (Photo by Dom Najolia)

Wheeling, Hoffman Estates still perfect in gymnastics

Only two undefeated gymnastics teams remain at the halfway point in the season for Mid-Suburban Conference girls.

Hoffman Estates — the newest school in the league — and Wheeling — one of the older ones — are tied for first with 3-0 records. Hoffman kept its record perfect Tuesday evening with a convincing win over Buffalo Grove, 163.50 to 139.10. Meanwhile, Wheeling continued its winning streak with a victory over Fremd, 159.15 to 143.05.

In other action, here were the results: Arlington over Hersey, 160.10 to 142.20; Rolling Meadows over Schaumburg, 146.10 to 141.10; Conant over Forest View, 165.50 to 152.45; Prospect over Palatine, 152.00 to 143.90; and Elk Grove over Sacred Heart of Mary in a non-conference meet, 155.50 to 197.5.

Tonight's meets, beginning at 5:00, will have Buffalo Grove at Prospect, Hoffman Estates at Forest View, Elk Grove at Palatine, Hersey at Conant, Rolling Meadows at Arlington, Schaumburg at Wheeling and Fremd having a bye.

Hoffman Estates swept all first places behind the efforts of triple winner Linda Buddenbaum and double winner Karen Ewert. Buddenbaum had intermediate wins in floor exercise (7.70), balance beam (7.45) and vaulting (6.75). Ewert took beginning firsts in balance beam (7.40) and uneven bars (7.15).

The other intermediate winner for the Hawks was Pat Mendel in uneven bars (7.20). The remaining beginning winners were Cathy Logan in vaulting (6.10) and Laurie O'Toole in floor exercise (7.25).

Wheeling was paced by a pair of double winners — Marie Janness and Terry Goodman. Janness, competing in the intermediate events, took uneven bars (7.65) and vaulting (7.15). Goodman won beginning bars (7.75) and vaulting (6.25).

Bonnie Holthaus and Lisa Gerhardt were the other Wildcat winners. Holthaus won intermediate balance beam (7.10) and Gerhardt took beginning floor exercise (7.20).

Karen Bilsa was one of Fremd's two first-place finishers. She won intermediate floor exercise (7.45). Cathlynn Prislanger came through for the Vikings in beginning balance beam (7.45).

Five individual winners paced Arlington's victory over Hersey. Coming through for the Cardinals were Ellen Vikten in beginning beam (7.75), Laurie Campbell in beginning bars (7.65), Nancy Gripman in beginning floor exercise (7.25), Gaye Johnson in intermediate bars (6.80) and Brianna Wiebe in intermediate beam (6.30).

Hersey winners were Jennie Haberer in intermediate vaulting (7.65), Stephanie Blachof in beginning vaulting (7.40) and Debbie Holzkopf in intermediate floor exercise (7.35).

Rolling Meadows had an easy time of it against Schaumburg while rolling up seven firsts. Sharon Duffy paced the Mustangs with victories in two intermediate events — floor exercise (7.95) and balance beam (7.45).

Other Mustang victors were Chris Zezeana in beginning bars (6.60), Denise Weltmeyer in beginning beam (6.65), Chris Gallis in intermediate bars (6.60), Karen Binezano in beginning vaulting (5.75) and Denis Henning in intermediate vaulting (5.30).

Kathy Seelbach won beginning floor exercise for Schaumburg (6.50).

Conant also nearly swept the firsts against Forest View. The Cougars were led by Mary Tompkins — a winner in intermediate floor exercise (8.50) and uneven bars (7.95).

Accounting for Conant's other victories were Heidi Peterson in intermediate vaulting (7.8), Carol Moore in intermediate beam (7.75), Sue Pastor in beginning floor exercise (7.65), Eileen O'Toole in beginning beam (7.30) and Darleen Mitchell in beginning vaulting (6.95).

Coming through for Forest View's only win was Val Guastadisegni in beginning bars (7.05).

Six firsts helped lead Prospect over Palatine. Taking two wins for the Knights was Andrea Kohnke in intermediate beam (7.95) and floor exercise (7.35). Other Prospect champions were Carol Latimer in balance beam (7.70), Cathy Donna in beginning bars (7.40), Pam Wilkin in beginning floor exercise (7.35) and Nancy Barsch in beginning vaulting (5.85).

Palatine winners were Judy Gran in intermediate bars (8.05) and Sara Mickelson in intermediate vaulting (6.89).

The big winners for Elk Grove in its non-conference meet among intermediates were Pam Bona and Laurie Beaupre. Bona took bars (7.75) and vaulting (7.10) and Beaupre won beam (7.75) and floor exercise (7.30).

Jody Dixon and Sharon tied for the top effort by a Grenadier in beginning events with 6.90 for floor exercise.

Red Grange returns to Illinois Saturday

Anyone who misses Red Grange's return to the University of Illinois campus this weekend might have to wait a while for the next time — like about 40 years.

That's how long it has been since Grange last appeared in Champaign-Urbana. The occasion that time was homecoming, Oct. 13, 1934 and Grange brought the Illinois good fortune enough to defeat Ohio State 14-13, the only loss handed the Buckeyes that year.

The occasion this time is the Memorial Stadium Golden Anniversary-Red Grange Day game Saturday against Michigan State. Tickets still remain, but the Illinois are hoping Grange can both bring them luck and join the 4-1 1974 team in filling the stadium. The last time that was done was 1967 against Notre Dame.

The game this Saturday will mark 50 years and one day after Memorial Stadium was dedicated as one of the finest arenas in the nation. And if the day weren't important enough, Grange put it in the football record books.

The opponent on Oct. 18, 1924 was Michigan and the matchup was dramatic. The season before, the Wolverines and the Illinois had not met, but had tied for the conference title with identical 8-0 records. Both entered the 1924 game undefeated and untied. And two of the greatest individuals in the game, Grange of Illinois and Herb Steger of Michigan, and two of the greatest coaches, Bob Zuppke of Illinois and Fielding Yost of Michigan, would meet headon.

With the temperature in the 80's, Zuppke used some psychology. He ordered his Illinois to do something which had never been done before, play without the heavy wool outer stockings. When Yost protested and had the Illinois players checked for grease on their legs, history would have been made even without Grange's later feats.

Michigan, which had allowed only four touchdowns in the last two years, won the toss and cockily elected to kick. What followed was the greatest performance in the history of college football:

—Grange took the opening kickoff and returned it 95 yards for a touchdown.

—After a Michigan fumble, Grange took a handoff and rambled for 67 yards for his second TD.

—After another exchange used up a few minutes, the Galloping Ghost took another handoff and cut through the Wolverine defense for 56 yards and another score.

—With three minutes left in the first quarter Grange again wove his way through Michigan for 44 yards and a fourth touchdown.

In less than 12 minutes, the Illinois great had scored four touchdowns and literally single-handedly defeated one of the finest teams in the nation. He later ran for another score and passed for a sixth to make the final tally Illinois 39, Michigan 14.

But that was not Harold Edward Grange's only great game or even, some would argue, his greatest game. There was the contest against Pennsylvania in 1925 when he scored three touchdowns and gained 363 yards. Or the 1925 Chicago game when he had three TDs and 300 yards.

Even more amazing than all the sensational games is the absence of a poor or even mediocre contest. No one could be outstanding every Saturday for three years... no one but Red Grange.

In his three varsity seasons, 1923-24-25, Grange played 20 games. Only three times did he gain less than 100 yards on the ground, counting scrimmage runs and kick and punt returns (as was the common practice in those days). Only five times did he fail to score.

Elk Grove Community Football

In the 8-9 year old division of the Elk Grove Community football league the Packers and Eagles played to a 6-6 standoff. The Eagles scored first when Steve Siebold ran back a fumble 25 yards for a touchdown. The Packers tied it on John Hammers' 33 yard run.

In other 8-9 division play the Chiefs beat the Rams 20-6.

The Bears and Jets battled in 10-11 division action with the Bears taking a 32-13 decision. Bob Dickey scored two touchdowns for the Bears with Steve Hattler and Morgan Iach scoring one each for the Jets.

The Vikings trimmed the 49ers 15-12 in other 10-11 action. The Vikings opened scoring in the first period with Dan Harris scoring on an 18 yard run and Mike Keegan busting over from the four for his seventh touchdown of the year.

The 49ers got touchdowns from Keith Dry-and Don Janke. The Elk Grove Dolphins continued the winning tradition in Widget B by pummeling the Hanover Park Dolphins 33-7. Hanover Park took a 7-6 first quarter lead before the roof fell in on them with Elk Grove touchdowns being scored by Stormy Schriener, Mike Chen and Ken Reent.

In the Fox Valley Traveling league the Elk Grove Warriors stymied the Darien Sifters 19-7 while the Elk Grove Chiefs handled the Darien Hornets 33-6.

At Elk Grove Bowl

Russell Mossbarger led the Mixed Nuts league at the Elk Grove Bowl with a 607 series and a high game of 222. Art DeBartoli followed with a 205 game and a 567 series.

Outstanding series were bowled by Dick Hil-debrandt at 537 and Jim Nelson at 531. Deloras DeBartoli had a 231 game and 554 series followed by Ardell Bleatman at 290-466 and Karen Olson 187-463.

New system may provide power from natural steam

by LEROY POPE
NEW YORK — A new downwell pumping system invented by engineers of Sperry Rand Corp., could increase enormously the importance of natural steam for generating electricity.

Natural steam and underground boiling water capable of generating steam are found in many locations in more than 100 countries, and for years have been used to generate electricity. Recently, with the energy crisis, there has been a big surge in exploration for good geothermal areas. There are many in the United States, particularly in the western and Gulf states.

While much power is being produced from natural steam, getting the underground boiling water to the surface of the earth so it can be used poses major problems. The hot water usually is highly corrosive brine which can play havoc with pumping equipment, and the amount of energy required to bring the brine to the surface may almost equal its energy potential.

NOW, DR. WARREN McBee of the Sperry Research Center at Sudbury, Mass., has come up with a system easing both problems. The National Science Foundation has given Sperry a grant of more than $300,000 for its further development.

McBee said the Sperry invention utilizes the energy of the brine itself to pump it to the surface. A shaft of 10-inch corrosion resistant pipe is sunk into the brine deposit. A miniature boiler, turbine and pump, designed ingeniously to fit inside the pipe, are mounted near its bottom and fresh water is fed by gravity into this boiler. The natural boiling water converts the fresh water into steam, which drives the turbine and pumps the brine to the surface where it enters a heat exchanger. The heat extracted is then used to generate electricity.

The cooled brine is reinjected into the ground to prevent it from coming in contact with surface groundwater and polluting it.

Terhune new systems power coordinator

Terry L. Terhune, 401 Banbury Rd., Arlington Heights, has been appointed systems power coordinator by Commonwealth Edison Co.

In his new position, Terhune will be in charge of the Mid America Interpool Network (MAIN) power coordination center located near Lombard.

Terhune joined Edison shortly after graduating from Notre Dame University with an electrical engineering degree in 1967. He has held a variety of posts with the utility since that time.

Business today

The system is closed and that partially solves the corrosion problem by not allowing the brine to be flashed into steam at the surface. This greatly minimizes the precipitation of mineral solids from the brine that cause the corrosion of the equipment in conventional pumping systems.

IN A WAY, the Sperry system is a reversal of the Claude effect which produces energy in the form of low-pressure steam from the differences in temperature at the various depths of the sea. French scientist Georges Claude 45 years ago produced energy in usable amounts by bringing very cold water up by gravity in a shaft sunk 2,000 feet in the ocean and mixing it with the warm surface waters. Some oceanographers say the oceans contain enough potential low pressure steam energy in this form to supply all mankind's needs 200 times over.

Live natural steam that will come to the surface naturally is a relatively scarce source of geothermal energy, McBee said, but boiling underground brine is fairly plentiful. There is a known belt of such energy across most of the Gulf coast of the United States extending far out and 100 miles inland — conceivably a huge potential source of energy for the electric utility industry.

Canada's Christmas issues out Nov. 1

The Canada Post Office will release four Christmas stamps, in 6-, 8-, 10- and 15-cent denominations, on Nov. 1.

The adhesives feature reproductions of paintings by four Canadian artists: Jean Paul Lemieux (Nativity), Henri Masson (Skaters in Hull), Robert C. Todd (The Ice Cone, Montmorency Falls) and Clarence A. Gagnon (Village in the Laurentian Mountains).

The stamps will be printed in lithography by Ashlon-Potter Ltd. of Toronto and bear general tagging. There will be 50 stamps to a pane and marginal inscriptions, including the designers' names, appear on all four corners.

Collectors desiring first-day cancellations should send their requests to FDC/Christmas Stamps, Philatelic Service, Canada Post Office, Ottawa, Ont., Canada K1A 0B 5, including the proper remittance which is the cost of the stamps to be affixed plus a 15-cent service fee for each cover to be affixed with less than 50-cent postage. Your remittance should be by international bank draft payable to The Receiver General for Canada.

THE U.S. POSTAL Service will release a souvenir card Oct. 26 honoring EXFILMEX 74 UPU, the exhibition of the Mexican Federation of Philately at Mexico City.

U.S. and Mexican stamps of 1960, issued jointly to commemorate the 150th anniversary of Mexican Independence, are depicted on the card.

Cards are $1 each plus a 50-cent handling fee per order and are available from the Philatelic Sales Division, Washington, D.C. 20504.

Don't sell your silver coins. The futures market is far too bright to consider disposing of old silver. This is in response to hundreds of readers who have written to ask what they should do with their accumulation of discontinued United States silver coinage.

If you can possibly hold on to your silver dimes, quarters, half dollars and dollars for another year your profit will be much greater. Silver is bound to show a noticeable increase during the next eight months resulting in a larger yield than can be realized from today's market.

U.S. dimes contain .0723375 ounces of pure silver; quarters, .18084375 ounces; half dollars, .3616875 ounces, and dollars, .723375 ounces. As of July 24, silver was $5.165 per ounce, making the dime worth 0.37382 or 37 cents; quarters 0.93405 or 93 cents; half dollars 1.86908 or $1.87 and dollars 3.94480 or $3.99.

U.S. GOLD QUARTER EAGLES: All Quarter Eagles struck before 1834 are very rare in any grade or condition and are very popular with collectors. Any coins of these issues considered Extremely Fine or better should be considered a worthwhile, albeit long-term investment. However, don't expect a drastic price jump along with the more common dates, but rather a long, steady, upward growth.

The U.S. Quarter Eagle or $2.50 gold piece, was first struck in 1796 and after 1821 was issued fairly regularly until the series was discontinued in 1929. For a series with as many different dates and mint marks as the Quarter Eagle, it is altogether remarkable that only four of them have mintages of more than one million pieces (1,404,668 in 1853 being the largest issue).

The series is loaded with low-mintage coins, and yet many of them sell for relatively little because the series has never been widely popular with the specialized date collector, except possibly the Indian-head series from 1908 to 1929. It is probably the most underrated of all U.S. gold coin series, and it would take relatively little activity on the part of date collectors to boost their prices completely out of sight.

THE SERIES is full of short issues, coins with mintages less than 10,000, that sell for less than $300 to $400. In fact, many dates in the series, particularly in the 1880s and 1890s, have mintages of less than 5,000 pieces and yet catalog at ridiculously low levels.

In 1972, common-date Liberty-head Coronet Quarter Eagles experienced substantial price jumps, although not nearly as dramatic as those for gold dollars. Since January of 1973 Brilliant, Uncirculated specimens have increased better than 50 per cent while pieces in a lesser condition advanced roughly 25 per cent.

The difference in the percentage of increase accurately reflecting the difference in availability. Truly Uncirculated specimens of any date Liberty-head Quarter Eagle are really quite scarce.

The Indian-head series is very popular since it is possible to assemble a complete collection in Extremely Fine to About Uncirculated condition for around $1,000. This is by far the least-expensive series of U.S. gold coins to complete. The only scarce coin in the entire series being the 1911-D with a mintage of 55,680. The same coin is available in all grades less than Uncirculated but Uncirculated specimens are very rare and seldom offered for sale.

'Condo industry needs stiff regulation'

by ANNE SLAVICEK

A local condominium management consultant has appealed to the U. S. Senate to set minimum standards for condominium management and to protect the condominium purchaser with certified estimates of future operating and maintenance costs of the condominium building and grounds.

Robert A. Cagann who heads the firm of Robert A. Cagann and Associates, Arlington Heights, urged the Senate Subcommittee on Housing and Urban Affairs to set standards to protect the condominium purchaser. Cagann's firm specializes in management of condominium buildings and townhouses.

In testimony before the senate subcommittee, last week, Cagann asked that two proposed senate bills aimed at controlling condominium sales and conversion of existing apartment buildings to condominium units.

Among Cagann's numerous suggestions, he called for federal requirements that an independent third party clarify estimates of future operating and maintenance costs to condominium purchasers.

He also urged:

- Expansion and clarification of the portions of the legislation which deal with condominium management practices;
- Requirements that condominium declarations and other legal documents be worded not only to meet state laws but also to be practical for ongoing management of the condominium association;
- Regulations to insure there are adequate reserves built up for future repairs and replacements of commonly owned areas;
- Establishment on either the state or federal level of minimum criteria for persons engaging in condominium management.

"CERTAIN FLAGRANT VIOLATIONS of basic morality on the part of an isolated few in the home building industry have caused undue hardship to some unsuspecting condominium purchasers. It is my belief that the unscrupulous few who have flagrantly violated the precepts of moral ethics must be dealt with sternly and with dispatch," Cagann told the Senate subcommittee.

But not all condominium developers intentionally mislead buyers, he said.

"There are many honest and forthright developers, however, who have made unknowing mistakes because they have developed condominiums under the same concepts as single-family, detached dwellings and multi-family apartment rental projects have been developed.

"Condominium developments represent a tenuous balance between detached single-family dwellings and rental apartment buildings. The balance exists because of the ongoing responsibility of operations for owner-occupied properties," he explained.

STANDARDS FOR MANAGEMENT of condominiums have been overlooked by the building industry, he said.

"It is critical to understand that the best planned condominium development in terms of construction and esthetic appeal can be destroyed if the operational and management process is underfunded or incompetent," Cagann told the senate subcommittee.

Cagann, who has co-authored a course on condominium management, said he has found "managers as well as developers, need assistance in the form of guidelines to handle a field of management which is different from all other types of income property management."

Cagann, whose local firm manages Regent Park in Arlington Heights, Centex Quadrominiums and Townhouses in Elk Grove Village and Inverrary in unincorporated Wheeling among others, has also testified this summer in favor of similar state regulation of condominium management.

Cagann has also been asked to suggest guidelines on possible condominium management qualification requirements to Sen. Joseph R. Biden Jr., D-Delaware, who authored one of the two bills being studied by the senate subcommittee.

ROWS OF TOWNHOUSES developed by Centex in Elk Grove Village are part of the tenuous balance between detached single-family dwellings and rental apartment buildings. Condominium and townhouse consultant Robert Cagann has called for federal legislation which would make mandatory estimates of maintenance.

Remember last year's big heating oil shortage?

Well, now supplies are adequate but don't throw out your long flannel underwear

by LEA TONKIN

Nostalgic home owners and apartment dwellers in the Chicago area may remember when the Great Heating Oil Shortage Struck one year ago. Shelling out more money for less fuel was the well known consequence of the "crisis."

Now the prices for fuel oil are stabilized, or heading downward. And the utilities which serve the public with alternative fuels for home heating — Northern Illinois Gas Co. and Commonwealth Edison — are asking for general rate increases to maintain adequate service.

Reasons for the switch from a heating oil supply crunch to a surplus situation and the outlook for natural gas and electric power supply reserves hinge on several interrelated, somewhat unpredictable circumstances. A sampling of area energy experts' opinions:

• Amoco Oil Co. (Standard Oil of Indiana), Chicago, recently slashed the price it charges for heating oil and gasoline by three cents a gallon. The immediate reason was a pricing formula imposed by the Federal Energy Administration, based on the cost of crude oil supplies. "There is a lot of uncertainty going into this winter," said a company spokesman of distillate fuel supplies. Despite an improvement in the supply of home heating oils and other fuels, Amoco cites four variables which could alter the picture: weather conditions, a possibly extreme natural gas shortage; a possible recurrence of the oil embargo by exporting nations; and the possibility of a coal strike which would shortly mean greater reliance on oil.

• Geneva Hollinger, president of Gaare Oil Co. in Palatine, said she is receiving 100 per cent allocation of No. 2 home heating oil, based on 1972 deliveries. This means an improvement in the outlook for available heating oil supplies for residential and commercial customers. "The government still expects people to use common sense and economy," she said, "because it's a fact we're still in an energy shortage period." Conservation by customers has reduced many fuel oil bills by 10 per cent, compared to a 15 per cent cutback in gasoline purchases, said Mrs. Hollinger. She pegs an "average" residential customer's bill at $30 a month for a 10 month period. This represents a range of prices for fuel oil, from 30-33 cents a gallon. Mrs. Hollinger expects adequate supplies of fuel oil, "unless we have a severe winter and government changes in regulations." Gaare Oil is supplied by Texaco.

• Herbert Hugo, Midwest bureau chief for the Platt's Oilgram publication, said a temporary boost in natural gas supplies this year and other factors account for the reversal of the heating oil supply outlook. Where prices were climbing as much as 2.05 cents a gallon a year ago, they are now holding steady or starting to decline. "Prices vary tremendously" for heating oil supplies, Hugo said. A spread of 28 cents to 41 cents a gallon for No. 2 heating oil is reported. Hugo notes that FEA regulations lock the oil companies into a once-a-month pass through of their costs. "Heating oil supplies are better now than a year ago," said Hugo. "But with bad weather, it could change rapidly." He notes that natural gas supplies are now in short supply, and the possible coal strike could place added demands on heating oil supplies. Unpredictable actions by U. S. and foreign governments add uncertainty to the outlook for fuel supplies and cost, he said, adding, "I'm buying an extra pair of red long underwear."

• A Commonwealth Edison Co. spokesman said "Generally, we're in good shape," when asked about the heating season outlook. Peak demand for electric power is in warmer months. Nine out of 10 kilowatt hours of power supplied by Edison are produced through the use of coal and nuclear fuel. The remaining 10 per cent is supplied by oil and natural gas. There are 99,333 electric space heating installations among the utility's 2½ million customers. The "average" suburban customer who has electric space heating and electric water heating paid approximately $61 a month based on January, 1973 figures. The figure does not include municipal tax, and is figured on a fuel adjustment which can vary from month to month. Compared to the space heating customer's bill for 3,000 kilowatt hours a month, the "average" user who does not have electric space heat would pay approximately $18 a month. The utility is seeking a 7.3 per cent boost in electric service rates before the Illinois Commerce Commission. A subsequent 8.3 per cent increase, and a provision for rate changes to reflect construction costs are also sought by Edison.

• Northern Illinois Gas Co. said it expects to provide full service to all its firm year round customers during the winter season. The utility serves more than 1.25 million customers in northern Illinois. Weather conditions and conservation measures by customers were cited by NI-Gas and Edison as variables in the fuel supply outlook. "We have 117 billion cubic feet (of natural gas) in storage right now," said NI-Gas spokesman. "Last year we had about 128 billion cubic feet." Restrictions on applications for gas heating apply only to the large commercial and industrial customers. The "average" residential customer's annual gas bill is $200, the spokesman said. A number of customers' conservation moves cut usage by 6 per cent in the last heating season. Conservation-motivated cutbacks are a minor factor in the utility's bid for higher service rates, the spokesman said. NI-Gas expects an ICC decision on its request for a 14.9 per cent boost in service rates by Nov. 29.

Edison pulls building plug

Slower growth in peak demands for electric service is cited by Commonwealth Edison Co. in its plan to stretch out construction programs over the next several years. The revised construction schedule will mean a reduction in plant expenditures of several hundred million dollars, said Edison chairman and president Thomas G. Ayers.

The utility's construction expenditures for the years 1975-1979 will be an estimated $4.3 billion. This compares with a previously scheduled $4.6 billion budget for the period of 1974 to 1978. Slack business activity, fewer housing starts and moderate growth in electricity use are cited in the reduced projections of peak load demand. The annual growth rate had been projected at 7 to 7½ per cent, but has been revised to 6 per cent.

Commonwealth Edison's slowdown in construction plans reflects an industry-wide pattern. Within a few days in early September, 10 utilities in the U.S. either canceled, postponed or stretched out the construction of new generating units. Some of the plans called for nuclear, coal fired or oil fired units.

COMMON SENSE and economy are necessary customer practices during an energy shortage period, says Geneva Hollinger, president of Gaare Oil Co. in Palatine. Above, she with mechanic Calvin Batz at the company headquarters on Rohlwing Road. She reports improved 1974 heating oil supplies.

Center formally opens

Its Midwest Service Center was formally opened recently in Franklin Park by the sales division of the Electrical Products Group of Joslyn Mfg. and Supply Co.

Joseph W. Rittenhouse, chairman of the board and president of Joslyn, told the large crowd that the center was highly visible evidence of Joslyn's well-developed overall plan for corporate sales growth. Along with speakers Harvey C. Kaplan, group vice president, and William Drastal, vice president of sales, a resident of Palatine, both of the Electrical Products Group, Rittenhouse stressed the center's function in establishing improved operating efficiency and providing greater customer services.

The center has 57,000 square feet devoted to warehouse and service space, and 15,000 square feet of office area. It houses the Electrical Products Group's midwest sales region, the international sales region, the marketing services department, the resale products department, the physical distribution department, the midwest physical distribution operations and the national traffic department.

The Franklin Park Center is one of 10 Joslyn customer service centers located in major market areas of the U.S. The 72-year-old company manufactures electrical apparatus for the electric power industries in the U.S., Canada and Mexico.

TWO REAL ESTATE firms battle it out on the baseball diamond in Des Plaines' Bluettes Park. Tony Pagone of Gladstone, Realtors tags out Oki Pearson (right) of William L. Kunkel & Co. at the home plate. Scott Bass (left) and Stuart Edinoff, both of Gladstone, look on. The teams competed for pizza and beer instead of residential sales. The score: Gladstone, 19; Kunkel, 14.

August surge sets record pace for Baird & Warner

Baird & Warner, Inc., announced today that dollar volume for August, 1974, was $25,157,308, a 40 per cent increase over August, 1973, while the number of sale participations during the month was 374, a 22 per cent increase.

For the past eight months ending Aug. 31, 1974, the company, which operates 30 real estate offices in Chicago and suburbs, reports total dollar volume of $179,892,118, up 4.3 per cent over $172,120,868, at the same time last year. Sales participations for the period are 3,032, a 2 per cent increase over 2,964 a year ago.

Company officials note that if the same rate of sales production can be sustained for the balance of 1974, it would establish records in both categories for the 119-year-old organization. The present production record is 4,123 sales, achieved in 1972, and dollar volume of $231,692,622 posted in 1973. The present pace would produce more than 4,500 sales in 1974 and a dollar volume of about $270 million.

"What is so encouraging is that we've achieved these results in a sluggish economy and what is supposed to be a very stubborn housing market. Conditions were certainly more favorable in 1972 and the first half of 1973, so we are optimistic that energy and ingenuity will produce an excellent year for our staff and clients," said Robert G. Walters, vice president and general sales manager of the company's residential division.

Residential sales in August increased to 330 units from 263 units last year and dollar volume correspondingly moved ahead from $14,179,769 in 1973 to $18,296,668.

The commercial and industrial sales division, headed by vice president Mace Cole, reported a slight gain in sales volume, from 42 units last year to 44 units for the current month, but dollar volume jumped to $6,860,640 from $3,763,527 for the month.

Free guide to old-house styles

The Old-House Journal has just published an illustrated brochure that identifies 17 of the most common old-house types found in the U.S. Each style is illustrated with a line drawing of a typical house, and the characteristics unique to that style are listed. Single copies of the four-page brochure, "Field Guide to Old-House Styles," are available free.

The Guide will be useful to anyone who is purchasing, remodeling or restoring a house built before 1910. With the information provided, the homeowner can not only identify the style of a particular house, but can also determine the type of detailing that was original to the house and what may have been added — or removed — in alterations over the years.

The Old-House Journal is issuing the Guide, says its editor, Clem Labine, because old-house watching is becoming as popular as bird watching due to the growing interest in restoration. "However," says Labine, "there are still a lot more people who can spot a Scarlet Tanager than can identify a Gothic Revival." Part of the reason, says Labine, is that there are dozens of handbooks for birdwatchers, but heretofore there hasn't been any simple, portable guide for old-house watchers.

Another reason for issuing the Guide, says Labine, is to help stop the mutilation of old houses by well-meaning remodelers. A recent survey by The Old-House Journal revealed that only one out of every 20 old houses was being properly cared for. The other 19 were being allowed to deteriorate — or had been stripped of their original details during thoughtless remodeling (which Labine terms "remuddling").

Alarmed by the tendency to alter old houses in conformity to the latest fad, The Old-House Journal conducted in-depth personal interviews with typical remodelers. One major conclusion was that many remodelers had stripped character-giving details from their houses for no reason stronger than they considered some of the ornamentation "unnecessary."

By publishing the "Field Guide to Old-House Styles" The Journal hopes to increase appreciation of the tradition and craftsmanship represented by the decorative details that were built into old houses.

Free single copies of the Guide can be obtained by writing: The Old-House Journal, Dept. 30, 199 Berkeley Place, Brooklyn, N.Y. 11217.

First tenant for Le ronde

The State Life Insurance Company of Indianapolis, Indiana, has signed the first lease for space in the uniquely beautiful Le ronde Office Plaza at 930 Lee Street, Des Plaines, Illinois. According to Irwin A. Siegel, State Life's agency manager, his firm has taken 1,710 square feet of space. With the opening of their office in Le ronde, the Indianapolis insurance company has established their first Chicago area office.

The leasing of this space to State Life was handled by Frank Kotnour, Director of Leasing for the Le ronde and a member of the Wm. L. Kunkel & Co., Realtors, Commercial Investment Division.

Marv Kingdon, Director of Commercial Investment Division at Kunkel, stated that several other firms are in various stages of leasing space in Le ronde. Mr. Kotnour said that some of these leases are expected to be finalized very shortly.

Prepare for that overseas move

Moving home and family across an ocean or two is no different than moving around the corner — the trip just takes a little longer.

First, pick a reliable moving company, one that has a record of successful international moves, recommends William P. Bradley, vice president of Fernstrom Moving System, an international moving and storage company headquartered in Chicago.

The second and third items on your agenda should be to learn some of the language and as much about the country as possible.

Companies who send personnel abroad often have programs for familiarization with the customs and laws of the country to which their people are being sent. Language lessons are often available too.

A family moving without the benefit of a company's largesse must do a lot of extra work. The best place to start, suggests Bradley, is with the consulate where officials will inform you about the laws concerning visas, residency, taxes and import regulations, among all the other information needed to get going without running into any legal tangles.

Knowing all this will also help you to decide what you want to send and what to store and discard. There's no point in taking your dishwasher if electrical power is not available or there are no plumbing connections.

Taking a pet can be a whale of a problem! Some countries have strict rules about pets and others are lenient. Check first. Some pets languish during long quarantine, others just won't survive at all. If you are going to Venezuela, for example, your dog may have to be quarantined up to 40 days. If you are moving to Greece, England or Thailand, he might be detained for a day or two or not at all. Japan insists on two weeks. Think it over carefully and weigh whether it would be better to let your old friend remain with a relative. If you do decide to take your pet, you must have the appropriate papers notarized and in order to show officials overseas.

Your household goods can go either by air or by surface transportation. In the best moving practice, items are containerized. Depending on their size and destination they are packed in wooden or metal containers. For larger moves everything is packed in a steamship container which resembles a regular moving van but is removed from its wheels and placed directly on board ship.

Containerized furniture is packed tightly and with extra padding. When the packing is complete, the container is sealed and placed in bond, not to be opened until it reaches your new home.

When families move their entire household overseas they frequently arrange to send items they will need immediately upon their arrival by air. Things like a baby's crib, clothing and important papers come under this heading. The rest is sent by surface.

The mover's job does not end when your possessions leave the country. Fernstrom's Bradley recalls arranging a move to West Germany for an accounting executive and his family. Some of the household goods went by air, others by surface and the remainder was stored in a Fernstrom warehouse. Soon after the executive arrived in Germany, he realized he had left behind the license needed to practice his profession. Bradley received an urgent cable requesting him to find it. Six opened boxes later, the certificate was on its way by air mail to the accountant.

Another service provided by your mover is his contact with a receiving agent in the country of your destination. The agent will facilitate your shipment's clearance and delivery when it arrives.

The movers will keep the agent informed of your expected time of arrival so that he can coordinate the shipment's arrival with your own. When it does come, have your inventory ready to simplify the final step of your move — the unloading and unpacking.

Mini-warehouse available soon

Even though the construction business is apparently in a depression, Karl F. Nagel, chairman of Keeper Nagel, Inc., a Waukegan based commercial and investment real estate firm, announced that construction on their Wheeling mini-warehouse was proceeding on schedule and would be available for occupancy within 60 days. The project is located at the intersection of Hintz and Milwaukee Avenue, south of Wheeling.

The mini-warehouse concept involves providing relatively small storage space of varying sizes to users on an individual basis. The one-story buildings are divided into hundreds of steel partitioned cubicals with steel doors; partitions can be moved to accommodate user requirements. The entire design concept is meant to allow the tenant maximum security and flexibility.

Items to be stored in the mini-warehouse may include recreational vehicles, household goods, industrial and business inventory, business and personal records, etc.

Although the concept is new to the Chicago Metropolitan area, Mr. Nagel says that "The demand is definitely here and Keeper Nagel intends to satisfy that demand with an aggressive development program."

Eminent domain affects property

You've probably seen the effects of the power of eminent domain such as the tearing down of tenements for a city park or the taking over of property for a freeway.

Some aspects of that power are not always visible, however, even though they can profoundly affect the owner of real estate. The man who owns a busy service station would be affected drastically should the city put in an underpass nearby. Suddenly he's forced either to somehow attract drivers going by at a lower grade level, be satisfied with less volume, or go out of business.

That's a form of eminent domain that causes consequential damage, and if the controlling governmental body has not paid compensation for it, there is probably cause for a damage suit. Actions surrounding eminent domain are grounded in law.

The federal government, states, cities, counties, improvement district public utilities, public educational institutions and similar public and semipublic bodies may use the power of eminent domain. When they do, the main issue is almost invariably "just compensation": how much will the property owner be paid for the property being taken over?

Most courts have ruled that he must be paid fair market value, but that he is not entitled to moving expenses, compensation for loss of profits because the business had to be moved, and most other intangibles resulting from condemnation — or the invoking of the power of eminent domain.

If only part of the property is taken under condemnation, thus reducing the market value of the whole parcel, the property owner is entitled to just compensation as worked out in an agreement or established by a court. This is known as "severance damage."

If part of the land is taken and, as a result, the fair market value of the property increases, the increased value of what remains more than compensates for loss of acreage. In that case, the property owner, receiving "special benefit," would not be entitled to compensation.

Another effect of eminent domain is "inverse condemnation." For example, if the water department puts up a maintenance station next door to your property, but pays nothing for the decrease in value that the high block wall now near your property line has caused, you can institute a suit for "inverse condemnation" and hope that the court agrees with your claim.

Eminent domain is one of many factors that may apply to a particular real estate property. Before investing in real estate, it is wise to learn which public rights apply to your property. Interpreting these factors and rights is the business of Realtor or other broker.

Hardwood floors save dollars

One of the best and easiest ways to chalk up a saving of $2,000 or more over the next 25 years is to insist on hardwood flooring in the home you're building or buying.

A department of Agriculture study of the comparative costs of different types of flooring in homes and apartments has found that hardwood floors are more economical than floors covered with either carpet or composition tile, both in terms of yearly cost and long-term outlay. The study added that hardwood has a much longer "wear life" than other floors.

"Hardwood floors have a distinct economic advantage when considering total floor costs," the report points out. "Under the conditions encountered in this study, a homeowner with a three-bedroom home (living room 13-by-20 square feet, dining room 9-by-12 feet, and bedrooms 12-by-14 feet each, total for all rooms approximately 900 square feet) would save $2,111.50 over the period of a 25-year mortgage if he had hardwood floors instead of wall-to-wall carpeting; he would save $386.25 if he had hardwood floors instead of composition tile." Cost savings such as these must be considered when deciding which flooring material you should buy.

Total cost of flooring included initial cost, frequency and cost of maintenance, actual wear life, as well as time and effort spent by the average housewife in floor maintenance, and the cost of materials used in such maintenance.

While the average installation cost of hardwood floors was found to be slightly higher than carpet, the wear life of hardwood floors is more than 50 years (usually the life of the building), compared with 7.5 years for carpet. Average installation cost of composition tile was also found to be less but its average wear life is less than one-third that of hardwood flooring. It must be replaced about every 17 years, the study reported.

(The annual cost figures were based on records of apartment owners and managers and apply to apartments, since long-term records for single-family homes are difficult if not impossible to obtain.)

Nine cities — Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Denver, Houston, Los Angeles, New York, St. Louis and Washington — were selected for inclusion in the study which produced the above figures. Various geographical areas were chosen for sampling.

Old World Village gets new tenants

Office leases for the State Farm Insurance Co. and the Bankers Life Mortgage Division at Old World Village, 825 Villard Quarter Rd., West Dundee, have been arranged by G. Pat Ryan, Baird & Warner, Inc. commercial and industrial sales division. Other new tenants include Rockford Life Insurance Co.; Dr. David Valentine, dentist; Dr. A. Trapani, orthodontist, and Valley Accounting Service.

In announcing the new leases, Ryan noted the immediate availability of office spaces of 1076 or 1332 square foot units in this unusual building created by developer Helmut Holze. The European-styled building features such amenities as fireplaces, beamed or cathedral ceilings, carpeting and more.

ing to allow for the variations in flooring materials used in different locales, and to help in the measurement of flooring cost and wear under different living and climatic conditions. Structures of different ages also were chosen for the sampling.

While the study was made about four years ago, when prices of materials and labor were lower, it is felt that costs of all types of flooring and of labor have risen at approximately the same rate, so that the relationships between the figures for different flooring materials are about the same today as when the study was made.

The long wear life of hardwood floors, of course, provides the basic reason for the low annual and long-term costs of maintenance. Hardwood floors are permanent, a part of the building structure, contributing strength plus resiliency, says the American Wood Council. They need only an occasional waxing, and new long-lasting finishes make maintenance even easier.

The Council also points out that wood is the nation's only renewable resource. Modern methods of harvesting trees and replanting immediately to get new forest growing are responsible for the fact that America today is nearly as forested as when Columbus landed.

Hardwood flooring is available in a wide variety of woods, grades, and types. It may be purchased in different colors, sizes, finishes, prices, and patterns, it is pointed out by NOFMA.

Autumn is best season to paint wood houses

Fall is the best season of the entire year for painting your wood house.

The weather is warm and dry without being too hot — an ideal climate for painting wood, because paint applies and adheres best when wood surfaces are completely dry.

Don't forget the basics. Prepare the wood by removing dirt and old paint peels with a wire brush and sandpaper. Fill in any cracks with putty or a caulking compound.

Watch out for mildew, and if you find any, make sure it is completely removed before you start painting. Spot prime any patches of exposed wood.

Make sure you choose the right kind of paint for the type of siding on your house. And remember that the better the quality of paint, the longer the finish will last.

To avoid accidents, get a good, sturdy ladder that is long enough. Move the ladder often to avoid dangerous reaching. And make sure it is firmly braced on the ground and the side of the house.

Always start painting at the top of the house and work down. And paint on the shady side, where the sun has passed.

There are few things more beautiful than a well-painted wood house — especially when you've done it yourself!

MGM woman gives to charity

Mrs. La Verne Terrazas, Niles, recently contributed tennis equipment through MGM Realty's "We Care" program to the House of Good Shepherd, 1126 W. Grace St., Chicago.

The House of Good Shepherd requested the tennis equipment when MGM announced their "We Care" program last spring. The program was initiated to purchase necessary equipment and other needs for charitable institutions in the Chicago area.

Salespersons from MGM pledged to earn amounts up to $500 through points they received for house sales. When points equaling the amount of a sales-person's pledge are reached, a charity is selected to receive the contribution. Salespersons can select their favorite charity, or choose a charity from the many letters from charitable institutions received by MGM.

Mrs. Terrazas, a saleswoman for MGM's Niles office, selected the House of Good Shepherd because of their outstanding program benefiting girls in need of a secure home, mature guidance and professional counseling. She thought the tennis equipment was especially fitting because a strong recreational program is so important for rehabilitation for young people.

Now is time to paint your soggy walls

by DOROTHEA BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — If the rains this fall, and those of the wet summer and spring which went before, have left you with basement walls soggy from seepage, now is the time to do something about it — before next spring's rains and melting snow saturate the ground again.

In the typical case all it takes is a coat of paint — the right paint which will produce a watertight coating or seal on masonry walls that is both durable and decorative.

Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company's chemical division, which makes resins used by many paint manufacturers, says the right product and proper preparation can solve the problem of waterproofing basement walls and other concrete surfaces.

Kotleba sells over $1 million

John Kotleba, broker-manager of the Robert W. Starck & Co., Realtors Schaumburg office, has closed over one million dollars in real estate sales so far this year. The announcement was made by Robert Starck, president of the 15-year old firm.

By attaining this goal, Kotleba qualifies for life membership in the Million Dollar Sales Club. This marks the third consecutive year that he has topped the figure, and it is also his third full year as a real estate professional.

Kotleba, his wife Louisa, and their three children live in Schaumburg. He is a graduate of the Realtors Institute of Illinois, and is a member of the Schaumburg Jaycees. Before associating with Starck Realtors, he was with Montgomery Ward & Co. and the United States Air Force.

The Schaumburg office of Starck Realtors is located at 89 Weathersfield Common. Other Starck offices are in Hoffman Estates, Palatine, Arlington Heights and Mt. Prospect.

A paint for waterproofing, Goodyear says, should be resistant to water, alkali and mildew and have good adhesion to concrete, both damp and uncured, and to other previously painted surfaces.

The applied paint coating must be able to stop water seepage and leaking and at the same time, be capable of "breathing" to allow moisture to escape from the sub-surface of the masonry. Without this ability, moisture drawn into the concrete forms alkali, causing corrosion between the sub-surface and the paint coating. When this happens, the paint blisters and peels.

Cement surfaces are, by nature, alkaline. The alkalis, which come from the lime in cement, are caustic, cause corrosion which can attack and destroy non-resistant paint coatings.

Mildew is produced by various forms of organic matter which grow on damp surfaces. Masonry paints should not support the growth of mildew nor suffer deterioration from organic matter.

In a booklet outlining the steps for waterproofing, Goodyear stresses the importance of surface preparation. "Surfaces must be clean and free from dirt, dust, grease, oil or loose paint. All holes and cracks should be patched, preferably with a concrete patching compound."

Hairline cracks, however, need not be filled when using a full-bodied coating. If such cracks and pores or pinholes are not covered in the first coat, they can easily be touched up when the paint dries.

Almost every painting project involves one or both of the following conditions, a Goodyear spokesman said: new or uncured concrete surfaces and previously painted surfaces. For unpainted concrete, new or old, the surface must be clean. If grease, oil or dirt are present they should be removed with a strong cleaner such as Solmax, Climacene or trisodium phosphate. After cleaning, the surface should be rinsed with water to remove all residue and allowed to dry for 24 hours.

Before repainting a previously painted masonry wall, all paint not in good condition — paint that is flaking, blistering, cracking or chalking heavily — should be removed. This old paint should be scraped and brushed off with a wire brush. As with new concrete, the surfaces should be scrubbed clean, rinsed and allowed to dry.

Old paint in good condition will show strong adhesion and uniform chalking and needs no further treatment.

Important advice for homeowners

It's almost a staggering statistic, but more than 40 million people will be changing their address this year. Another mind-boggling bit of intelligence is that at least one million families will buy their first house, and according to the National Better Housing Council, most of them will do so with little or no awareness of what they are letting themselves in for.

From surveys made by national realty associations and government organizations, the Council has compiled some important advice for prospective homeowners. In the first place, since buying a home is the largest single purchase a family will make, consider its resale value. The national average of occupancy of any dwelling is only seven years, so the time to think about selling is when you buy.

Look at the important features of a home, not just the fancy extras. Are the bedrooms large enough? Does the master bedroom have its own bath?

Getting the most for your housing dollar is not just the cost of the house, but what you have to pay to keep it in top condition. Some people prefer paneled walls so that they don't have to paint every few years. Others pay extra for pre-painted aluminum siding for the same reason.

Look into the comfort systems thoroughly. In most parts of the country heat is needed at least nine months of the year, so check the heating equipment. Hydronic (modern hot water) heating systems with cast iron boilers and baseboard heating panels are reputed to last the life of the house, and steel boilers will give 20 years of service.

If yours is a young family think in terms of growth. Does the design of the house lend itself to expansion? Is there an attic or a basement which can be finished? These are the least expensive and simplest ways to add living space to a home.

Buying a home has many hidden benefits, one of which is that you will receive tax advantages. Another is that it is a hedge against inflation. Finally, if the costs of material and labor continue to rise, its present price will be considered a 'steal' in five years.

the home finder's CORNER

by Jan Marell, Home Marketing Consultant

A Beautiful Split-Level Home for Under $60,000.

LOOKING BACK, if you're like many of us, you're thinking of that special home you mentally planned for yourself in a fine suburban location. You figured what it would cost and began saving for it. Now, you're ready to buy, but something's happened: the price is a lot more than it was, money is tight, and your dream house? Well, you've put it back in mental storage.

Don't. There's still a way to have that special home, and you won't have to move a million miles away to get it. We visited some lovely three and four bedroom executive homes the other day in Westlake in Glendale Heights. The builder is Hoffman Homes, a division of Hoffman Roemer Corporation.

WESTLAKE IS AN ideal northwest suburban location, but without the high property costs you find in suburbs like Park Ridge, Mt. Prospect, Glenview, or Wilmette where homes like the ones being built in Westlake are running in the $60,000 to $80,000 range. Yes, we've found that just a few miles closer to the lake can make a tremendous difference in price.

ONE HOME at Westlake, the Gatewood, for instance, is only $55,900. It's a handsome 2,600 square foot split level that's big enough to end any family arguments over who has to share bedrooms and whose turn is next for the bath. The Gatewood has enough bedrooms for everyone—four of them—and 2½ baths! There's also a two-car garage so even the old clobber stays warm.

You enter the house on the middle level, put your coat in a huge guest closet, enjoy a lovely foyer area and enter a 14 by 18-foot living room to the right. Beyond the living room is a separate dining room, a big 11 by 16-foot room, and beyond that a dream of a family room—17 by 18 feet—with an optional fireplace. To the left of the family room, you walk into the breakfast area, measuring 8 by 9 feet, which blends into the 8 by 15 ft. kitchen filled with furniture quality cabinets, lots and lots of counter space, eye-level double oven and range and a dishwasher (another argument-saver).

From the kitchen you can return to the foyer, which boasts an adjoining powder room.

WALK UP NINE short steps and you're on the upper level—the quiet bedroom wing. Turn to the right and you've found the master bedroom—a large 12 by 15½ foot room with one of the biggest walk-in closets you'll find anywhere. The master bedroom has its own private, tiled bath. A linen closet is just outside the room in the hallway.

The other bedrooms are also large—two of them are 10 by 12 feet; the third is 11 by 12 feet and they share a large bathroom, conveniently located to all three.

The ground level of the Gatewood houses the two-car garage—a big 21 by 21 feet. And if you've been bothered by the lack of storage space in homes you've been previewing, the Gatewood offers a 20 by 21 foot utility and storage room also located on the ground level.

Hoffman Homes has been careful to give Westlake proper landscaping. And the homes are settled on safe winding roads and attractive cul-de-sac streets.

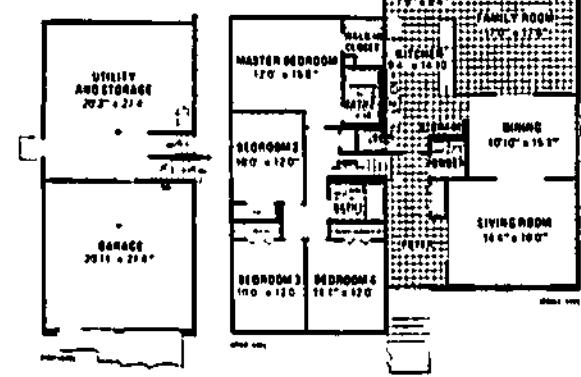

Westlake is right in the middle of everything, too. It's just 35 minutes from the Loop and 15 minutes from Woodfield Mall Shopping Center. The community is lovely and fully established with schools, shopping and excellent recreation all around.

The fact that the home you had in mind a few years ago has sky-rocketed in price will tell you something about the importance of buying now.

The U.S. Commerce Department Bureau of Labor Statistics points out that while we experienced an 8.8 percent inflation rate in 1973, housing was up to 12 percent last year.

Gatewood Floor Plan

Noting that, the Department points out, potential homeowners can beat inflation by buying today, using the home in future years at today's lower payment schedule and selling it, when the time comes, at an appreciated rate.

IF YOU'VE HAD your eye out for something really special, take a look at the Gatewood at Westlake. You can get there by taking Rt. 63 to Army Trail Road (a mile south of Lake Street—U.S. 20) and turn west past Bloomingdale Road to the model area. Models are open every day till 6 p.m. Evenings by appointment.

How much would it cost to replace your home today?

by DOROTHEA BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI)—Would you sell your home for the face value amount on your homeowner's insurance policy? Do you know what it would cost to rebuild your house on the same foundation if it were completely destroyed? If your answers to these questions are no, chances are your insurance needs updating. Certainly, it means you should review it to be safe.

TODAY'S SOARING inflation can outdate housing values in as little as one year, the Insurance Information Institute warns.

And, should your home be damaged, to say nothing of destroyed, this could cost you heavily.

For instance, the Institute points out, Dept. of Labor statistics show $100 worth of construction in 1967 would have cost $132 in December, 1973, an increase of more than 30 per cent. Figures for specific areas of home construction and maintenance show even greater increase — as much as 80 per cent for roof reslinging.

An analysis of fire losses on homes in one state, the Institute noted, revealed that only one homeowner in three carried enough insurance to cover even insurance to cover even one-half the replacement value of his house.

MOST HOMEOWNERS have insurance under a special package policy commonly called homeowner's insurance. A provision of this policy waives deduction for depreciation in claims involving damage to the building as long as the policyholder carries insurance at 80 per cent of replacement value or more. This means a damaged roof, for instance, would be repaired or replaced without cost to the policyholder no matter what its age. Without 80 per cent coverage, there would be deduction for depreciation. Assuming a 20-year life for a roof, as an example, damage to a 10-year-old roof would be compensated for at only half the replacement cost.

The amount of coverage on a dwelling also becomes the basis for determining the amounts of coverage which are automatically assigned to appurtenant private structures — a garage or other outbuildings — personal property and any additional living expenses made necessary by damage to the house.

American Mutual Insurance Alliance of Chicago, in a leaflet on home insurance, says "Almost any homeowner who has not reviewed the limits of his insurance recently will find his coverage too low to protect his investment."

In addition to inflation, the Alliance says, homeowners often forget to add coverage to take into account home modernization. Some, in the financial crush of buying a new home, take out only the minimum coverage demanded by the lender — sometimes barely enough to cover the amount of the loan, providing almost no protection of the owner's equity. In the event of total loss, the company must be paid first.

AMERICAN MUTUAL offers the following checklist:

- Examine your homeowner's or fire and extended coverage policy to determine coverage limits.
- Determine accurate replacement cost of your home. The builder, in the case of a relatively new home, or a qualified real estate appraiser in your area, are the best sources for such an estimate.
- Discuss coverage with your insurance representative. Ask about any special coverage needed. Additional buildings — garages, play houses, studios, guest houses, for instance — may exceed the 10 per cent of coverage on the main dwelling which is allowed under the standard policy. Or you may have personal possessions which should be insured separately.

A general indication of what it would cost to replace a house can be determined from nationwide statistics in the following table provided by Marshall & Swift Publications:

Year Built	Multiplier
1973	1.000
1972	1.107
1971	1.208
1970	1.323
1969	1.369
1968	1.494
1967	1.592
1965	1.720
1964	1.761
1963	1.798
1962	1.901
1960	2.750

To find replacement value for a home built in 1968 for $20,000, for instance, multiply $20,000 original cost by 1.494, the multiplier shown for 1968, giving an average replacement cost of $29,880.

Since replacement costs vary from city to city, this will give only a general idea of increased value. A local estimate is needed to obtain a true estimate of a home's value.

Sale of owner-occupied condos growing business

The sale of owner-occupied condominium units has become an important and growing segment of the North Shore and Northwest Suburban area real estate market.

The popularity of condominiums has created a substantial new challenge for Realtors, according to William B. Martin, senior vice president and manager, residential sales for Quinlan and Tyson, Inc., Realtors.

The unique requirements of the buying and selling public in the condominium field led Quinlan and Tyson to form a new division of specialty within its residential sales operations — the Condominium and Co-op Division.

The division, now in its fourth year, is headed by a full-time manager, Diane Bruch. It has focused its efforts on meeting the needs of condominium owners for experienced, professional help when they sell, and on the needs of potential condominium buyers who are unfamiliar with this new type of housing.

Q&T'S SUCCESS in the condominium resale market is attested to by the 1973 sales results. The company sold condominiums with a total value in excess of $4 million. A total of 43 salespersons, about one-fourth of the Q&T sales staff, participated in the sales of the condominium units. Nine of the firm's 10 residential sales offices took part in sales throughout the North Shore and Northwest Suburban area.

Martin said, "A key to success has been our ongoing condominium educational training program within the company. Part of each Q&T Institute training program features condominium sales, and we will expand that part of the program at our fall training session."

In July, the Condominium and Co-op Division will hold a special in-company meeting at the Q&T Institute to update the sales staff on developments and trends affecting the condominium sales market.

"Up to now, many real estate firms still consider condominiums just another segment of the market. But we recognize that it is a specialized field of knowledge and that buyers and sellers need expert assistance from professionals," Martin said.

More facilities necessary to meet growing population

"To meet population needs by the year 2000, it will be necessary to build as many houses, schools, churches and other facilities as were built in all of our previous history."

So predicts Marshall C. Dennison, president of Associated Mortgage Companies, Inc., a Philadelphia-based real estate financing and servicing organization. One of the nation's three largest mortgage banking firms with a portfolio exceeding $2 billion, Amco is an affiliate of First Pennsylvania Corporation.

Consensus is that sprawling suburbs are not the most viable answer.

"Many see a need for the development of brand-new cities and towns where, as in traditional cities, people would work closer to home — rely less on automobiles."

"It has been estimated that almost 600 such places will fill the need. They would be of moderate size, ranging in population from as low as 75,000 and up as high as 200,000," says Dennison.

Ideally, many would be built in rural areas to draw people away from already heavily populated areas.

"Sound and completely efficient planning will result in more convenient, safer and pleasanter living areas. New towns would be far more satisfying than either the far-flung suburbs — or today's congested urban areas."

Dennison sees the ideal "city" being divided into parts: half for housing; 30 per cent for business and industry — the remainder for schools, roads, parks and lakes.

"New Town, USA, will require a complete spectrum of services — from bars, bars, meeting halls and bowling alleys to shopping centers, theaters and recreational facilities."

"Day care centers where working mothers can leave their children, recreational areas for teenagers, a minibus system with its own road system and a meaningful community health program will be highlighted."

"The number of people grows by six thousand every day in the United States — each year by over two million."

"It is not a moment too soon to start planning our new communities of the 21st Century," Dennison concludes.

Hardy movers often shun valuable available services

Historically, America is a nation of hardy individualists. This is reflected today in the number of people who pack up their household goods and move across country without help from rental equipment, van lines or other services.

Of the 12.5 million families who move each year, nearly 30 per cent or 3.65 million, either buy or borrow moving equipment, or liquidate all of their goods before moving. Like the early pioneers, these people often face danger in their travels. Not from renegade Indians, but from misfortune resulting from their own unpreparedness.

For small loads or short distances, it may be economical to buy or borrow a truck or trailer, but there are factors to consider.

If you are thinking about buying a truck or trailer to move your goods in, will you be able to use the equipment again after you move, and often enough to justify the cost. In addition to the purchase price, you will have tax, license and insurance fees to consider.

If you borrow a truck or trailer from a friend, you are faced with having to return the equipment to him after you move, necessitating an additional round-trip. Your liability and homeowner's insurance may not cover damages incurred while using borrowed equipment, so check with your agent before moving.

Any equipment that you buy or borrow is unlikely to be designed for household moving. Your goods are more likely to be damaged en route, they will be more difficult to load and unload, and, once loaded, they may make the vehicle unstable.

If you simply can't tolerate your present goods, or plan to buy all new furnishings at your destination, or you have the mod disposable cardboard furniture, then liquidation of your goods is the simplest way to move.

Of course, it is false economy to dispose of usable furnishings, possibly at a loss, only to have to replace them with new items at your new home. The cost of moving those furnishings is likely to be less than the net loss you would incur in replacing them.

However, if you do choose to liquidate your goods, make the most of the opportunity. And, here is a lesson for all people on the move: don't move anything unnecessarily. Sell your unwanted goods at a yard sale. The money that you earn will help pay your moving expenses and you will reduce the cost of moving by not shipping unwanted, weighty items.

Don't postpone buying home

You may be sorely disappointed if you postpone buying a home now in expectation that prices and interest rates will begin to come down soon.

"While prices of existing homes should remain stable between now and the end of the year, we foresee increases of between five and eight per cent taking hold after Jan. 1, 1975," according to Bob Love, vice-president of Continental Real Estate — Northwest, Inc., 150 W. Higgins Rd., Hoffman Estates.

As a matter of fact, the large number of quality listings at sensible prices is better today than it has been for a long time, and will remain so for the next two or three months, he said.

He reported that many would-be home buyers are refraining from looking in view of the common misbelief that mortgage money cannot be obtained — but this is not the case.

"Right now, home mortgage rates range from 9 1/4 to 9 3/4 per cent, plus service charges," he said. "The FHA and VA mortgage money availability is excellent, particularly with the recent liberalized down payment requirements."

According to reports from Chicago's leading banks, a drop in the prime rate is not foreseen in the immediate future, nor is any change in home mortgage rates. If any mortgage rate drop should occur, it would be as little as 1/2 per cent which, on a $30,000, would amount to $150 a year.

Against the vague uncertainties of the mortgage market is the certainty that overall home prices will go up shortly because of the increase in costs of new homes. As new homes become more costly, prices of existing homes go up, too, to preserve the margin that exists between them.

As the Continental sales executive noted, Chicago area construction trades have recently won wage increases which means higher labor costs. In addition, the costs of material, land and financing are going up.

"Even more significant, more apartments than single-family homes are being built today," he said. "This means that the supply of single-family homes is not being increased as rapidly as before, which will be reflected in higher demand and consequently higher prices for these homes."

In short, he who hesitates to buy a home now, when the selection is good and prices are competitive, may wind up paying considerably more for the same package in the future.

Prairie Path hosts its annual meeting

The annual meeting of the Illinois Prairie Path will be held Sunday, November 3, at 2:00 p.m. in the Thornhill building of the Morton Arboretum. Members and all interested in becoming members are invited.

Speaker for the occasion will be Loren M. Thorson, chief of recreational programming, bureau of parks and recreation, Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources.

Thorson will discuss aspects of right-of-way utilization for recreation. His talk will be followed by a question and answer period.

Thorson has a Master's degree from the University of Minnesota in Park and Recreation Management, has had 23 years professional experience in the park and recreation field. He has been director of recreation at St. Cloud, Minnesota, chief of recreation for Air Defense Command, U. S. Air Force, and program executive with Lifetime Sports Foundation. Presently he is an alderman for the City of Madison.

The Illinois Prairie Path board of directors will present a progress report and future plans for the Prairie Path. The nominating committee will then submit its slate of board members for election for the coming year.

Stark reports record home sales to RELO transferees

"Homeowners facing transfer in or out of the northwest suburbs need not be afraid they can't become homeowners again because of today's economic conditions," according to Robert Stark, president of Robert W. Stark & Co., Realtors. "While conventional mortgages are hard to arrange, RELO/Inter-City Relocation Service continues to break its own 14 year record in helping transferred families find suitable homes — and suitable financing. Third quarter RELO sales for the fiscal period ending in July ran 19 per cent ahead of last year's previous all-time record. And the number of August home sales increased another 8 per cent over July," Stark reported.

"It takes determination, established financial contacts and ingenuity to help families negotiate home ownership in today's market. We're working harder to suggest alternatives to the conventional mortgage, when necessary. It's part of RELO's regular service to families who need to become new home owners in distant cities.

"Now, when a family plans a transfer, we may need to show them what financial facts to gather, so the RELO broker where they're going can seek available financing there. Through that member, they will learn at once about other financial options open to them at that end too. For instance, our second quarter RELO survey of major transferee areas shows increasingly important differences in the rate at which housing prices go up around urban centers.

"Prices can increase 5 per cent in one neighborhood, and 10 per cent in another, over the same time, in some market areas. At today's housing values, choosing the right communities in which to look could mean a savings of thousands of dollars for a family transferring home ownership in the $40-45,000 range.

"By working closely with other RELO members we can tell transferees about such current options wherever they are going. We find financial guidance is getting to be a bigger part of our overall RELO service to families in the current housing market," said Stark.

Ramljiek hits million mark

Bob Durning, sales manager of Village Realty, announced that Frank Ramljiek has participated in sales totaling one million dollars in sales this year.

Ramljiek joined Village Realty as a broker last June. He graduated from Loyola University where he majored in finance. Prior to entering the real estate field, he taught junior high school. He and his wife Carole have two children and live in Elk Grove.

Danielson leads September sales

For the second time in a row, William C. Danielson has been named the sales leader of the month at Wm. L. Kunkel & Co., Realtors, announced Ralph H. Martin, president.

He received the award for bringing in the highest monthly total of real estate sales and listings during September. Danielson joined Kunkel's residential sales staff in 1972. In only his second year, he was elected to the Illinois Association of Realtors' "Million Dollar Sales Club" for achieving more than one million in real estate sales. He also has obtained the designation of Graduate, Realtors Institute for completing the three phase seminar of the State Realtors' association.

Danielson holds a bachelor's and a M.B.A. degree from the University of Chicago plus a real estate broker's license. Prior to joining Kunkel, he was in outside chemical sales for several national corporations including Commercial Solvents Corp. and Philadelphia Quartz Co.

Along with his wife, Patricia, and daughter, Lynn, he resides at 557 Washington Street in Des Plaines.

Duplex: 2 for price of one

Two for the price of one? "Certainly so in the case of a duplex," says Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer of Investors Mortgage Insurance Company, Boston, a leading organization in the private mortgage insurance industry. The company works with lenders, such as savings and loan associations, mutual savings banks and commercial banks, by insuring the top 20-25 per cent of high-ratio conventional mortgage loans.

The duplex concept is not a new one. "Several decades ago, two-family homes were extremely popular — for both economic and social reasons. Living in one unit and renting the other brought in money — plus friendly neighbors," Goss remarks.

Today, with the high cost of living, that concept is once again gaining in popularity — only now it is referred to as a duplex.

"Builders and developers are rediscovering them as a valuable marketing and cost-control tool — buyers are impressed with the investment value.

"Rehabilitation is perhaps the biggest factor helping to boost revival of the duplex concept," Goss observes. "Older urban and suburban homes are now being converted into two or more apartments — affording the charm of the old and the amenities of the new."

It is a means of home ownership at apartment level costs.

Goss points out that the duplex is attractive to both young and old.

"The arrangement is perfect for the young couple just starting out. They find the mortgage payments far less of a burden when there is rental income to help defray the cost."

What about older empty-nesters?

"They find the duplex particularly ideal. Rather than uproot and move after the children have married, they can partition part of their home for self-contained rental space. The added income is welcome — more important is the presence of other people," Goss declares.

He reports that recent duplex owners state that their choice was determined by a desire to enjoy gardening and a lawn as well as the other amenities.

"There is nothing complex about a duplex — a sensible investment, a sensible way to live," Goss concludes.

Robert Witwicki, sales associate in the Schaumburg office of Robert W. Starck & Co., Realtors, has won Salesman of the Month honors for the month of September. The announcement was made by Robert Starck, president of the company.

Other individual office winners are as follows: Carol Marsh, Mount Prospect; Harold Sable, Hoffman Estates; Tom Mercer, Palatine; Jim Holland, Arlington Heights.

Witwicki has been associated with Starck for only five months. Previously he was with Pitney-Bowes and Burroughs Corporation. He and his wife Jan live in Schaumburg and have one child, Rob.

The Schaumburg Starck office is located at 89 Weathersfield Common. Starck Realtors was one of the first large real estate companies to open an office in Schaumburg. That office has been open since 1967.

Keep cars warm

A really important, yet fairly simple home improvement, is to add heating to your attached garage. According to the National Better Heating-Cooling Council, if your home has hydronic (modern hot water) heating, your heating contractor only has to connect your existing system to additional heating panels in your garage. It will put spring in your car all winter long, the Council says.

Oakton Industrial Park is more than 90 per cent sold

McLennan Company's Oakton Industrial Park in Elk Grove Village, has been more than 90 per cent sold out, with recent sale of a 10,000-square-foot building at 901 Oakton to Hyre Electric Company.

Oakton is one of five industrial parks developed in the Greater O'Hare area by the McLennan Company in recent years, according to James McLennan, general sales manager.

Hyre Electric, a commercial and industrial electrical contracting firm in Chicago since 1912, is headquartered at 2320 W. Odgen, Chicago.

A J. Pavlick, Hyre president, said half the new building is being used by Hyre Electrical Construction Company, Inc., a division of Hyre Electric, to service a number of large suburban construction projects. The remainder of the one-story brick building has been leased to Morse Cutting Tool Division of Gulf & Western.

Peter M. Lambert of McLennan Company's industrial sales staff represented both parties in the sale, for which terms were not disclosed.

Paint brush eases job

Help make painting easier by "priming" the paint brush before use. Dip the brush into the paint halfway to the ferrule (metal part) five or six times. Then tap the brush lightly against the top of the can and it's ready to use. Continue this tapping procedure each time the brush is dipped in the paint. This shakes off paint drippings and allows you to use both sides of the brush.

If you thin out the paint, be careful not to overdo it. When painting siding, use a brush approximately the same width as the boards. Paint the undersides of a section first, then the facing.

To produce a smoother painted surface, always work from the unpainted section into the previously painted area. To maintain the form and life of your brush, instead of running it sideways when painting small areas, use a smaller brush whenever possible.

Proper brush use is as important for a good paint job as choosing the right paint and tools. In addition, it assures a long life for your brush and completed paint job.

To begin with, be sure that your brush is designed for the job you have in mind. Using a five-inch brush on window sashes will quickly ruin the best brush, not to mention possibility of spreading paint on the window glass.

Seal house against winter cold

Winter calls for an indoor environment, so ensure yours is comfortable by tightly sealing the house against cold and moisture. When correctly applied around construction joints and window frames, sealants will provide effective insulation. The most important requirement for proper surface adhesion is good surface preparation, explained in the following tips.

Putty or caulk that has become chipped or dried out must be removed. First, scrape it out with a putty knife, then dust the area with a stiff bristle brush.

Moisture, dust and grease pose major menaces to the sealant compound's adhesion, and should be carefully cleaned up. Grease wipes up easily with rags soaked in mineral spirits.

All wood surfaces should be primed before applying the sealant. For steel and metal surfaces, use a rust-inhibitive priming material. Aluminum and other non-rusting metals must be thoroughly cleaned of grease and foreign matter.

Allowing a liberal amount of space for the sealing compound will help insure its longevity. All joints should be at least one-quarter inch wide and deep. Consult the manufacturer's label for instructions on the correct amount of sealant to apply.

Heating hints for safety's sake

Harold Hollub, president of Hollub Heating, 1020 W. Adams, urges annual fuel system checkups to help insure safe and efficient use of natural gas heating systems.

A heating unit, Hollub said, "needs good ventilation through the flue and chimney." Having a heating contractor annually inspect the system is recommended.

mended. Yet, he explained, there are two simple tests which a homeowner can conduct. "Checking the color of the flame is one indication of proper combustion. It should be blue, or if dirt has clogged flue passages or air openings it could have an orange appearance. A yellow flame, though, indicates incomplete combustion and the heating system should be checked immediately."

He also urged homeowners to oil fan motor as recommended by manufacturers, check fan belt for loosening and clean or replace filters once a month. Usually new filters cost less than $1 and are available at hardware stores.

If you decide on having your heating system inspected it should include lubrication of motors, blowers, pumps and valves, cleaning and adjustment of pilot and main burner.

Locascio hired as general contractor, PineEast builder

The five-story PineEast condominium now has its outer shell completed with the topping of the fifth floor.

Charles Locascio is general contractor and builder of the project located in Arlington Heights at Pine and Eastman Streets.

Completion of the five-story PineEast condominium has been projected for early 1975. The building, designed by James M. Ray, architect, of Arlington Heights, features two-bedroom, two bath condominium apartments, each 1,150 square feet plus an eight foot by 12 foot private recessed patio. One bedroom units will also be available. Each unit provides a foyer, separate formal dining room, separate laundryroom and closet and storage space. Individual electric central air conditioning and heating, electric range, dishwasher and garbage disposal are provided in each apartment home. Unit cost includes one enclosed underground parking space.

Locascio was the contractor and builder of Hampton North and Charleston Manor development, 18 homes behind St. James Parish, as well as numerous other homes and office buildings in the area. His 18-year old firm has completed $25 million in construction.

the company's Million Dollar Club for 1974 on the basis of participating in more than one million dollars of complete real estate sales.

According to Robert G. Walters, vice president and general manager of the residential sales division, both men topped the million dollar mark in August.

Both men have been Million Dollar Club members for four consecutive years.

Molinelli, who has been in real estate sales in Arlington Heights for 16 years, is an associate member of the Northwest Suburban Board and a graduate of the Real Estate Institute at Peoria.

Smith also has been a long-time resident and real estate salesman in the Arlington Heights area and in 1974 was designated GRI (Graduate Realtors Institute).

Glossary to explain terms

They're doing the "lexicondo."
This is not a new dance — but a glossary of terms for the prospective condominium owner.
"In view of the prediction that 50 per cent of the U. S. population will live in some form of condominium housing before 1990, it behooves buyers to understand the condo vocabulary."
So declares Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer of Investors Mortgage Insurance Company, Boston, a leading organization in the private mortgage insurance industry. The company works with lenders, such as savings and loan associations, mutual savings banks and commercial banks, by insuring the top 20-25 per cent of high-ratio conventional mortgage loans.

Goss lists a few steps in learning to "do the condo":
Common area: Generally, this encompasses all of a condominium which is not specifically described as dwelling or commercial units.
Association: The governing body of a condominium — elected by and from among the owners.

Escrow funds: Down payments required to be held unused until the development is permitted legally to operate as a condominium.

Reserve funds: Set aside funds from monthly payments held in escrow to replace common elements, such as roofs, at some future time. There are also reserve funds which are accumulated on a monthly basis to provide a cushion of capital to be used for contingency purposes.

Repair and maintenance: The owner is responsible for repairing and maintaining the dwelling unit — the association is responsible for the common area.

Taxes: Local real estate assessments are levied on the individual units.

Undivided interest: In condominium law, the joint ownership of common areas in which the individual percentages are known — but not applied to separate the areas physically. Similar to joint ownership of an automobile or home by a husband and wife.

Delineate: To describe the physical boundaries of a dwelling unit in a condominium.

"One definition that doesn't need explaining is that condominiums are here to stay as an integral part of the American housing scene," Goss concludes.

John Lindsay tops September sales

Dale Hadaway, vice president of T. A. Bolger, Realtors, Elk Grove office, announced that sales associate John Lindsay led the Bolger organization in sales during the month of September.

John, a million dollar salesman for the past three years, also won top honors in January, February, March and April.

In addition to his sales activities, John participates with Boy Scouts of America and the Elk Grove Jaycees. John, his wife Debbie and their two daughters have lived in Elk Grove Village for the past three years.

Motor vehicles can transform from family car to camper

A couple in their late twenties with two small children have some definite requirements for their next recreational vehicle. As the name implies, the vehicle will play a vital part in outdoor recreation, but since it will be the family's sole transportation, it will be called upon for many uses.

For dad, the vehicle must be ready to take him on those short weekend jaunts for golfing, fishing and off-roading. Consequently, the vehicle that hauls his 11-ft. boat to the lake must also have enough space to carry a couple of fishermen and their gear and be capable of going into areas where there are no roads.

For mom the vehicle must be easy handling, smooth riding and sharp looking since it will be her only transportation for shopping, errands and social activities.

Automatic transmission is a must and also indispensable are power steering, power brakes and air conditioning. She likes the sportiness of bucket seats and the companionship of an AM/FM radio and on the outside, she wants the vehicle to have a "dressed-up" look.

For the entire family, the vehicle will provide an access to the great outdoors, whether it be for a Saturday afternoon, a weekend or a couple of weeks. It must be spacious enough for family and cargo and also be able to pull a 17-ft. travel trailer. It must be just as much at home on an over-night camping trip as it will be at the country club dance.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it: AXYDLBAAXR K LONGBELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

what kind of basket are YOUR eggs in??

The Sandpiper, a shorebird, positions its nest strategically to avoid the onslaught of high tides & high traffic, yet can dart from ocean to hills for eating, playing, or security.

How to avoid future shock.

Tomorrow won't take care of itself. And, deep down, you know that. So you'd better do something about your future money needs today.

There's a painless way. Simply start building your nest egg a little at a time. It's easy when you buy U.S. Savings Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work.

You can save as little or as much as you want. Just specify the amount. And it'll be set aside from your paycheck and used to buy Bonds.

Then, when the future arrives, you'll be better fixed to face it. Because Bonds are the best shock absorber around.

Now It's Your Turn to Save

Now It's Your Turn to Save 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (or the first year). Bonds are repaid if lost, stolen or destroyed. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Take stock in America.

Lunch-O-Ree today will honor 'Good Scout' John Symons

The 1974 version of the Boy Scout Lunch-O-Ree at Arlington Park Towers today is expected to be a success with the likes of WGN's news anchorman Jack Taylor and Chicago Fire quarterback Virgil Carter gracing the dais.

The annual fund raising event for the Northwest Suburban Council of the Boy Scouts of America will honor John G. Symons, president of Symons Corp., Des Plaines, with the "Good-Scout Award" for his contribution to the construction industry and his community.

THE LUNCH-O-REE, supported and sponsored by the construction industry, was organized, directed and coordinated by Arnold W. Moeller, president of Meyer Material Co. of Des Plaines, and general chairman of the event.

Taylor will be master of ceremonies.

He is anchorman on WGN Television's 4:45 and 10 p.m. news programs and is a member of several public and private service organizations.

Carter, the former Chicago Bears quarterback who now plays in the rival World Football League, is the guest speaker. Carter, who lives in Barrington, was a record-setting passer at Brigham Young Univ. He has a masters degree in mathematics from Northwestern Univ.

SYMONS IS BEING HONORED for his work in scouting and for his civic contributions, including his work with the Logan Square YMCA. The center has since been renamed the John G. Symons YMCA, a tribute to his generosity. Symons resides in West Dundee.

Moeller is a member of the council's executive board. He lives in Des Plaines.

Crushy. Lush leather.
Form's Falcon Chair.
From Norway. $199.

Lovely to look at, glorious to sit in.

The Cushion: a comfy, thick helping of dacron fibre wrapped in the softest, genuine leather. The sturdy canvas sling has reinforced leather corners.

And it all fits beautifully on the Falcon frame of laminated, rosewood stained beech.

Simple. Stately. And at a savings. Because Form, a division of the Hyde Park Cooperative, buys direct from the top Scandinavian manufacturers. There are no middlemen. No extra charges. But due to European currency changes, the prices quoted today could change tomorrow. Classic Falcon (shown), $199.00. Hi-Back Falcon, $249.00. Ottoman, $109.00.

All available in black or brown.

Come to Form and sink into the leather lap of a Falcon. You won't ever want to get up again.

70 million make them big business

So you thought bikes were kid stuff?

by MARY TOBIN
NEW YORK (UPI) — With an estimated 70 million cyclists on the nation's highways and byways, riding everything from $50 kids' bikes to $300 10-speed jobs and even adult-sized tri-cycles, biking is a big business.

Bike sales have pushed up sharply in recent years, first as Americans became more exercise and sports conscious and, more recently, as they sought alternatives to the auto in the interests of ecology and economy.

Sales of bicycles first surpassed auto sales in 1972 when 13.9 million were reported sold. Last year, according to the Bicycle Institute of America, the volume increased to 15.2 million, and it predicted 100 million Americans will own bikes by mid-1975.

ALONG WITH THE sales came a boom in bicycle accessories. No more content with a stripped-down bike than with just a basic-model auto, Americans are accessorizing: not just the small strap-on tool kit and rear fender reflector of old but a wide variety of gadgets ranging all the way up to a horn-mirror-radio combination for the handlebars.

There are special saddles — seats for the uninitiated — front and rear safety seats for transporting toddlers, baskets and saddle bags of all kinds serving as a combination glove compartment and trunk.

The boom in bikes comes at a time when Americans are more safety conscious than ever, and many of the best-selling accessories are safety items — headlights, reflectors for wheels and pedals, reflector tape that can be applied to the bicycle itself, or to the cyclist's clothing, and even a strap-on light for the riders' leg. Perhaps most visible of all, the brilliantly colored bicycle pennants on four-foot metal wands seen waving high above traffic.

First adopted by youngsters as a fad not dissimilar to the hoola hoop of a few years ago, the pennants have taken on a real importance as a safety feature. For whatever reason people buy them, the pennants, safety experts say, appear to do an adequate job of alerting motorists a bicyclist is pedaling along in traffic.

"YES, WE ARE for the pennants," said Harold Heldreth of the National Safety Council, Chicago. "Of course, we are 'for' any device that does not create a hazard in itself that will aid in making the bicycle driver more visible to the motorist."

Heldreth said the Safety Council always stresses the word "driver" when referring to bicyclists in the hope this, along with pennants, lights, helmets and other safety devices will make cyclists more aware of traffic regulations. The Council has a six-hour "All About Bikes" course offered as part of the regular curriculum at schools.

As bicycling increases, problems arise. One of the biggest is theft. Pinkerton's Inc., reports there are as many or more bike thefts than there are bikes sold each year.

Of course, this creates opportunity for new business — in a wide variety of bicycle locks.

'Personal biases' hit

Rips marijuana letter

It is my feeling, that when information is put forth, as in Mr. Dowd's Fence Post letter regarding marijuana, it should not contain the man's personal biases.

The hearings by the Internal Security Subcommittee were not intended to present an objective view on this highly emotional issue, but rather to focus, in Senator Eastland's words . . . on the increased problem of security in the military establishment resulting from the spread of the marijuana epidemic and on the role played by militant propaganda, beginning with the Berkeley uprising, in the spread of this epidemic.

Only those who had something bad to say about marijuana were asked to testify. As a consequence, while several responsible scientists appeared before the subcommittee, public exposure and new credibility were also given to extremists whose views have been rejected by the medical profession, and the National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse.

"So much of the volume is distorted that one must know the marijuana literature in order to judge the accuracy of each statement." The Journal of the American Medical Association.

"Nothing in the report alters the significance of the data and recommendations contained in the two reports of the National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse." — Dana L. Farnsworth, M.D., Vice Chairman on the National Commission.

Even if one accepted every study considered by the Eastland hearings, marijuana would continue to rank lower on the hazard scale than alcohol and tobacco, two drugs whose use in our society is legal and, in some cases, condoned and encouraged. Senator Eastland since the hearings has come out for decriminalization of the marijuana laws. The scientists involved in the studies have stated, "... as scientists our position is simply that of wanting the legislator and the public to be well-informed on all the sides of this issue . . . As concerned citizens we would not like to state our personal hope for a move toward the decriminalization of marijuana possession."

Decriminalization is intended to reduce the harm caused by treating marijuana users as criminals. It is not based on the premise that marijuana is harmless.

League considers RTA

The League of Women Voters of Illinois, coordinating with local Leagues throughout the six county area, worked hard for establishment of RTA. As a result of those labors we are aware of the sensitive political situation and the need for a unified board that can get on with the business of coordinating transportation in the region. We hope that two equally important criteria will be considered when the choice of a chairman and executive director is made.

We support regional comprehensive planning. We think that the new chairman should possess not only the qualifications of a transportation expert but also a commitment of comprehensive planning. A coordinated system of transportation means integration of the system's own parts and harmonization with other systems — with planning for capital development, environmental quality, housing, and jobs.

But we also have another concern. When we were campaigning for RTA, we tried to assure our audiences that the board would not be captive to any local interests. If these assurances are to come true, the new chairman must be able to bring together the interests and needs of the whole region and maintain a neutral stance with respect to the political forces which brought RTA into being. We hope that the leadership will be unaltered in reality or appearance to local political factions; we suspect that such a person would have to come from outside Illinois.

We look forward to a sound, fairly implemented, and coordinated system of transportation for our region.

Cheers Wheeling 'ride along' plan

In view of the recent criticism being directed towards the Wheeling Police Department, I would like to encourage Wheeling residents to consider taking part in the department's "ride along" program designed to enable residents of Wheeling to spend time with a police officer on duty, "riding along" while the officer performs many of the day to day activities that go into what we so often refer to as "police work." Those "riding along" have the chance to see what goes into many of the day to day operations of the village police department and, perhaps more importantly, are permitted to ask any and all questions that might come to mind during the course of the "tour." The particular officer with whom I spent one entire eight hour shift was completely candid and straightforward in answering the many questions I had, and he made it quite clear from the outset that I need not worry about asking the "wrong" kind of questions or other types of questions not considered appropriate for discussion. Nothing was hidden or avoided, and during the eight hour tour, I questioned almost every aspect of police activities, not necessarily from a critical point of view, but more often to gain a better insight into what was happening at any given moment. All too often what I considered to be "something with very little reason behind it" actually turned out to be a most important part of the officer's day to day responsibilities.

While I could continue listing the specific reasons why I found participation in this program both enjoyable and informative, suffice it to say that the best reason for a program such as this is to inform the residents of Wheeling as to what actually does transpire during a police officer's day — and it is obvious to me that, based on what I observed, much of what "actually" was happening was in reality quite different from what I had long come to expect, and much of my "bias" towards certain police activities quickly vanished when I had the opportunity to view the situation from both sides.

No thanks, Mr. President!

Book fee referendum applauded

As a taxpayer, I feel commendation is most deservedly due to the school board of Dist. 54. This past month they initiated proceedings to begin work on a referendum to be held Nov. 2 to discontinue the payment of book fees.

In this day of grave inflation, I feel this is a very progressive and fiscally responsible action on their part. As a member of the community, I applaud this action and urge all registered to vote "yes" for free text books.

'Monopoly' blasted

Our garbage men are really nice. I've never heard them complain when they picked up a little extra refuse or had to go out of their way to pick up the scattered remains of our bags after someone's dogs have gotten to the bags. They probably deserve a raise. God knows, who wants to mess with someone else's smelly garbage five days a week.

The bids last year were sent out twice because Laseke's was higher than the other company, therefore favoring Laseke's, which action, as far as I'm concerned, borders on illegality, if not outright ignoring the law.

This city is supporting and encouraging a monopoly. That is illegal. Federal law forbids monopolistic practices.

It is apparent from this and other actions by our board of trustees that they have an unhealthy respect for incurring Rudy Hanson's ire.

Citizens of Arlington Heights, arise. If you cannot attend a board meeting, call or write your trustees and let them know how you feel about another raise in the garbage rates.

My very sincere feelings are that before granting anything to Laseke, that company must present its books to auditors and especially to the public, so that the voters can be sure just how badly another increase is needed.

55 m.p.h. for buses 'frustrating'

In regards to my recent editorial that 55 m.p.h. is a poor law, I drive a bus for Greyhound between Chicago and Cleveland, Ohio, a total of 80,000 miles a year. Driving 55 m.p.h. you slow down and die. Some of those truckers didn't make it.

We are not allowed to smoke, play our radios, talk to passengers, all we are allowed to do is drive 55 m.p.h.

The Ohio turnpike troopers have a radar that can pick up a vehicle a mile and a half away going in the opposite direction. They enforce this law and they are plentiful.

In a car, I don't mind driving 55 m.p.h. because I can regulate my time. I can stop if I get tired or sleepy, but when you drive a bus you have a schedule to maintain. Can you imagine the frustration of a passenger who misses his connection, or maybe someone waiting for him at a specific point? What is going through their minds? People always think the worse.

I say driving 55 m.p.h. in a car is fine. I always do ever since this law came into effect, but when you have a job to do you have to do it the best of your ability. In a large vehicle, if you drive at a low speed, they have to be geared down, which uses a lot more fuel. Large vehicles are designed for greater speeds and are really harmful to engines if the speed is too slow.

I remember having a local run from Chicago to Cleveland driving 55 m.p.h. With all the work I had to do, stopping at stations, passengers getting on and off, transferring baggage and freight, I lost 60 minutes along with a lot of good will.

Lauds story about 'women's concerns'

The articles on childbirth by Monica Perin were such a welcome sight. Too many women complain about their childbirth experience without accepting responsibility for the decisions made. Mrs. Perin's article shows that the trend may be changing. As women begin to really believe that the doctor does not deliver the baby but that the mother delivers the baby, the doctor receives it, there is a natural restructuring of the whole emphasis on the birth experience.

For instance, women are no longer satisfied with simply placing their bodies on a table designed for the convenience of the doctor (such as that photographed for the article) instead of to facilitate the woman's ability to most effectively give birth. Hospitals are beginning to redesign delivery tables to increase flexibility. Certainly the doctors hired to help with the delivery should be no less flexible yet they remain amazingly resilient to change. Can a doctor produce a maternity patient on which she has not performed an episiotomy? My doctor assured my husband that the procedure was for her sake. I'd be as good as new.

Thank you Mrs. Perin, for reflecting accurately women's concerns!

'Marijuana foe distorts issue'

Mr. Dowd's Fence Post letter regarding marijuana is regrettable for three reasons.

First, in quoting from the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee hearings, he is resorting to scare propaganda tactics which have proved to be completely counterproductive in the past. The charges he makes about marijuana are based on research which was conducted using levels of consumption that are unattainable in humans; which was conducted in many cases by scientists with a well-known anti-marijuana bias; and which is contradicted not only by the reports of such objective investigators as the Nixon Commission and Consumers Union, but also by the first hand experience of millions of responsible marijuana users. The Senate hearings, by the way, permitted testimony only from those who claimed marijuana to be terribly harmful, so naturally the report of the Subcommittee concludes that marijuana is terribly harmful.

Second, Mr. Dowd completely ignores the distinction between legalization and decriminalization. It's one thing to argue that pot should not be legally sold. (Shades of alcohol prohibition!) It's quite another to argue that we should treat users as criminals, tying up our courts and police and giving thousands of young people in Illinois each year a criminal arrest record to bear for the rest of our lives. We should continue to issue honest and accurate warnings of the harm caused by marijuana and by other drugs, such as alcohol and tobacco. But let's not forget the greater harm caused by the marijuana laws.

Supports local rock group

This letter is to correct an oversight on the part of our newspaper and the publicity committee for the Hoffman Estates anniversary celebration.

In your community you have a jazz rock band named Penny Royal that has given time, effort, and equipment to Hoffman Estates, and have received no recognition. They loaned their P.A. system to the village for the anniversary celebration and received no thanks. They have played for the Fourth of July, the Park District, and the anniversary and received almost no publicity. When and where they play is a very well-kept secret in this village.

Reconsider 'week'

Did you know the Buffalo Grove Village Board has proclaimed October 7-14 as "Respect Life Week," as requested by the Illinois Right to Life Committee?

If you are a resident of Buffalo Grove and this action offends you, drop a note to the village board, 50 Raupp Blvd. With enough letters they might reconsider.

Mary K. Romeo
Buffalo Grove

I am a former resident of Hoffman, and still have parants there. In the ten years spent in Hoffman it was stressed that youth was encouraged in their endeavors. Is this still true?

The members of Penny Royal are from Hoffman. All except one have played in school bands. Three members are presently in the jazz band at Harper. Maybe you don't consider this a local group?

My husband and I are not teeny boppers — we are almost members of the over-30 generation. We have followed Penny Royal from Barrington to Park Ridge to hear them play. We hate to see a good group with a lot of potential shoved aside by their own community.

They have played for the high schools and church dances in their own community and received no publicity. When Penny Royal played a school dance in Barrington, the local paper advertised it widely.

If Hoffman Estates and its wonderful newspaper are encouraging the youth of the community, prove it! Let's give Penny Royal a little credit and a little publicity.

Paul Simon hits comeback trail—50,000 miles worth

MARION, ILL. (UPI) — The retirement of Rep. Kenneth J. Gray, D-Ill., after 20 years of representing "Little Egypt" in Congress, has produced one of the top interest races in Illinois in the November election.

The contest in the 24th congressional district in southern Illinois represents a comeback effort by former Lt. Gov. Paul Simon, a Democrat, and Republican Val Oshel, who fell only 17,000 short of 210,000 votes cast in 1968 against Gray.

Some political leaders on both sides see Simon, who lost to Gov. Daniel Walker in an upset in the 1972 gubernatorial primary, as a near dead clinch winner.

Oshel said he would have agreed two months ago because of Simon's recognition factor. "But I think the pendulum has swung the other way now and that I have the momentum going for me."

SIMON, 45, A FORMER TROY weekly newspaper publisher who served eight years in the Illinois House and six years in the Senate, winning some "best legislator" awards, now lives in Carbondale.

His staff says he has traveled more than 50,000 miles in the district since he began his campaign last November and this week will complete a campaign promise of visiting all 376 towns in the district.

Some of his travels included a political vacation in which he toured the district in a camper trailer promoting tourism and himself.

Oshel, 48, Harrisburg, formerly was vice president and general manager of a surgical supply company in Harrisburg and Harrisburg mayor before he joined the administration of former Gov. Richard Ogilvie as assistant director of the Department of Public Works and then became Illinois Civil Defense director. More recently, he has been sales representative for a St. Louis chemical firm.

He has campaigned in each of the 22 counties in the sprawling district at teas, potlucks, political meetings, coffees and gospel sings and in door-to-door visits whenever possible. Oshel, a baritone, even cut a gospel songs-pop tunes record to help finance his campaign.

Simon already has issued position papers on agriculture, ethics in government, gun control and crime, the gar-licky wheat problem, inflation and the economy, railroads, waterways and coal development, with others to come.

Simon, who has substantial support among liberals and labor, said President Ford in his inflation fighting program "should have been concentrating on closing tax loopholes instead of proposing additional taxes on individuals."

Oshel SAYS THE ECONOMY is the number one issue. He said the Ford surtax proposal apparently was the only part of the package that is causing any serious objections. Oshel said some means was necessary to raise money to provide employment for the jobless, "but I would have preferred to have raised the cutoff limits to $20,000 and $25,000."

Oshel has emphasized the need for coal gasification plants, tourism and industrial development.

ELECTION 1974

Simon has out-out-gunned Oshel thus far in bringing in nationally known political figures to support his campaign. Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., spoke at a $50 a plate dinner attended by more than 1,000 persons and House Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., is scheduled to speak for him in Salem Oct. 18. Simon's staff said at least two more nationally-known Democrats are expected.

Oshel headquarters says Richard Obenshain, vice chairman of the GOP national committee, and John Kyle, undersecretary of the Interior Department, will campaign in the district for him.

And Oshel says the "chances are very good" the President will fly to the district in his behalf within 10 days of the Nov. 5 election.

North Suburban Library gets $180,000 state aid

The North suburban Library system is $180,000 richer thanks to a grant from the Illinois State Library and will establish a Library Resources Enrichment program, it was announced by Robert R. McClarren, system director.

According to McClarren, the program is designed to increase the quantity and improve and enrich the depth and scope of library materials available to users of library system collections.

"The enrichment program," said

McClarren, "will enable some of our member libraries to make materials purchases which could not otherwise have been afforded due to budget restrictions."

The North suburban Library system is comprised of 35 member public libraries in Cook, Lake and Kane Counties and is located in Morton Grove. It provides these libraries access to books, films, periodicals, facilities and services which are generally unavailable from local resources.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Vinegar no health harm

In a recent column you discussed the use of vinegar to tenderize meat before cooking and state that, "any alcohol present will be destroyed in the cooking process."

My question is, what effect does vinegar have on the body health, particularly the stomach? I have read that some feel that it hinders the digestion of starch and some proteins. I have also read literature advocating the use of vinegar for certain illnesses. Would you please tell me in as simple a language as possible the effect of distilled vinegar and apple cider vinegar?

First, you have taken the statement about alcohol out of context. That referred to the use of wine to tenderize meats. Vinegar contains no alcohol.

Vinegar is acetic acid. What is acetic acid? It is similar in some ways to alcohol. It is made of two carbon atoms and some hydrogen and oxygen. It is a weak acid and is responsible for that acid-like reaction of vinegar.

Now, all our food that is converted completely to energy, for any purpose in the body, must first be broken down to acetic acid. The sugar you eat, the fat in your meat or other foods, and even the proteins you tear down and use for energy must first be converted to acetic acid before they complete the cycle in the cell to be converted to energy, carbon dioxide and water.

Initially all our food begins with the formation of carbohydrates in plants by the action of energy from the sun and using carbon dioxide and water. When the energy is released in the body all foods are converted back to carbon dioxide, water and energy. That is the energy cycle.

OBVIOUSLY VINEGAR added to food in reasonable amounts does not harm a normal stomach nor does not interfere with normal digestion of starch or other foods. The stomach normally produces even more acid digestive juice to cause digestion.

Vinegar is not much use as a medication. It is often cited in folk medicine but such old-fashioned ideas are about as useful as the idea that the way to cure people of all sorts of illnesses is to bleed them. Doctors once did that 200 years ago. That is probably the immediate cause of George Washington's death.

Specifically, vinegar and honey do not dissolve cataracts of the eye or have other magical qualities.

THERE ARE NO important differences between apple cider vinegar and distilled vinegar. The main ingredient in both is acetic acid. You can get a difference in flavor from traces of chemicals from the fruit. This applies to apple cider vinegar or wine vinegar.

Both apple cider and fruit juices can ferment to form alcohol, then the alcohol can be converted to vinegar. Because alcohol and acetic acid are similar in some respects it is chemically easy for wine to turn to vinegar. Fortunately, vinegar has none of the intoxicating effects or the harmful effects on the cells that alcohol does.

In the body alcohol is converted directly to acetic acid by means of an enzyme in the cell and then metabolized just like acetic acid from fat, carbohydrate, or proteins to release energy, carbon dioxide, and water. This process uses oxygen. So plants release oxygen in forming food containing energy, and we use oxygen to tear the food apart to release energy.

Links between mental disorders and 'aging process'

(This column is presented by Forest Hospital in Des Plaines.)

While most elderly people never develop mental disorders, the number who do is greater in proportion to people in their younger years, says the author of the book, "Successful Aging."

Dr. Eric Pfeiffer, professor of psychiatry at Duke University, uses the most common definition of old age, after 65. "Though there is some aging before that, even as early as 50," he said.

In discussing the incidence of mental illness in old age, Pfeiffer called mental illness a substantial emotional disorder or a deviation from a person's optimal functioning.

"The old share some of the same mental illnesses with the young," he said, "but more strictly speaking, it's an interesting phenomenon that a relatively narrow spectrum of psychiatric illnesses makes up most of the mental illnesses that are seen in later life. This tells us something of the nature of aging and something about the treatment approach to older people."

"THERE ARE BASICALLY two kinds of mental illnesses that befall the aged," said Pfeiffer, "and their incidence is split about 50-50. There's mental illness related to loss of brain tissue functioning and illness where there's no loss of brain tissue functioning but, nevertheless, mental disorders, called functional disorders, do occur. The most prevalent of the latter is depression, followed by hypochondriases, paranoid reaction, and transient situational disturbances."

"The organic kind of mental illness, accompanied by deterioration of brain tissue, manifests itself by difficulty with memory and orientation — knowing where one is and what the situation is, the date, the time, who the people around one are.

"There are two diseases to which this can be attributed. There's senile brain disease, in which there's a diffuse scattered loss of brain tissue throughout the brain. This leads to very severe disorders of memory, intellectual capacity and the capacity to remain oriented. Then there's direct death of major brain areas as a result of hardening of the arteries. This kind can be prevented effectively through medication for hypertension, by lowering the blood pressure in persons with high blood pressure."

"In the case of senile brain disease," Pfeiffer said, "research has yet to find the basic cause."

"There's another kind of organic brain syndrome which is quite reversible and is caused by either a general medical condition such as heart failure or emphysema or by injudicious use of medications, usually taking too large a dose. Dosages in many cases should be lowered for older brains."

"THE VAST MAJORITY of disorders of old age are responses to losses or to adverse conditions — loss of a job, loss of loved ones or roles in society or the capacity to move about. If there's a massive loss, or losses with no new things to take their place, this causes depressive illness, which, incidentally, is highly treatable even in old age."

The search for mental health things are anticipated, they can be handled very well.

"Losses are inevitable. I suggest making an effort to find a new friend for, say, every five friends lost. The job? Ideally, people should be allowed to retire gradually. This is relatively easy for people in the professions, but usually not possible for others. I think people should reintegrate into the educational process, as learners and/or teachers. They should reacquire membership in groups and roles."

"A person should prepare for old age from time to time throughout life, especially during the 40s and 50s. Financially, preparation should start in the 40s at the latest," Pfeiffer said.

A cold could kill him

David, 3, learning to cope in his plastic-bubble world

HOUSTON (UPI) — For David, a 3-year-old who has never felt the touch of a human hand, the world is a sterile plastic bubble isolating him from ordinary germs that could take his life.

An inherited defect robbed David's body of its ability to produce immunity against the billions of germs in the environment. A common cold could kill him.

He was placed in the isolator within a half-minute after his birth and has remained there since, learning to sit, stand, and coordinate use of his hands while a team of Baylor College of Medicine scientists watched.

"He's a superbly healthy, happy and headstrong little boy who is doing very well," said Dr. Raphael Wilson, professor of pediatrics and the child's godfather.

DAVID'S ADAPTABILITY is forcing doctors to revise ideas about what is necessary for normal personality development.

Doctors once thought human touch and the chance to cling to parents were vital to personality development.

"Now we know that this is not true," Dr. David A. Freedman, a psychiatrist, said. "He demonstrates — at least for now — that perhaps body touch and odors and other sensory experiences may not be all that relevant after all."

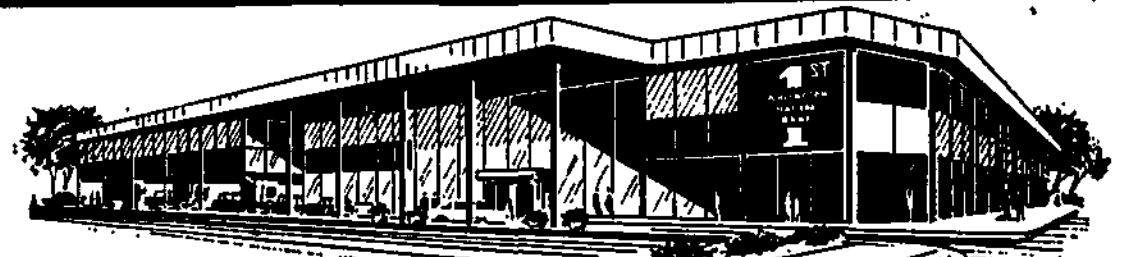

David gets to visit his parents in a special traveling container at times and in the hospital he has three connecting units, including a toy-filled playroom. The hospital has withheld the identity of the family which lives in Houston.

Wilson said efforts are under way to find a way to repair or to cure the combined immune deficiency disease. As for the future, Wilson said David can keep growing and learning under the present protected system.

"He's not sick — in fact he's never been sick, not even a cold — so I think we have time to figure out the precise way to help him."

"I remain optimistic that he will one day be perfectly normal in the regular world."

Fruit and cheese The Continental dessert

Economical and tempting desserts become colorful appetite pleasers when placed on the table for breakfast, brunch or lunch. This is the season for apples — the peak of harvest and goodness for this all-American fruit.

In the true continental tradition of serving fruit and cheese at the end of the meal, form a bright red blossom with a ball of gouda cheese and a large red apple. Or create a colorful fruit bowl by topping layers of apple wedges, melon cubes, halved plums or other fruits with the spicy flavor of leyden cheese with cummin. Enhance the dish and delight taste buds with a quick fruity dressing made with strawberry preserves. To develop the full flavor of the cheese, let stand at room temperature one-half hour before serving or cooking.

Kuchen (kook'n) is a tasty German dessert idea that adds excitement to brunch or lunch when made with flavorful apples, nut-like gouda cheese and topped with pure apricot preserves. And a simple cheese cake becomes a continental delight when made with edam or gouda cheese, topped with apple slices and glazed with raspberry preserves.

APPLE-CHEESE BLOSSOM

- 1 baby gouda cheese
- 1 large unpeeled red apple, cored

Cut cheese into 8 wedges; fan out on plate to look like flower petals. Cut cored apple into wedges and place between cheese petals. Center with a sprig of mint or parsley.

Makes 8 appetizer servings.

CONTINENTAL CHEESE-FRUIT BOWL

- 1 honeydew melon, seeded and cut in cubes
- 1 cantaloupe, seeded and cut in cubes
- 1 pound Italian plums, halved and pitted
- 2 unpeeled red apples, cut in wedges
- 1/2 pound leyden cheese

Prepare fruit and chill. Dip apple wedges in lemon juice. Layer fruit in glass bowl or brandy snifter and top with a layer of cheese cubes.

Makes 6 servings.

STRAWBERRY YOGURT DRESSING

- 1 container (8 oz.) plain yogurt
- 1/2 cup strawberry preserves
- 1 tablespoon grated lemon rind

Combine ingredients and chill. Serve as dressing for fruit bowl.

Makes 1 1/2 cups.

APRICOT-GLAZED APPLE-CHEESE KUCHEN

- 1/2 cup milk
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1/4 cup warm water
- 1 package active dry yeast
- 1 egg
- 2 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
- 1 1/2 cups grated gouda cheese
- 5-6 red cooking apples
- Melted butter or margarine
- Nutmeg
- 1 jar (12 oz.) apricot preserves

Combine milk, sugar, salt and butter or margarine in a saucepan; heat until butter melts. Cool. Measure warm water into a mixing bowl and sprinkle in yeast. Stir to dissolve. Add milk mixture and egg. Beat in flour and cheese. Cover bowl with a damp towel and let dough rise in a warm place for about 1 hour, or until double in bulk. Punch down. Press dough into greased oblong baking pan (13x9x2 inches). Cut apples into thin wedges and dip in melted butter or margarine. Arrange apple wedges on the dough and sprinkle with nutmeg. Sieve the preserves, or whirl in a blender until smooth. Spread the preserve mixture over the apples. Let rise 25 minutes. Bake at 375 degrees for 35 to 40 minutes.

Makes one 13x9x2-inch kuchen.

- | | |
|-----------------------------|--------------------------------|
| Pastry: | 1 1/2 cups sifted sugar |
| 1 cup all-purpose flour | 3 tablespoons cornstarch |
| 1/4 cup sugar | 1 tablespoon grated lemon rind |
| 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon | 1/2 teaspoon vanilla |
| 1/2 teaspoon vanilla | 5 whole eggs |
| 1/4 cup butter or margarine | 2 egg yolks |
| 1 egg yolk | 1/4 cup heavy cream |

- | | |
|--------------------------------------|----------------------------|
| Filling: | Topping: |
| 4 packages (8 oz. each) cream cheese | Unpeeled red apples, cored |
| 2 cups shredded edam or gouda cheese | Raspberry preserves |

For pastry, mix flour, sugar, cinnamon and vanilla. Cut in butter or margarine. Stir in egg yolk. Press the mixture into a ball; wrap and chill. Roll the chilled dough into a large circle and fit into a 9 or 10-inch spring form pan, pressing dough about 1-inch up on sides of pan. If dough tears or breaks, press it together to make a smooth surface. Bake at 400 degrees for 15 minutes. Cool.

For filling, soften cream cheese. Place in large mixer bowl and beat until fluffy. Beat in shredded gouda or edam cheese. Combine sugar, cornstarch, lemon rind and vanilla. Add to cheese mixture and beat until smooth. Add eggs and egg yolks one at a time, beating well after each addition. Stir in cream. Turn cheese mixture into pastry-lined pan. Bake at 375 degrees for 50 minutes. Cool on rack for 30 minutes. Return cake to oven and bake an additional 30 minutes. Cool cake on rack. Loosen and remove pan sides. Chill cake.

For topping, spread top of cake with a few tablespoons raspberry preserves, then circle edge with a ring of thinly sliced apple rounds. Fill center of each round with a spoonful of raspberry preserves. Or, for a cooked apple topping, cut apple rounds thicker (about 1/2-inch). In a skillet, combine 1/2 cup water and 1/4 cup raspberry preserves. Heat. Simmer apple rounds in syrup until fork tender. Carefully remove apple rounds. Cool before placing on cake.

Makes one 9 or 10-inch cake.

VARIATION

For an even richer and more unusual cheese cake, proceed as above to bake and cool pastry. Cover bottom crust with peeled, thinly sliced apple rounds. Spread apple rounds generously with raspberry preserves. Carefully spoon in filling so as not to disturb the fruit/jam layer. Bake as directed.

Mrs. Lee Hisler

Her bread recipes are originals

by LOIS SEILER

Baking is Angie Hisler's hobby. Never content with a recipe as is, she always changes them to suit her taste. After experimenting and perfecting a recipe, it becomes truly her own, giving her a great deal of satisfaction.

This Mount Prospect cook's favorite activity is bread-baking, her specialty being Sour Dough French Bread. Although made with a sour dough starter, it tastes more like a french bread, according to Angie.

The recipe accompanying the authentic San Francisco sour dough starter which Angie obtained from a friend didn't quite meet her expectations. She then combined the original sour dough recipe with one for French bread and added a few touches of her own. The result satisfies Angie, delights her husband, Lee, and daughter, Laura, 6, and the many friends and neighbors with whom the homemade bread is shared.

Angie keeps the sour dough starter in the refrigerator, replenishing it each time she uses some. Hers has been going for two years now, and will keep indefinitely as long as it is fed regularly, said Angie.

The bread is a two-day enterprise, which may frighten off some homemakers. However, Angie insists that the bread is not hard to make. A basic sponge is made the day before with a cup of sour dough starter, honey, dissolved yeast, salt, soda and flour. Set in a warm place for 18 hours, it will rise then fall. The next day, more flour is added and the bread is kneaded for 15 minutes.

"This gets a bit tiring," Angie explained, "but thorough kneading results in superior texture."

Just before baking, the loaves are glazed with water, which gives them a crispy crust to complement the bread's fine, light texture. The recipe makes four loaves, and any that aren't eaten or given away will freeze nicely.

Another recipe which Angie revised is an unusual zucchini bread. Less pungent than pumpkin bread, this bread does not taste like zucchini but, according to Angie, just tastes good.

Four cups of zucchini are blended with eggs in a blender, then transferred to a mixing bowl when other ingredients are added. Orange juice, brown sugar and cinnamon give flavor to this bread, which is baked with a decorative topping of chopped nuts. Moist in texture, it may be used as a tea bread or for snacking.

SOUR DOUGH FRENCH BREAD

Yeast starter:

- 1 small cake yeast
- 2 cups warm water
- 2 cups flour
- 1 tablespoon sugar

Combine ingredients in order listed; mix well. Place in glass bowl or pottery container. Cover with cheesecloth or dish towel. Let stand at room temperature for 48 hours, stirring down several times a day. The starter is now ready to be used, or it can be stored in refrigerator in a tightly-covered Tupperware container or glass jar as long as a month.

To replenish starter after using, add equal amounts of flour and water — usually one cup of each is sufficient. Do not add any other ingredients, and never add any leftover batter. Always stir before using. Starter will keep indefinitely if used and fed regularly.

To make the bread, have the following ingredients:

- 1 cup sour dough starter, at room temperature
- 2 tablespoons honey
- 1 package dry yeast or 1 small cake yeast
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 7 cups unsifted flour

The day before, make the sponge. Stir starter and combine with honey in a large bowl. Add yeast to warm water and mix until dissolved. Add to starter and honey mixture.

Combine salt, soda and 3 cups flour. Add to above one cup at a time. Mix until combined. Cover lightly with a piece of plastic wrap and set in a warm place for 18 hours. It will rise way up and fall down.

The next day, stir down sponge. Then add 3 cups flour. Turn onto a bread board and knead for 15 minutes, using additional four as needed. (Much depends on the weather; some days you need more flour, other days less.)

Place in a buttered bowl, cover and let rise until doubled. Punch down dough and let rise another 30 minutes. Turn dough out onto a floured board and let rest for ten minutes before shaping.

Shape dough into four small loaves. Place on either two cookie sheets or into four 9 by 5-inch loaf pans which have been well-greased and sprinkled on the bottom with cornmeal. Let bread rise until double in bulk. Just before baking, carefully slash top of each loaf twice on the diagonal with a sharp knife. Glaze loaves with water. Bake at 400 degrees for 30 minutes. Yield: 4 loaves.

Plan a cheese party

The latest party idea is to invite several people to your home for a cheese tasting. Some folks like to add a selection of wines to make a wine and cheese tasting, while others prefer beer, punch, cocktails or coffee.

How much cheese do you need? This can be a baffling question when you go to make your selection. If it's after dinner, figure on each pound serving 10 people; if before, 6 people per pound.

When you are making Smorrebrod, as the Danes term their open-faced sandwiches with many assorted foods, cheese is always included, like Tybo, Havarti, and Danish Blue. The Smorrebrod can be made in petite sizes for hors d'oeuvres.

To store left over cheese wrap it tightly in plastic film wrap or bags. When cheese is kept airtight it will last much longer. If you are really going to be keeping the cheese longer than a few days, wrap it first in foil and then in plastic and place in an airtight container, such as the rigid plastic storage boxes used for leftovers. It keeps much longer.

Consumer notes

Do not mix open packages of dried peas or beans that were bought at different times, especially several months apart. Fresher legumes cook faster than old ones.

To avoid contamination, food to be defrosted never should be placed on top of or on the shelf above other food.

Grease build ups on porcelain enamel cooking and serving utensils can be scraped off with a double edged razor blade. Hold the blade at an angle as you would in removing paint splatters from a windowpane.

One ounce of lean cooked pork contains fewer than 70 calories.

ZUCCHINI BREAD

- 3 eggs
- 2 medium-size zucchini (about 4 cups), peeled and cut in chunks
- 2 tablespoons orange juice
- 2 cups brown sugar
- 1 cup oil
- 3 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 cup chopped nuts

Whip eggs in blender. Then add cut-up zucchini a little at a time until blended in. Add orange juice and blend until mixed in.

Pour into mixer bowl. Beat in brown sugar and oil. Mix all dry ingredients together and beat into batter a little at a time until all is mixed in. Beat well.

Turn into two 9 by 5-inch greased pans. Sprinkle ½ cup chopped nuts over each loaf. Bake at 325 degrees for one hour. Yield: 2 loaves.

ANGIE HISLER considers kneading bread dough excellent therapy for unleashing everyday frustrations. Her family, however, enjoys the results such as Sour Dough French Bread. The recipe is one Angie created herself.

Farm Bureau specialists urge consumers to buy meat

Farm Bureau marketing specialists are encouraging homemakers to "stock up on meat." There will be a lot of beef and pork on the market during the next two weeks and there should be quite a few bargains at the meat counter, according to the specialists.

But the forecast for lower beef prices borders on assumption. Check the ads, shop around for specials and you may be able to save money in the word from the Farm Bureau. Though beef and pork prices have recently dropped to more favorable levels, drastic reductions are unlikely. Urging consumers to stock up on the meat is not entirely an altruistic move on the part of the Farm Bureau. All its news releases clearly state that "at the same time you will be helping livestock producers who are losing money at current prices and need an increase in demand to move large supplies of meat from the feed lots to the dinner tables."

In all fairness, farmers are under considerable price pressure because of higher feed costs. Their attempt to sell more beef is understandable and current meat prices have decreased from earlier this year.

DECREASES in wholesale prices for beef have not resulted in corresponding drops in retail prices, adding to the farmer's plight. Dawson Ahalt, director of U.S. Department of Agriculture's economists, said price spreads for beef have increased by about 50 per cent between 1963 and 1973, while those for pork have increased by about one-third.

Farmers are complaining that they lose money for every animal they slaughter, while consumers complain about the high meat prices.

Ahalt suggested before a congressional committee recently that increases in meat price spreads were caused partially by food retailers changing their pricing policies to increase profits in their meat departments.

It seems both farmers and consumers are the losers at opposite ends of the marketing scale. As long as those ominous "middle men" profit, neither stands to win.

by Fran Heckart

LOOKING TO Thanksgiving, consumers can expect plentiful supplies of turkey and cranberries.

Fall turkey production will be lower, but record storage stocks should assure supplies for the coming holiday, according to marketing reports.

A bumper cranberry crop is coming out of Wisconsin, Washington and New Jersey. Initial forecasts are for a 6 per cent increase above last year's crop and an 8 per cent hike above 1972. Wisconsin — expecting a 19 per cent increase in its crop — will likely have a record crop.

Hot sandwiches for fall lunches

The lazy days of summer are past and the tangy, brisk days of fall herald the start of a new season, a new mood. You walk more energetically, you consider carefully the possibility of a new bulky winter coat, and you plan the week's menus with real enthusiasm and a change of attitude.

For when winter approaches, it's just natural to discard the makeshift habits of hot summer days and think about hearty meals for the family; succulent chowders, robust stews and big crocks of baked beans for dinner, hot and nourishing sandwiches for lunch instead of the array of cold cuts set casually upon the table. Living becomes more serious, the kitchen becomes once again your workshop, and the attention of the family is focused within instead of without the house.

This is the best time of the year to enjoy the fragrant aroma of piping hot breads, with a moist, flavorful salmon filling enfolded within the crusty exterior. So here are two recipes for hot salmon-filled luncheon sandwiches.

Salmon Sesame uses your own home-made quick bread, while Curried Salmon Roll-Ups utilizes prepackaged refrigerated dinner rolls. Both are hot luncheon dishes you will want to serve often.

SALMON SESAME

- 1 1-pound can salmon (or two 7½-oz. cans)
- ½ cup chopped onion
- 1 cup well-drained small canned peas
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 1 cup diced Cheddar cheese
- 2 cups all-purpose flour
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ cup melted butter
- 2/3 cup milk
- Sesame seeds
- 1 10½-oz. can cream of mushroom soup
- Tabasco

Drain salmon, reserving liquid, and combine salmon with onion, peas, salt, pepper and cheese. In mixing bowl combine flour, baking powder and ¼ teaspoon salt. Stir in butter and milk to make a firm dough. Roll dough out into a rectangle on lightly floured board. Transfer to baking sheet. Spoon salmon mixture down center of rectangle in a band about 4 inches wide. Slash dough on each side at intervals of about 1-inch. Then roll one side, then the other, up and over the salmon mixture. Sprinkle with sesame seeds and bake in a preheated 425 degrees oven for 20 to 25 minutes or until lightly browned. Meanwhile combine soup with reserved salmon liquid. Heat and season with a little Tabasco. Serve as a sauce. Serves 6.

CURRIED SALMON ROLL-UPS

- 1 egg
- 1 teaspoon curry powder
- 1 teaspoon parsley flakes
- 7½-ounce can salmon, drained and flaked
- ½ teaspoon instant onion flakes

- 12 Parker House refrigerated dinner rolls
- 2 tablespoons soft butter

Beat egg lightly and set aside 1 tablespoon for later use. Combine remaining beaten egg with curry powder, parsley, onion flakes and salmon.

With rolling pin roll out each dinner roll into a thin rectangle 3x5 inches. Spread each rectangle lightly with butter, then with the salmon mixture. Roll up like fat jelly rolls and arrange on baking sheet. Brush rolls with reserved beaten egg. Bake in preheated 375 degree oven for 10 to 12 minutes. Serve hot. Makes 12 roll-ups.

BROILED SALMON AND CHEESE SANDWICH TRIANGLES

- 7½-ounce can salmon, drained and flaked
- ¼ cup mayonnaise
- 1 tablespoon minced onion
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 6 slices toast, cut into triangles
- ½ cup shredded Cheddar cheese

Combine salmon, mayonnaise, onion, salt and pepper. Mound mixture on toast triangles, sprinkle with cheese and broil under low heat until cheese melts. Serve hot. Makes 12 triangles.

Vegetarian diets; the pros and cons

by JEANNE LESEM

Vegetarianism can help you cope with high food prices. But it has hidden dangers.

Many new vegetarians are coming down with deficiency disease such as rickets, pellagra and scurvy. Irreversible physical and mental defects are showing up in the children of some vegetarian parents, medical records show.

Daria Erhard, a research nutritionist at San Francisco General Hospital, sees a lot of the problem at the Clinical Study Center there.

Most vegetarian diets contain plenty of protein, Mrs. Erhard reported in Nutrition Today, a journal for the health professions. The food-related illnesses caused by meatless diets can be treated without difficulty if patients cooperate.

Mrs. Erhard is not opposed to vegetarianism as such. She praised many members of the counterculture for living quite normal lives and kicking drug habits. Some become so interested in what they eat that they're willing to calculate nutrient intake from food supplement tables supplied by the study center.

THEIR LACK OF overweight is also to their credit. So is their view of food preparation as a rewarding experience. They tend to eat simple foods without rich sauces and to cook in ways that conserve nutrients.

"Ill health occurs mainly in fanatics, those true believers who develop a psychological fixation on the teachings of their chosen prophets and blindly follow them to a bitter end," Mrs. Erhard said.

Vegetarians who take their doctrine quite literally are the most danger-prone. They're more likely to reject members of the health professions who could show them how to avoid or cure deficiency diseases without violating the principles of their cult.

Mrs. Erhard suggested:

Use dairy and poultry supplements, such as milk and eggs, to meet nutritional requirements for all age groups. A meatless diet that lacks even these protein foods can lead to vitamin B12 deficiency.

Marinated mushrooms

Slice 1 pound medium-sized fresh mushrooms; place in plastic bag. Combine ½ cup salad oil; ¼ cup fresh squeezed lemon juice; 1½ teaspoons fresh grated lemon peel; 1 teaspoon each oregano leaves, crushed and garlic salt; and 1/8 teaspoon ground white pepper. Pour over mushrooms; seal bag. Marinate for several hours in refrigerator, turning bag occasionally. Drain marinade and save for use as salad dressing or for marinating other foods. Serve mushrooms on lettuce leaf. Yield: appetizers for 12.

ciency and irreversible degeneration of the spinal cord.

Mrs. Erhard said followers of the Vegan cult are in particular danger because their diet contains adequate amounts of vitamin that masks B12 deficiency until the incurable stage.

THE MAIN DEFECT in most vegetarian diets is poor quality amino acid content. To improve it, Mrs. Erhard recommends plenty of cereal grains, beans and other legumes, nuts and nut-like seeds in meals.

Meals should also include enough fats and carbohydrates so protein intake won't be burned up as a source of calories.

A diet that excludes eggs as well as meat but allows dairy products poses only one serious problem: the risk of iron-deficiency anemia.

Children whose diets are low in Vitamin D are especially susceptible to rickets, a disfiguring bone deformity disease. If they're city-dwellers, the risk is still greater because they're usually not exposed to enough sunlight, which could help prevent the problem.

Some new vegetarians avoid problems with a typical dieter's dodge. They slip away to a hamburger stand occasionally.

Mrs. Erhard said more devout vegetarians tend to rationalize this as good homeopathic practice.

They think they're reintroducing a little poison into their system to tone up their body's defenses against disease.

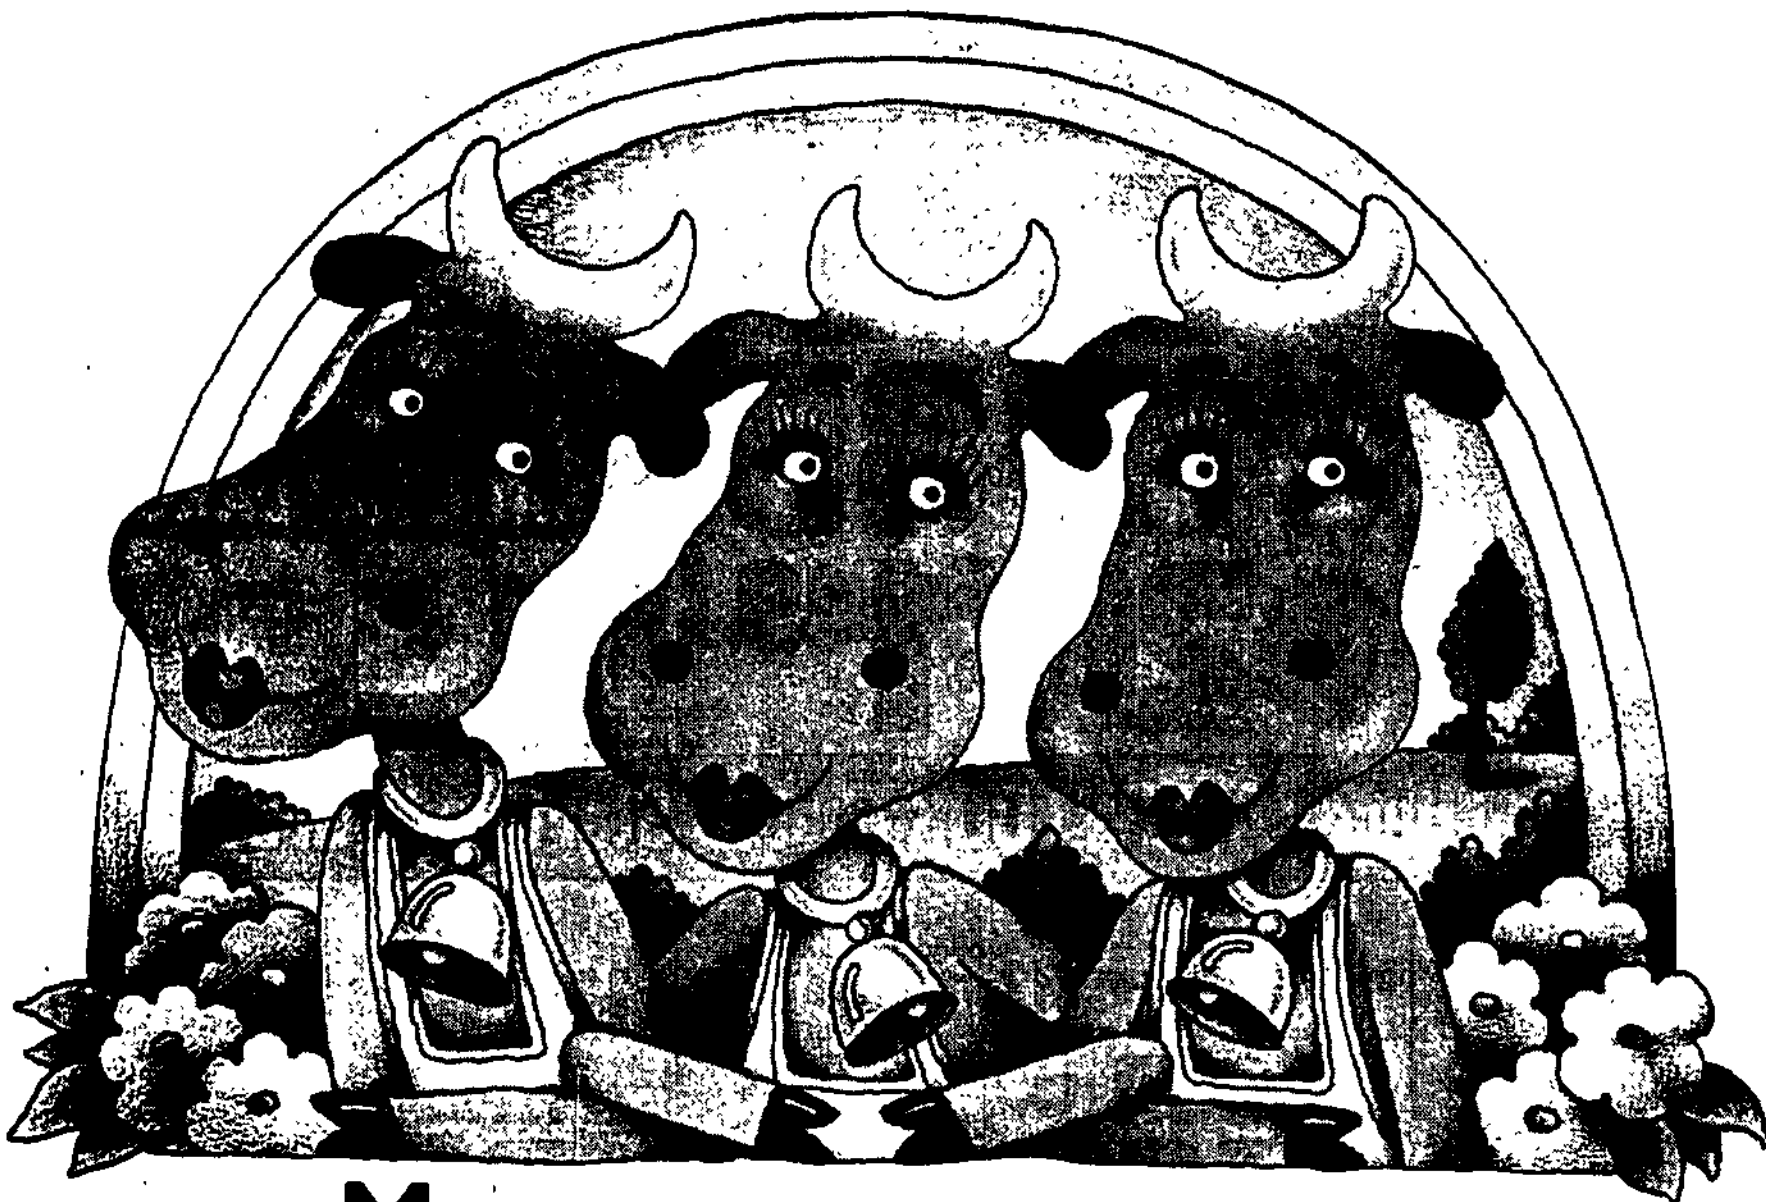

(United Press International)

Season vegetables

In general, one-fourth to one-half teaspoon of most dried herbs and spices is enough to season two cups of vegetables. For maximum flavor, crumble whole herbs to release their oils before adding to food.

Don't wait for leftovers to cool completely before refrigerating them. The flavor will be better and the danger of spoilage lessened if you cover and store hot food as soon as steam stops rising.

If leftovers are to be used at more than one meal, refrigerate them in several small containers so you need to heat the contents only once per batch.

Consider the best buys

Convenience foods may be cheaper

by GAYNOR MADDOX

The steady rise in the cost of the food our family needs is threatening family budgets in all income groups. Slowly, many familiar good things to eat are beginning to disappear from our tables. We seem to be living on substitutes. Let's hope we won't be compelled to eat chipped ice sandwiches.

But before such dire times arrive, let's examine some practical ways to stretch food dollars by getting every cent's worth of flavor and nutrition.

One question to be answered is: Could you save money by making many of the foods the family likes from scratch? Or do you save by buying these in convenience form? The answer is yes and no. Take a look at these figures:

A survey shows in vegetables, 7 of 10 ready-to-cook items had a lower cost per serving than their counterparts. Frozen green beans ran 8.1 cents a serving versus 8.9 cents for fresh beans. Frozen cut corn cost 8.5 compared with 15.2 cents for fresh cut corn. Frozen french fries were 4.7 cents against 10 cents for home prepared. Dehydrated mashed potatoes ran 3.7 cents versus 5.5 cents for home prepared potatoes.

HOWEVER, THERE are some "buys." Frozen orange juice cost only one-third as much as the same serving of freshly squeezed juice. Of baked goods, coffee cake, Danish, cookies, bread and rolls, 75 per cent of the convenience products had higher costs than those prepared at home.

One drawback, however, to these comparisons is that they were made last year by the U.S.D.A. Economic Research Service. Since then there have been some changes due to the oil shortage, increases in labor and transportation costs and bad weather.

A working knowledge of the shelf life of the various foods you buy can also help you get the most in good eating. The August, 1974, issue of Food Technology explains what shelf life is, and how to maintain it.

Food processors pay great attention to adequate storage stability or "shelf life." Major areas involved in a food's shelf life include:

LOSS OF nutrient value such as vitamin loss or protein breakdown; Spoilage by micro-organism-micro-organisms, enzymatic action, or insect infestation; Loss of aesthetic qualities such as color, flavor, aroma, texture; Loss of functional properties such as leavening activity in baking powder, thickening power in sauce mixes, or set in instant puddings.

Food storage has many complexities. As a consumer, find out from experts exactly what you should do to maintain shelf life. For example: Buy only what you need for a reasonable time.

Check products for staleness, off-quality and spoilage. Check the label for special instructions on holding and storing the products. Learn the basic facts about storage of food, including dry products. Use perishable products within one or two days — longer only where experience has shown that the product keeps well. Rotate frozen and canned products so that older packages or cans are used before more recent purchases.

Economize with plentiful ocean perch

When cooking tasks begin to pall and the food money is running out before the month does look to one of the most plentiful and economical products from the sea, ocean perch fillets.

Although occasionally available fresh, these tender, serving-size fillets are usually conveniently packaged, frozen and sold at seafood counters. A one-pound package usually contains about eight fillets. Each portion contains a wealth of valuable protein with few calories.

There are dozens of cooking and serving possibilities with ocean perch fillets because they adapt readily to gourmet entrees or down-to-earth easy recipes for casual eating enjoyments.

Oven-Barbecued Ocean Perch is a just-right-for-any-occasion offering. This time-saving, taste-pleasing recipe is easy on the cook and may be served as an entree or enjoyed on toasted buns for more casual meals.

The fillets are dipped into oil highlighted with minced garlic, then rolled in a cheddar cheese-crumbs mixture before a brief bake in the oven. Your favorite barbecue sauce, heated and spooned over the fillets midway in baking adds a zesty flavor tingle and aroma to tease and tantalize. Serve with additional heated barbecue sauce. Hearty enough to please dad and the kids, easy enough to please mom, and kind to the food budget as well, this recipe is bound to be a serve-often favorite.

OVEN-BARBECUED OCEAN PERCH

- 2 pounds ocean perch or other firm fish fillets, fresh or frozen
- 1/2 cup cooking oil
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Dash pepper
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 cup shredded cheddar cheese
- 1 cup fine bread, cracker, or cereal crumbs
- 1 cup favorite commercial barbecue sauce

Thaw frozen fish; separate fillets and dry. Combine oil, salt, pepper, and garlic. Mix cheese and crumbs. Dip each piece of fish in oil; drain; roll in cheese-crumbs mixture. Arrange fish in well-greased baking pan. Bake in hot oven, 450 degrees, for 7 to 10 minutes. Heat barbecue sauce. Spoon 1/2 of sauce over fish. Keep remaining sauce hot. Cook fish an additional 5 minutes or until it flakes easily when tested with a fork. Serve with remaining sauce. Makes 6 servings.

Herbed Mushrooms Under Glass

Versatile canned salmon adapts to gourmet status

Canned salmon is a versatile food, easily adapted to a great variety of dishes. With ingenuity it can be turned into a gourmet dish which will bring admiring remarks when it comes to the table.

Salmon Supper Loaf is easy to prepare and requires little more than an hour from start to finish. Drain 2 one-pound cans of red salmon and reserve liquid. Flake salmon. In a saucepan saute 1 cup chopped celery and 1 cup chopped onion in 1/2 cup melted butter (margarine or oil) until vegetables are tender, about 10 minutes. Now add 8 ounces of coarsely chopped fresh mushrooms and continue cooking for another 5 minutes, stirring often.

In a bowl combine the cooked vegetables with 2 cups soft breadcrumbs, the flaked salmon, reserved liquid, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, and the grated rind and juice of 2 lemons. Add 2 beaten eggs and 1/2 cup milk and mix well.

Grease a loaf pan (9x5x3-inches) and pack salmon mixture into the pan. Bake in a pre-heated 375-degree oven for 45 to 50 minutes. While loaf is baking, cook potatoes enough to yield 2 cups when mashed (or use instant). When loaf is done unmold onto a heat proof tray or steak plank. Decorate the top with mashed potatoes, swirling to make an attractive pattern. Put under the broiler, 3 inches from heat source, for 3 minutes

Mostly for men

by Charles Flynn

until potatoes are lightly browned. Serve immediately. Enough for 6 to 8 people.

NOW FOR THOSE readers who constantly ask for something super easy and quick, try this Deep Dish Salmon Pie.

Drain a one-pound can of salmon, reserve liquid. Flake salmon. In a saucepan combine 2 cans pea soup (10 1/2-ounce) undiluted, with liquid from salmon, and 1/2 cup milk. Stir in flaked salmon, a 16-ounce can of small white potatoes, drained, and a 16-ounce can of small whole onions, drained. Season with 1/8 teaspoon white pepper, 1/2 teaspoon oregano, 1/2 teaspoon sweet basil.

Heat until sauce begins to simmer, stirring occasionally. Empty into a 2-quart casserole or baking dish. Top with 1 package (10) refrigerator butter-milk biscuits. Bake in preheated 400-degree oven for 15 to 20 minutes or until biscuits are brown. Garnish with fresh parsley or watercress and serve to 4.

Creamy blue cheese pate has unique flavor appeal

A pate is usually a meat or fish paste or a pie or a patty with a filling such as meat or fish paste. In this recipe for Blue Cheese Pate, Danish blue cheese substitutes for fish, or meat, and a very delightful substitute it is, with its creamy, rich flavor.

Use Blue Cheese Pate as a cold hors d'oeuvre spread on thinly sliced rye or pumpernickel bread or on crackers. It also makes a delicious stuffing for celery, cucumber, small mushroom caps or cherry tomatoes.

Guests will enjoy this pate with beverages; its robust, salty flavor is a perfect complement.

BLUE CHEESE PATE

6 strips bacon, fried until crisp, drained and crumbled

- 3 hard cooked eggs, sieved
- 1 tablespoon grated onion
- 1 cup firmly packed Danish blue cheese
- 2 packages (8 ounces each) cream cheese, at room temperature
- 1/3 cup light cream
- Salt and pepper

Reserve 1 tablespoon of the bacon for topping. Mix remaining bacon, eggs, onion and blue cheese. Mash cream cheese and beat in cream. When cheese is fluffy fold in blue cheese mixture. Add salt and pepper to taste. Pack mixture into a crock and chill until ready to serve. Spread on bread, crackers or thinly sliced pumpernickel. Makes about 3 cups.

Mushrooms have vegetable power, too

Fresh mushrooms are so commonly used as flavoring ingredients and garnishes that it's easy to forget they are a superb vegetable in their own right. Here are two ideas for using mushrooms as a tasty side dish.

Herbed Mushrooms Under Glass are savory and certainly easily and quickly prepared. Season mushrooms with parsley, marjoram, black pepper and lemon juice; enrich them with a couple tablespoons of butter. They need not more than 20 minutes in a moderate oven.

Skewered Mushrooms are another favorite way of preparing mushrooms. You can vary this to suit, alternating mushrooms with shrimp, cubes of lamb or halved chicken livers.

For all their fine flavor mushrooms are low in calories so they can be enjoyed by everyone in the family.

HERBED MUSHROOMS UNDER GLASS

- 1 package (1 lb.) fresh mushrooms
- 5 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1/4 cup chopped parsley

- 2 teaspoons fresh lemon juice
- 1/2 teaspoon marjoram leaves, crumbled
- 1/2 teaspoon salt

Rinse, pat dry and halve mushrooms; place in a buttered 9-inch pie pan. In a small saucepan melt butter; remove from heat and stir in parsley, lemon juice, marjoram, salt and black pepper; pour over mushrooms; toss lightly. Cover mushrooms with a 1 1/2 quart round oven-proof bowl or aluminum foil. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) until mushrooms are cooked and begin to give off juices, about 20 minutes. If desired serve with crumb baked chicken. Yield: 6 to 8 portions

SKEWERED MUSHROOMS

- 1 package (1 lb.) fresh mushrooms
- 6 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 garlic clove, minced
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 tsp. ground black pepper

Rinse, pat dry and trim stems of mushrooms (cut large mushroom in half). Arrange on six 8-inch long skewers. In a small saucepan melt butter. Add garlic; saute until golden, about 1 minute. Stir in lemon juice, salt and black pepper. Place mushrooms on rack in broiler pan; brush generously with butter mixture. Broil under a preheated hot broiler until golden, about 3 minutes. Turn mushrooms; brush generously with butter mixture; broil until golden, about 3 minutes. Serve mushrooms on skewers with remaining sauce spooned over. Yield: 6 portions

British dish for something different

The English are well-known for their meat pies and stir-ups. Taking a leaf from an English cookbook, next time you want something decidedly different and extremely attractive serve a Ham and Egg Pie. This is a combination of ham and hard-cooked eggs baked in a crust until done. Then it is filled through a hole left in the crust's top with jellied bouillon and then chilled for serving.

HAM AND EGG PIE

- 4 cups all purpose flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup vegetable shortening
- 2/3 cup milk
- 5 tablespoons water
- 1 chicken bouillon cube
- 2 cups boiling water
- 2 pounds cooked ham, cut into 1/2-inch cubes (about 6 cups)
- 1/4 cup chopped parsley
- 3 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
- 4 hard-cooked eggs
- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin

To prepare pastry, in a large bowl combine flour and salt; make a well in center. Heat shortening, milk and water to boiling; pour all at once into well. Stir with a wooden spoon until mixture forms a ball. Turn onto a lightly floured board; knead until smooth, about 3 minutes.

Cover surface with plastic wrap. Set aside for 30 minutes. Dissolve bouillon cube in boiling water. Combine 1/4 cup of the bouillon with ham, parsley and Worcestershire sauce; set aside.

Roll out 2/3 of the pastry into a 15x12-inch rectangle. Fit into bottom and sides of a greased 9x5x3-inch loaf pan. Spoon half of ham mixture into pastry-lined pan; place eggs in a row down center of meat. Cover with remaining ham mixture; pat smooth. Roll out remaining pastry to fit top of pan; place on ham, trim, turn under and flute edges. Cut out a small circle from center of pastry for steam to escape. Using pastry trimmings roll out leaves for spoon water.

Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 2 hours to thoroughly cook bottom of pastry. Sprinkle gelatin over reserved 1/4 cup chicken bouillon to soften for 5 minutes. Heat over low heat until gelatin dissolves. Carefully pour through funnel into hole in top of pie. Let pie cool. Refrigerate until well chilled. To unmold, gently run a knife around top edge of pastry, to loosen slightly. Unmold and slice. Serve cold only. Makes 8 portions.

Cheese adds flavor

Airtight and cold are two good pointers to remember when storing cheese. A heavy plastic wrap or container that fits the cheese closely is recommended to prevent cheese from drying out. Cold, preferably in the refrigerator, is necessary to prevent cheese from "oiling off."

Next time you prepare scalloped potatoes, vary the recipe by adding shredded Swiss cheese to your white sauce along with a hint of basil and some chopped green onions. It's a nice flavor change from your usual recipe.

Most popular cheese on the market in the United States is Cheddar. Seven out of ten pounds of cheese sold is Cheddar although it's known by many different names. Some people may call it American; others call it Longhorn or Daisy for these are the shapes in which it's made.

Want to give soups richer flavor? Fold cheese cubes or shredded Cheddar into the soup just before serving. Another way is to garnish with a dollop of dairy sour cream or whipped cream. Still another way is to add milk to condensed soups such as cream of tomato, celery, mushroom or chicken, replacing the water often stated by the directions.

COMPLETELY ABSORBED in their individual activities, Christopher Potash, left, and Scott Christensen, both 2-year-olds, exhibit the deep concentration evoked by Montessori materials. It's what Dr. Maria Montessori termed "the absorbent mind," and it flourishes in an environment which encourages the child to explore.

Mini-Montessori

School for the very young

by ELEANOR RIVES

Speaking in quiet, modulated voices, the two teachers move almost in slow motion from child to child, gently encouraging them as they do their "work."

Encouragement is hardly necessary. Montessori material and equipment have their own special appeal. Each is designed to provide a stimulating environment, to answer a real need in the child. Each invites the child to use his hands for self-learning, to explore the world through his senses.

These are not just "pre-school" children. These are really tiny tots, 18 months to 2 years 9 months, spending an hour and a half each week in an environment especially designed to develop their intellectual potentialities.

"I'm so happy to see you today, Julie," says Mrs. LaPorte, directress in the experimental "mini-Montessori" school in Arlington Heights, the Saturday adjunct of Northwest Suburban Montessori School at 1212 E. Euclid.

Julie beams. She knows Mrs. LaPorte means it. "Let's get your rug, Greg," says her husband, Victor LaPorte, assistant. Greg pulls his rug from its slot, spreads it on the floor, fetches a piece of equipment and becomes engrossed in fitting various size cylinders into corresponding spaces.

Jon climbs up and down a low-incline wooden slide. Cathy spoons marbles into a glass jar. Mike dips a pitcher into a tub of water, pours it into a second tub, both scaled down to his size. Allison sits at a little round table drinking juice from a plastic foam cup she has carefully matched to a circle on her little tray.

ONE BY ONE the nine children have arrived for the first session. Some became absorbed in an activity at once. Some were reluctant to leave a parent, and so the parent lingers awhile, making himself as invisible as possible. If a child is truly unhappy, the parent may stay the entire time. Soon all nine are quiet, busy, absorbed in an activity, and satisfied as they succeed.

"We work very closely with the parent," said Debbie LaPorte. "The child must have a feeling of security. We cue the parents beforehand to filter in one at a time so we can deal with each child individually."

Northwest Suburban Mini-Montessori School is the first of its kind in the northwest suburbs, although there are a few in other areas.

A year ago, Victor and Debbie LaPorte proposed to the parent-staffed board of directors of the daily school that a Saturday mini-Montessori be established. It was begun in November 1973, occupying about a fourth of the space which the daily school rents from the Vlatorian Novitiate. Bookcases, shelves and cabinets confine the youngsters to this area. Nine toddlers attend each of the hour and a half sessions, 18 children in all.

Mrs. LaPorte also directs the daily school weekday afternoons. She became directress of the "mini" school this past summer after completing her Montessori training. Both she and her husband are graduates of Hersey High School.

"As the importance of the pre-school years is realized," she said, "more and more men are becoming involved in Montessori training."

VICTOR ONCE remarked to his wife, "I never want to hear anything about Montessori again." A few weeks later he began the training. Now in the fourth month of his internship, the final phase of a 2-year program, he is student teaching in the mini-Montessori school his wife directs.

Why start these tykes in Montessori at such an early age?

"It has to do with what Dr. Maria Montessori called 'the absorbent mind,'" explained Mrs. LaPorte. "Consider the newborn with the child of 18 months — the tremendous learning that has taken place. Just learning to talk is a tremendous accomplishment. From birth to 3 years of age is a particularly sensitive time when the absorbent quality of the mind is greatly magnified."

Classes are scheduled for nine consecutive Saturdays — eight for the child, the ninth for a parent conference and group discussion. Cost is $32 per child.

The first week, to ease the youngster into the class, Mrs. LaPorte brings some of the materials out into the hall. "I feel like the Pied Piper!" she said. By the eighth week most of the tykes can choose their material, complete the activity and return the equipment to the shelf.

"This gives them a good feeling of joy and fulfillment," she said.

Debbie continually assesses the growth and development of each child, determining what he is trying to perfect in himself. Is he trying to perfect eating by himself, or dressing himself? Is he trying to sort out the stimuli in his environment, to recognize and make sense of "large-small," "thick-thin" "rough-smooth" and other sensorial concepts?

"THE VERY YOUNG child has an innate sense of order," she said. "We rely on this and build our environment around it."

At 2 years 9 months, the mini-Montessori child may advance to the regular daily Montessori sessions. He adjusts with ease. So much of the Montessori environment is already a part of him.

When 5-month-old Katie LaPorte reaches 18 months, she will join the mini-Montessorians in their Lilliputian world of discovery. Mrs. LaPorte's Montessori training already has influenced the way she interacts with her baby. She remembers to slow herself down, to recognize that her baby's thought processes are different than hers.

"I am completely awed by the special ability of the child to absorb from his environment," she said. "But most important is the feeling of respect I have for my child as a real person."

A RUG OF HIS OWN gives Keith LaPorte, 2, a place to work that is strictly for him. He takes pride in fetching and replacing it all by himself.

Montessori day care center to open doors in November

Northwest Suburban Montessori School, a non-proprietary organization, will open a day care program in November at 1225 E. Davis St., Arlington Heights, in addition to its regular half-day and Saturday morning Montessori sessions.

The school is operated by a board of directors composed of parents of children enrolled. Founded in Des Plaines in 1963, the school for the past five years has been housed in the Vlatorian Novitiate at 1212 E. Euclid, Arlington Heights.

In its new location, the school will use one classroom for approximately 28 day care children; the other classroom for about 60 children in two half-day sessions.

THE MONTESSORI day care program is for children between the ages of 2½ and 6 years. The hours will be flexible, depending upon the hours of the majority of working parents. A hot luncheon meal will be served each day.

In a large outdoor area, the children can enjoy gardening and other outside activities. The indoor environment is designed to aid in developing emotional, intellectual and physical well-being. Flexible time periods are planned for academics, creative and fine arts, rest and relaxation, to allow for differences in age, interests and needs. The Orff music program and Bonnie Prudden gross motor program will be included.

"WE WANT to create an environment that truly belongs to the children, just as Dr. Maria Montessori did in 1907 when she opened the first Children's House in Italy," said Ann Quinn, directress of the new day care program. "In an atmosphere of love and mutual respect, we can assist them in developing a positive self-image and a love for learning. These are our goals."

The charge per child in the Montessori day care program will be $140 per month. Parents interested in enrolling a child or in learning more about the program may call the school secretary at 259-8044.

PUMPKIN MAN and friends, Katie Heinz, Becky Biestek and Allison Frer, set the mood for St. Viator High School Mothers Club's Harvest Moon dance Saturday, Oct. 26, at the school in Arlington Heights. THE POPCORN WAGON will be among working props Saturday, Oct. 26, when Wheeling - Buffalo Grove Newcomers stage Las Vegas Night in the Amvets Hall in Wheeling. President DeAnn Glover, Dolores Wysacki and Leslie Brouwer promise a fun-filled evening that will close with an auction. All proceeds go to Shelter, Inc. Tickets at $3 per person, $5 per couple, may be purchased at the door or by calling Mrs. Brouwer, 459-1831.

Maid of honor was Donna Cunningham of Wheeling and Bob Vehe of Mount Prospect was best man.

Ushers included the groom's brothers, Peter and Ed Pedersen; and the bride's brother, Paul Stevens, was ring bearer.

A reception for 100 guests was held in the backyard of the Pedersen residence after which the couple honeymooned for the weekend at the Chicago Marriott Hotel.

Both 1973 graduates of Wheeling High School, Laura is employed with Rexnord Inc. in Wheeling and her husband is with Skill in Wheeling. The couple is also residing in the same suburb.

Bill collector faces loss of license if he harasses

The new state law regulating collection agencies is in effect — but not yet being fully enforced.

Signed by Governor Walker Sept. 18, the Collection Agency Act went into effect Oct. 1, but the state agency assigned to administer the law is not yet prepared to do so.

According to Chester Wasicki of the Department of Registration and Education, his office has no copies of the law nor any license application forms yet. He said he expects the office to be set up to enforce the new law by early November.

However, Wasicki said his office is accepting complaints about collection agencies and that such complaints might affect an agency's ability to obtain a license when that time comes.

THE BASIC provision of the new law is to require that collection agencies be licensed by the state. The law then specifies 21 unlawful practices which would constitute grounds for revocation or suspension of the agency's license. To operate without a license would be a misdemeanor.

The unlawful practices are all the familiar tactics which consumers have long been complaining of: Use of force, violence, obscene language, repeated late night phone calls, phony legal documents and attorney's letterhead; threats of ruining the debtor's credit, contacting his employer, or taking other legal actions which the collector is not in a position to take.

The number to call if a collector is harassing you with any of these techniques is 793-3446.

THE U.S. POSTAL Service, it seems, has — of all things — a consumer advocate. His name is Thomas Chadwick.

According to UPI, Chadwick's office receives some 30,000 complaints a year — although the wire service does not report how long the office has been in existence. This is the first time it has come to the attention of this reporter.

In case you want to write and complain that you are not getting "reliable second-day delivery" from points 150 to 600 miles away, as Asst. Postmaster Gen. James H. Byrne recently declared to be the case, or if you perhaps want to register a complaint about the Post Office refusing to deliver letters without proper postage after mid-November (even though the stamp may come off in the Post Office due to handling), you may write to Chadwick at:

U.S. POSTAL SERVICE, 1200 Pennsylvania Ave. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20260. Don't try calling — the line is perpetually busy.

If you write to Chadwick and get a response — or don't get a response — please contact this column. We'd like to know if the P.O.'s consumer advocate has any ideas on solving the problems that the postmaster general and his assistant claim don't exist.

Specifically, Byrne declared that "we are now providing next-day delivery of

by Monica Wilch Perin

local mail with 96 per cent consistency, and reliable second-day delivery is provided to post offices between 150 and 600 miles from the originating city. Third-day service is generally assured to most distant U.S. cities.

Subsequently, this reporter mailed a letter to Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, a distance of about 380 miles from here. Glued to the front of the envelope was a clipping of Byrne's statement, and the envelope bore a notation of the date the letter should have been delivered, according to Byrne's proclamation.

THE LETTER TOOK six days — not two — to be delivered, and it bore two additional postmarks of wrong cities to which it had been sent before it arrived at its destination. The local postmaster in Cuyahoga Falls shook his head in resignation when shown the letter.

Consumers have eyes with which to see the dates on postmarks and they have fingers on which to count days. It is preposterous and insulting for officials like Byrne to keep telling consumers the opposite of what they know to be true.

It is an even worse degradation that consumers must pay for these public relations antics of the U.S. Postal Service.

No cure for film formed on glassware

Dear Dorothy: My family is addicted to before-bedtime ice cream snacks. They got used to leaving the glass dishes for washing next morning. As a result, they became cloudy looking and I've been unable to get rid of the film. I've tried bleach, ammonia, vinegar, lemon juice and now appeal to you for help.—Mrs. Sherman Vance.

I can't help and, to the best of my knowledge, no one else can, either. It isn't for lack of experimenting, and I've been twitted by friends for failing to find a "cure."

One of the largest glass manufacturers calls the problem "weathering." Various theories have been advanced, but nobody knows the precise cause. All we know is that once film forms on glassware that's it. Sorry!

Dear Dorothy: A few drops of gin and tonic "decorated" the front of my good linen dress. It dried with no trace of stain whatsoever. Should I still bother to have it cleaned?—Lillian Grote.

The love story of Katie Luther

A double feature is set for Our Saviour's Lutheran Church Women's fall general meeting next Monday at 1234 N. Arlington Heights Rd. At 7:30 p.m. the American Cancer Society's film on breast cancer will be shown. The regular meeting at 8 p.m. will feature Katie Luther "in person" as portrayed by Alice Nothnagle.

A love story between Martin Luther and Katie who were married for 21 years and had six children will unfold as told by Katie. They married when she was 24 years and he was in his mid 40s.

Mrs. Nothnagle has appeared at many surrounding churches and women's groups for the past 14 years. Her character portrayals include Sarah, wife of Abraham; Mary Todd Lincoln; Madame Currie; and Sussanah Wesley, mother of John.

New day care standards proposed; public hearings later in October

New state standards for licensing of day and night child care facilities have been proposed by a subcommittee of an advisory committee on day care of the Illinois Department of Children and Family Service.

Public hearings on the proposals will be conducted in three Illinois cities the end of this month, Oct. 29 in Edwardsville, Oct. 30 in Springfield and Oct. 31 at the State of Illinois Building in Chicago.

Working parents, providers of day care services and service organization members are urged to examine the proposals carefully by Mrs. Mary Lee Leahy, acting director of Child and Family Services.

Bride makes her own gown

Carolyn Jean Page made her own gown of white nylon embroidered organza, and her mother made her headpiece and veil for her marriage Sept. 21 to Jerry Dale Webb. The gown was fashioned with a high waistline, sash of organza, and with narrow lace edging the cuffs and neckline.

Her elbow-length veil fell from a Juliet cap covered with taffeta and organza, and she carried white mums and baby's breath with tea roses in pink, orange and yellow.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Page, 322 N. Emerson, Mount Prospect, Carolyn and Jerry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Webb, Dexter, Iowa, were married at 1:30 p.m. in First Methodist Church, Arlington Heights. Officiating at the double ring service was Rev. John Latia of Grundig Center, Iowa, a friend of the groom's family.

KATHY McWHIRTER, Burlington, Iowa, was Carolyn's only attendant. She also made her own gown which was of sheer polyester crepe with small yellow, pink and orange flowers on a brown background. Her flowers were similar to the bride's, and tied with orange streamers.

Jim Fay, fraternity brother of the groom from Green Bay, Wis., was best man, and the bride's brothers, John of Des Plaines, and Dan of Mount Prospect, also another fraternity brother, Larry Jack of Minneapolis, Minn., were ushers.

A cake and punch reception for 100 guests was held in the church after which the newlyweds honeymooned a week in Maine. They are now at home in Moline where Jerry is employed in East Moline with John Deere. A '73 graduate of Iowa State University, he received his B.S. degree in mechanical engineering. Carolyn, a '71 graduate of Prospect High School, received her B.S. degree in child development this past August.

For a Happy Life

It's fun in October to:

1. Complete one project or task you have long left unfinished. What a great feeling!
2. Buy large quantities of potatoes, apples, pears, etc., with a friend and then split them.
3. Find out how much it would cost to fly to the city of your dreams.
4. Defrost your freezer, then rearrange and repignish.
5. Appreciate the beauty and value of your antique silver. Polish and display it.
6. Consider if you tire your friends with incessant conversation.
7. Extend an invitation to someone you know slightly but would like to know better.
8. Ponder this idea by H. K. Charter who said, "Make the most out of life by making the most out of you."

Dear Dorothy: Don't know what I do without a one-cup sifter. It is so handy to sift directly into the measuring cup, thus saving time and cleanup. It is great, too, for sifting powdered sugar on top of cakes, which is all the icing I use any more. It is probably less fattening than icings and looks nice, too.—Sharon Jepson

*Orchids the most beautiful flowers in the world are easily grown on a window sill or in a greenhouse

*KLEHM HAS BEAUTIFUL ORCHIDS FROM $6.50

We have selected choice orchids that can be grown successfully on a window sill. Plants that will grow from 8 to 30 inches tall and that will thrive in the environment present in the average home.

Among those we suggest is the PHALAENOPSIS, commonly called the Moth Orchid. It freely produces spiked, lasting blooms that range from pure white to deep rose-pink, white with stripes and lovely yellow. This is an excellent orchid for the beginner.

Another very special orchid is the CATTALYA that lives in the foothills and mountains of Central and South America. This "Queen of Orchids" is familiar through its use in corsages. The Cattalya is especially good for the beginner for it is a sturdy plant that will overcome many initial mistakes. The showy flowers bloom in a variety of striking colors.

These are just two that can be seen in our greenhouse. We also have inexpensive books that will help you to successfully enjoy a beautiful hobby.

Land grab in north woods

There is a funeral taking place today in my neck of the woods.

Several weeks ago in Suburban Living, you may have read about the Good family's move to the north woods and our happy life of privacy and open space.

Today the bulldozer is razing away the trees. The bewildered raccoon, skunk and red fox have lost their homes, and the deer will never again have their fawn in the privacy of the swamp, where they have had their young for the past 40 years.

According to minimum setbacks specified by law, a home is being built adjacent to our property. This area is bordered by marsh, spagnum moss, cranberry, tamarack, bullrushes and cattail. I have appealed to local, county and state officials in an effort to make them see that this property is not suitable for development — to no avail.

A MAN WITH THE Wisconsin State Health Department told me that all the good land is gone; now we have to try to build "on the junk" as best we can.

The law says "to maintain safe and healthful conditions, to prevent water pollution, to protect healthful conditions, to protect fish spawning grounds and aquatic life, and to preserve shore cover and natural beauty, building development in wetlands shall be prohibited."

Our lake is already showing signs of premature environmental aging, and yet building will be allowed.

It's very disheartening to realize — and nobody can quite feel the impact of this until it hits them directly — that it doesn't matter where you move, you are never free from the threat of the bulldozer.

CAN YOU PICTURE a person such as me, living out in the middle of the woods, 350 miles north of Chicago, who can't change clothes without closing the curtains, because of the lack of privacy?

When we bought our property, we were told that the land adjacent to us was unbuildable. We felt secure that our privacy and solitude were protected. We were overconfident, too, for the only way to insure privacy is to buy up all the land around, and in this day of dollar devaluation and high interest rates, none but the very rich can afford such an investment. In our area, we had a similar situation some time ago when a building permit was granted a party on the lakebed. When the house sinks, the walls separate, the toilets won't flush, the odor of swamp is absorbed by the house, the furniture, etc., the crawl space is a pond, and the people retreat in desperation, it becomes obvious that construction in wetlands should not be permitted.

by Mary B. Good

DON'T EVER FOOL yourself into believing that there is plenty of land for generations to come. When you drive up to the woods, much of it is state-owned for public use, and the rest is ruthlessly lusted after by a myriad of greedy land speculators anxious to make their fortune by chopping it up piecemeal into 100-foot parcels.

Rampant development of our woods and waters is proceeding on a nightmare course, without benefit of comprehensive and up-to-date zoning laws and ordinances to protect man from himself.

Dundee Road nearer opening; four lanes poured

Four lanes of concrete have been poured for Dundee Road in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove but opening of the lanes to traffic still is several weeks off while crews apply finishing touches, a spokesman in the Illinois Dept. of Transportation, said Wednesday.

Crews soon will begin installing left-turn lanes and officials are trying to arrange for temporary traffic signals to be installed at major intersections, said the spokesman, Albert Sifrer.

He said, however, the two south side lanes would remain closed while the turning lanes are being installed. Work was running somewhat ahead of schedule and opening may occur ahead of planned opening around Thanksgiving, he said.

The two newly paved lanes could be used during the turning-lane installation but Sifrer said that phase of the job would be completed faster if they remained closed.

THE MEDIANS ALSO will have to be filled in with soil and asphalt but should not delay the four-lane operation, he said.

He also said only half, rather than the entire entrance to Buffalo Grove Road at Dundee Road would be closed off during work on the intersection.

A median has to be installed and the entrance has to be widened on about 600 feet of roadway in front of the Ranch Mart Shopping Center.

Sifrer said the state was originally hoping to close down the entire entrance so the work could be completed faster, but decided not to after objections were raised by Bank of Buffalo Grove officials. The bank is located on the northeast corner of the intersection.

VILLAGE OFFICIALS said earlier this week the entire entranceway would be closed and traffic would have to use Golfview Terrace as an alternate route.

Half the intersection will remain open during the job and Sifrer said the work will take "twice as long."

He was unable to estimate when that part of the project would take place saying that depended on the weather and the availability of cement.

Improvements at the Buffalo Grove

'Hello Dundee' theme of students

Although the road is still under construction, students have prepared a fanfare to recognize the completion of the portion of the road near London at 101 W. Dundee Rd.

The band will be playing, posters will be waved, balloons will be released and a special song to Dundee Road will be sung.

The idea for the festivities started in the music department when students wrote words to the tune of "Hello Dolly" creating "Hello Dundee."

The choral students brought band students into the event to accompany them. Other students soon became involved, working on posters and the banner that will drape across the overpass bridge between Field School and London over Dundee Road.

The bridge will be the stage for Friday's activities. Starting at 3 p.m. students will march to the bridge singing "Hello Dundee," carrying their posters and 100 balloons.

The activities will include renaming the bridge to the London Bridge by Village Pres. Ted Scanlon of Wheeling.

With that announcement, confetti will be flung and balloons released to give a colorful display for all to see.

Then there will be one act left to finish — the rest of Dundee Road.

Road entrance are part of the over-all Dundee Road project. Dundee is being expanded to four lanes between Elmhurst Road and Ill. Rte. 53 through Buffalo Grove, Wheeling and Arlington Heights.

Construction has been going on since 1972 and the cost of the entire project has been set at $3 million.

IS THIS THE Cheryl Fischer party? Dropping in as an early birthday present for Cheryl, who'll be 16 later this month, is her brother, Michael, 20. The jump Wednesday was above St. Alphonsus School, Prospect Heights.

Birthday gift a flighty affair for chutist

Michael Fischer, 20, of Prospect Heights jumped 3,000 feet Wednesday to bring his younger sister a birthday present.

Fischer, a skydiving enthusiast, and a friend jumped from a single-engine airplane at 5:30 p.m. and landed in a field south of St. Alphonsus School, 411 N. Wheeling Rd., Prospect Heights. The jump was an early birthday gift for his sister, Cheryl, who will be 16 Oct. 28.

"Cheryl and my parents really never saw me jump before," Fischer said, explaining his unusual gift. And Cheryl's reaction was that "It was neat but I was scared to death."

Fischer's mother shared a bit of anxiety. "It was frightening until his chute opened up," she said, admitting having had a few fleeting thoughts the parachute would not open.

The jump went smoothly, Fischer said. It was his 250th jump and he has yet to be injured. "There are very few injuries in this sport," he explained.

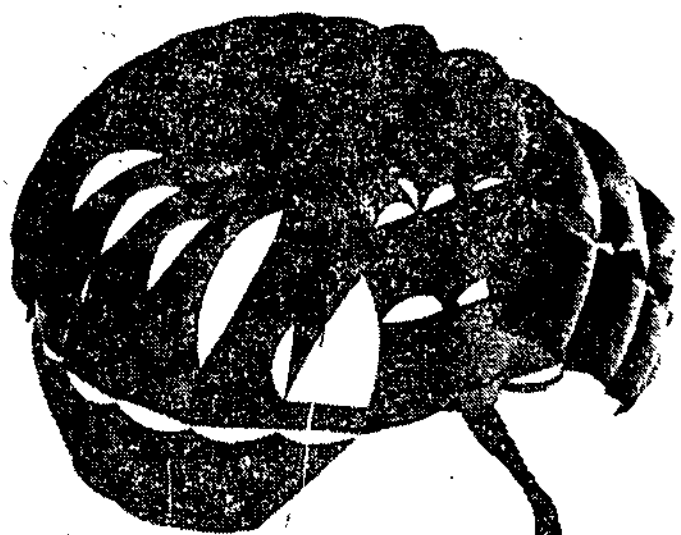

IN ADDITION TO family members, about 35 neighbors and friends watched Fischer and his companion, Norm Prien of Park Ridge, descend toward their aluminum foil marker.

The pair jumped on the fourth pass, having dropped a wind indicator on the second pass. They rode in a friend's airplane and took off from the Chicagoand Airport on Milwaukee Avenue.

Fischer landed nearest the onlookers and was greeted with a bottle of wine, while Prien was quickly surrounded by a group of football players who were practicing nearby.

Fischer, who lives at 208 E. McDonald Rd., has been skydiving for three years and is a member of the Northern Illinois Sky Divers Club. As of Jan. 1 he will be the new owner of the club, which is based in Hebron, Ill.

The costs of owning the club will be small, he said, because the $20 annual dues and the $4 jump fees are used to cover expenses. "It's not a business, it's just a club," he said.

Fire-service change meeting tonight

Buffalo Grove fire officials will conduct a public meeting at 7:30 p.m. tonight on next month's fire service referendum. The session will be at Cooper Junior High School.

The meeting is one of four scheduled presentations by officials on the upcoming election. The vote will decide whether the Lake County section of the village will become part of the Wheeling Township Rural Fire Protection District or will remain in the service area of the Long Grove Fire Protection District.

Other meetings have been scheduled for Nov. 7 at Willow Grove School, and Nov. 14 at Twin Groves School. Both will start at 8 p.m.

The revised change in the meeting schedule was made when officials learned the election date will probably be set for late November rather than this month as officials had been hoping.

PRACTICE MAKES perfect, so students work diligently on the keyboard in general music. Students select the kinds of music they want to study.

by JUDY JOBBITT

A din erupts when the general music classes at Cooper Junior High School meet.

The students at work are too busy to notice the noise they are creating or the many other activities going on around them.

It's the result of a different approach to get students who would usually "turn off" to music excited about what music can offer them.

Teachers Cheryl Gibson and Karen Kolls decided to offer music electives this year, rather than the traditional approach in which students work together.

Instead, they take six different units during the school year. The units include guitar, keyboard, recorder, opera, orchestra instruments, rock and jazz.

"NO LONGER IS the program as teacher-centered," said Mrs. Gibson. "There'll be as many as six activities going on during one period."

"We're guiding rather than just teaching and testing," she said. Instead of lecturing, assigning homework and giving tests, the teachers are resource people for students to come to with problems on their units.

By letting them pick areas they want to study, students also can advance at their own rate. Those students who have a background in guitar, keyboard or recorder, can work with other beginning students and test them, said Mrs. Kolls. These advanced students also can use class time to practice on their instrument.

"This is the last time they are required to take music," said Mrs. Kolls. "We want them to leave with a good taste in their mouths for music."

"WE EXPOSE them to the music elements. We're not out to make exceptional musicians but want them to see the relationship between music and instruments," said Mrs. Gibson.

Students are even picking up the music jargon, said Mrs. Kolls.

Several eighth grade students, who had taken one year of the traditional general music course, said they enjoy this year more.

"It's more fun," said Cathie Blennerhassett. "You get to do everything. Last year we didn't have time to do all this."

"All the eighth graders last year got to do was listen to records and all that," said Diane DaPisa. "This year I know I'm learning a lot more."

A group of boys were huddled around the record player working on the opera unit. The unit includes listening to "Carmen," "Jesus Christ Superstar," and "Tommy."

The boys didn't think it odd that they were studying opera. It's just part of the work, they said.

Despite opposition from Long Grove

Miller will pursue subdivision proposal

Miller Builders will continue efforts to develop a 415-unit subdivision in Buffalo Grove despite heavy opposition from nearby homeowners' groups in Long Grove.

"We're concerned about Long Grove," said Jerry DeGrazia, land planning director for Miller. "We don't want to upset anyone but we feel we have a good project."

DeGrazia's comments came Wednesday in response to the Monday night appearance of several Long Grove residents at the Buffalo Grove Village Board meeting. The residents presented petitions with 125 signatures stating their objections to the Miller plan.

Miller officials plan to build 308 houses and 107 townhouses on the 149-acre site if the village annexes and rezones the land, east of Old Hicks Road between Old Checker Road and the Lake County-Cook County line.

THE OBJECTORS, however, say the development would tie into the Long Grove sewer system, and would result in an increased traffic burden on Checker Road. The three-unit-per-acre density also conflicts with the two-acre lots called for in the Long Grove master plan, residents said.

DeGrazia said his company plans a five-year building program and by that time, the Lake-Cook Road project and the Ill. Rte. 53 extension that would serve the development will be completed or almost finished.

Reacting to the high-density complaint, he said the project is a "low-density" development compared to others in the vicinity. "It's relatively low density for Buffalo Grove and exceedingly low for what's across the street."

A total of 54 acres, or 74 per cent of the property, would remain a "common open area" within the development that would be used for recreation, he said.

ALTHOUGH THE SITE is 149 acres, DeGrazia said the actual development would take up only 137 acres with the remaining territory providing a "buffer zone" to the surrounding area.

He was unable to say how much of a buffer would be located between the development and Long Grove but mentioned it might be between 75 and 100 feet.

Miller officials are not worried about spending more than the projected $23 million to $25 million if development plans are delayed due to the opposition. DeGrazia said construction costs are "leveling off."

Long Grove officials have said they will take the matter to court if necessary and are currently awaiting a tentative Nov. 12 hearing in Lake County Circuit Court when attorneys for the village will object to a recent ruling that the site is eligible for annexation to Buffalo Grove.

THE PROPERTY WOULD become contiguous to the village through a corridor extending east to Arlington Heights Road from the site.

Buffalo Grove officials will defer action on the plan until a court decides the matter. Richard Wexler, a Miller attorney, said Wednesday he will ask the board at a meeting next Monday for a speedier decision on the annexation request and to schedule the necessary hearings before the board and the plan commission.

Buffalo Creek flood reservoir plans alive—but work year off

Planning for a flood reservoir on Buffalo Creek in Lake County is moving ahead but construction will probably not begin for at least a year, said Jerrold Soesbe, director of the Lake County Forest Preserve District.

The project is being undertaken as part of a three-agency agreement among the village of Buffalo Grove, Metropolitan Sanitary District and the Cook County Forest Preserve District.

The site for the $2.1 million facility is on private property, the southwest corner of Arlington Heights and Checker roads. Soesbe said the forest preserve district will begin to acquire the land for the 100-acre basin but the process may take time if court action is required.

CONSTRUCTION SHOULD begin shortly after the land is obtained. The basin will take about four months to complete.

The joint pact calls for the forest preserve district to acquire the land while the MSD will construct and assume the major cost of the facility. The village will maintain the area.

Officials say the land acquisition costs should run about $1.6 million with the remaining $500,000 to be used for the construction.

Soesbe said Wednesday he is still hoping for 50 per cent funding of the land acquisition cost from the U. S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development. Such funds would be turned over to the MSD but Soesbe is not certain they will be awarded.

THE LAKE IS seen as a major form of flood relief for Buffalo Grove, Wheeling and unincorporated Cook County residents. The basin will hold 260 million gallons of water and during a severe storm, will retain storm runoff then release it under controlled conditions after flooding threats pass.

Soesbe said the rest of the land may be turned into a public recreation site, but Buffalo Grove Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said the village would be responsible for maintaining only the reservoir facility.

Although looked on as a major flood-control measure, the project was delayed for more than a year due to minor differences among the three agencies concerning the agreement.

Dance marathon—shades of 1920s

Dancing and lots of it will be very "in" Saturday night at Buffalo Grove High School's dance marathon, from 6:30 to 10:30 p.m. in the school gym, 1101 W. Dundee Rd.

Students will be dancing nonstop for four hours to benefit the school's Choral Guild, a parent organization which supports various activities in the high school's choral department.

Dancers must secure donation pledges for each half-hour of dance time. Admission to the dance will be a minimum of five 30-minute pledges.

Dancing will be to a student group and records. For the more adventuresome, square dancing will be offered at one point during the evening. Bob Lee of Arlington Heights will do the calling.

Further information on the dance can be obtained by calling 337-5352.

THE REAR OF THE O'Neill home, 1432 Lake Louise Dr., Palatine, was gutted by flames and smoke early Wednesday. The fire began in the recreation room on the first floor of the bi-level home. Fire officials do not know the origin of the fire that took the life of the family's only daughter, Kathleen, 7.

7-year-old killed in early-morning blaze

by DIANE MERNIGAS

It was nearly 3 a.m. when two Palatine policemen broke down the door at 1432 Lake Louise Dr. and tried to save the lives of the six members of Bernard O'Neill's family. They rescued five persons but couldn't rescue 7-year-old Kathleen O'Neill.

"The little girl's brothers were in shock and there were flames and smoke pouring out of the back of the house," said Palatine Police Sgt. Ralph Winkelhake.

Winkelhake was one of the first to arrive at the fire-ravaged house early Wednesday.

ANOTHER POLICEMAN JACK McGregor, and Winkelhake responded to the fire call at 3 a.m., broke down the front door of the house and rescued the parents who were unconscious and lying by the front door. Bernard O'Neill, 42, and his wife, Joann, 41, are in serious condition at Northwest Community Hospital. They are suffering from smoke inhalation and burns.

McGregor helped rescue three brothers from the roof of the house before firemen arrived. Michael O'Neill, 17, had jumped from the roof to get a ladder from the garage.

Michael was helping his brother, Bernard Jr., 14 down the ladder from the roof when McGregor arrived at the scene. The officer suffered smoke inhalation but was not seriously hurt when he climbed the ladder to the roof and brought another brother, Thomas, 4, down to safety, Winkelhake said.

Kathleen was found later by firemen in the hallway outside her second-floor bedroom. Fire officials said she died of smoke inhalation.

"THE SITUATION was really bad because the smoke was so thick. Officer McGregor and I did all we could for the five family members until the fire department arrived," said Winkelhake.

Palatine fire officials said that the fire originated in the first floor recreation room in the back of the rustic bi-level home. They have not determined the cause of the fire.

"I just can't believe that something like this happened to a family who is as nice as the O'Neills," one neighbor said as she stood with other neighbors looking at the O'Neill house.

"They are such a close-knit family and very active in the St. Thomas of Villanova Church and the PTA in Palatine," she said.

NEIGHBORS WERE aroused from their sleep by the sounds of 17 Palatine firemen fighting the blaze. A close friend of the family's that lived across the street accompanied the three O'Neill boys to the hospital.

"All three boys were confused and frightened. The poor kids didn't know what to think or say, and all of us were just trying to do everything we could to help them," he said.

Neighbors supplied clothes for the boys; Tom, 4, Bernie, 14 and Michael, 17, to wear after leaving the hospital. An older son, Patrick, who is a freshman at St. Norbert College in Wisconsin, was not home at the time of the blaze.

THE O'NEILLS, long-time residents of Palatine, lived in the house on Lake Louise Drive for five years. Kathleen O'Neill had been a student at the Lake Louise Elementary School, located directly behind their home, for the past two years. Her second-grade teacher, Rena Marcotte, said she was a "freckle-faced tomboy" who was always "smiling and friendly with everyone."

A fund to aid the family has been established at the First Bank and Trust Co. of Palatine, 35 N. Brockway. Contributions may be made payable to "O'Neill Fire Fund" and brought to the attention of Carol Halpas at the bank.

Katherine Portera, whose husband works with Mrs. O'Neill, said the fund was established as a means of helping the O'Neill family when personal help is difficult to give.

Chicago-suburb bus service may come to a halt

Bus service between the Northwest suburbs and downtown Chicago is in jeopardy of being discontinued.

The North Suburban Mass Transit District (NORTAN) has petitioned communities served by United Motor Coach Co. to contribute money to help offset the bus company's operating deficits.

"Without such funding we will have no choice but to eliminate those routes serving your area," said Joseph DiJohn, executive director of NORTAN in a Sept. 27 letter to area officials.

UNITED MOTOR Coach makes two bus trips daily along Northwest Highway from Barrington to Des Plaines, with stops in Palatine, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Des Plaines. From Des Plaines, riders can transfer to a number of other routes, including one to downtown Chicago.

Two municipalities already have turned down the plea for financial assistance. The Elk Grove Village Board said No to a $13,279 request, and this week Mount Prospect rejected a request for $1,997.

Requests are still pending before Palatine, Arlington Heights, Des Plaines and Wheeling. NORTAN has asked for the following amounts: Palatine $1,274, Arlington Heights $1,484, Des Plaines $2,000, and Wheeling $1,630.

The subsidy requests were determined by the number of miles that the bus company services in each community.

MOUNT PROSPECT'S refusal to grant funds could end the twice daily bus service along Northwest Highway from Barrington to Des Plaines, including service in Palatine and Arlington Heights.

NORTAN's application for funds from the Regional Transportation Authority has been held up because of RTA's inability to choose a chairman. "We're caught in the middle of that whole political squabble," DiJohn said, referring to the controversy over the nomination of Milton Pikarsky to head the RTA.

Palatine officials plan to ask NORTAN to make a formal presentation to the village board before acting on the subsidy request. The trustees are concerned about the number of Palatine residents using the bus service, number of bus runs, fares, the time and place the bus service is available, in addition to the company's financial condition.

Questions were raised about the necessity of a bus line paralleling the Chicago and North Western Ry. line by both Palatine officials and Arlington Heights Assistant Village Mgr. Darryl Kenning.

Wheeling officials are considering NORTAN's request and are expected to act on it by Nov. 1.

Hazel Steinke, 100 Deborah Ln., Wheeling, this week told the village board that a group of senior citizens are disturbed over the possibility of the bus service being ended.

"If the bus service is discontinued they (senior citizens) won't be able to get anywhere without a cab and cabs are costly," she said. "We would like to see the buses remain and be increased if possible."

Mrs. Steinke suggested the village board negotiate with NORTAN for more buses and better service before making a decision on the subsidy.

"We need not only a complete, but a dependable bus service," she said. "We hope the village fathers will do something to help the poor people who have to walk."

Stevenson homecoming features pep rally, football game, dance

A pep rally Friday night, Saturday's football game and half-time show and the alumni dance Saturday night will highlight Stevenson High School's homecoming this weekend.

On Thursday the school will elect the homecoming queen who will be presented to the school at the pep rally Friday at 8 p.m.

The queen will be selected from the senior representatives on the homecoming court: Kelly McCabe, Janice Moloney, Barbara Wiley and Sue Worley. Other students selected Tuesday for the court were Diane Bell, freshman representative; Janice West, sophomore representative; and Judith Scott, junior representative.

Stationary floats will be built from 1 to 8 p.m. Friday.

Saturday's activities start at noon with the sophomore game. Stevenson's Patriots will play the Wauconda High School Bulldogs at 2 p.m. after pregame activities to start at 1:40 p.m.

After the game, an open house will be held in the school sponsored by the National Honor Society and the guidance department.

The homecoming dance for alumni and students will be held from 8 to 11 p.m. in the school cafeteria.

Village board wrapup

Police dispatch system approved

A plan joining the Buffalo Grove Police Dept. with three other department in a central dispatch system was approved Monday by the village board.

Buffalo Grove police will share a radio frequency with police from Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Elk Grove Village. The three other departments already are using the cooperative system.

Police Chief Harry Walsh says the Buffalo Grove end of the system should be operational by next month. The plan will make police communications among the three towns more efficient, Walsh said.

New gambling law planned

The board has decided to defer repealing the village gambling ordinance until another code can be drawn up prohibiting game machine "arcades."

Trustee Thomas Mahoney Tuesday said the village wants to repeal the nine-year old ordinance but is seeking to prohibit the establishment of game machine areas in village businesses.

Even though the ordinance is removed, officials say the village will still be protected by overlapping state statutes governing gambling.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said the old law is out of step with state codes on game machines, bingo and lottery ticket sales.

2 cops get commendations

Special commendations were given to two Buffalo Grove policemen, Sgt. Ronald Gozdecki and Patrolman Charles Weidner by the village board.

Weidner was cited for nearly 30 hours of off-duty work aiding in the capture of three men charged with the burglary of a Buffalo Grove home in which eight weapons were stolen.

The board commended Gozdecki for capturing a fleeing suspect wanted for the armed holdup of an Arlington Heights grocery store Sept. 16.

Property rezoning approved

The board approved an ordinance calling for rezoning a piece of property in the village from R-1 residential to the B-1 limited retail business district.

The change will allow for a building on the property, Arlington Heights Road and Ill. Rte. 83 to be used as a real estate office.

Mass transit group weighs bus future

by STEVE BROWN

Des Plaines' new mass transportation study committee began playing the "how" game Wednesday as it considered the future of bus operations in the city.

"How much" and "how long" were the chief questions posed during the 90-minute meeting. The committee, composed of Aldermen George Olen, 2nd, John Seitz, 7th, and Richard Ward, 8th, has been instructed to look into what steps the city should take to continue bus operations in Des Plaines.

The city has received proposals from both the North Suburban Mass Transit District (NORTAN) and the Chicago Transit Authority for bus operations.

DES PLAINEs currently is served by United Motor Coach Co., but that service may cease in the near future because NORTAN is in the midst of purchasing United Motor Coach.

NORTAN has indicated that once it takes over the bus company, the 14 bus routes in Des Plaines would probably be dropped unless the city agrees to provide operating subsidies of about $65,000 a year.

The CTA proposal includes establishing routes to serve about 90 per cent of the residential and industrial areas, as well as routes to Chicago and O'Hare Airport.

That service, however, could cost as much as $300,000 to operate.

The other question pondered by the committee is how long the city would have to pay operating subsidies before the Regional Transit Authority would take over operation of the bus service.

JOSEPH DIJOHN, NORTAN's executive director, said he does not believe the city will have to subsidize the routes for more than one year.

Once the RTA becomes operational, area officials believe the RTA will provide operating revenues from money generated through real estate taxes and other funds.

City officials agreed to conduct further research into both the CTA and NORTAN proposal, by seeking a meeting with representatives of each group.

In addition to the two proposals, the committee also will examine the costs of operating its own bus service within the city limits and the possibility of mixing portions of the NORTAN and CTA proposals into one package deal.

IN ADDITION to dealing with the immediate problem, Ward suggested possibly some study should be given to forming a mass transit district with towns west of Des Plaines.

The other two aldermen on the committee and Mayor Herbert Behrel said, however, they did not favor such a move. Behrel stated that he primarily is worried about future bus service for local residents.

Part of the reason for the higher cost of the CTA proposal is that CTA officials estimated the service would charge a 25-cent fare.

Behrel noted that either the fare could be raised or the frequency of service along the routes could be decreased and the cost to the city should also decrease.

The three local routes in the city would run south from the Chicago and North Western Ry. station to Devon at the Tri-State Tollway. A northern route would run from the train station to Central and Rand roads. Two other routes would run into the southwest and western part of the city, extending service west to Elmhurst Road and south to Touhy Avenue.

Election '74 class to hear 4 candidates

Four political candidates in the upcoming November elections will speak to the Election '74 class at Oakton Community College.

Peter Bensinger, Republican candidate for sheriff of Cook County, will speak Friday.

On Monday, Dwayne Anderson, Republican candidate for county treasurer will meet with the class, followed by Norm Dachman, Democratic candidate for the Cook County Board of Commissioners on Wednesday, Oct. 23. Eugene Schlickman, Republican Candidate for state representative from the fourth district, is scheduled to come to the class on Friday, Oct. 25.

Election '74 is an interdisciplinary course taught by State Rep. Aaron Jaffe, Skokie, and Michael Danko, Oakton assistant professor of communications. The sessions will be held from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. in Building 6, Rooms 603-605, at OCC, Oakton and Nagle, Morton Grove. The public is welcome and admission is free.

EVERY GRAM COUNTS when you're working on a lab problem. Cheryl Arnold, left, and Kim Wagner study a scale while working on a science project at Iroquois Junior High School, Des Plaines. The girls are part of an independent study group established for seventh graders at the school by science teacher Don Kessel.

'Science is for self-discovery' Independent study prevents 'blahs'

by LINDA PUNCH

A drawing in Don Kessel's classroom shows a comic strip character struggling with the intricacies of the metric system and concluding that "10 grams equals one grampa."

The Iroquois Junior High School teacher can smile at the cartoon as he glances around his room at youngsters experimenting with metric measurements. For Kessel, science is a subject to be discovered — not force fed — to students.

"What I'm trying to do is accommodate all levels of ability in this class," Kessel said. "In regular classes, there are always kids who are bored because they already understand the material. They either lose interest or cause problems."

IN KESSEL'S class, lectures and textbook readings are replaced by independent study by the students. The seventh graders are given one required reading assignment — other information can be obtained from filmstrips, games, puzzles or worksheets.

"I tell them what I want them to learn — they can do it in any order they want," he said. "When they finish, I check their work and they start on another project."

Instructions for various projects are posted on bulletin boards around the rooms. The students work with modules — shoeboxes filled with instruments and information needed to learn a certain concept and skill — in small groups or individually. Each child grades his own paper with Kessel reviewing the sheet to make sure all work has been done.

"I don't grade papers — I want the kids to feel like I'm giving them information instead of punishing them for not finding the correct answer," he said.

AT THE END of each project, the students take a quiz to gauge how well they understand a concept. The youngsters are expected to rework any incorrect problems to find their mistakes. "Everything they do goes in a notebook. By the time they finish a unit, they should have a complete record of what they learned," Kessel said.

The individualized program not only allows each youngster to work at his own rate but also gives Kessel more opportunity to meet with each child. While the students work on the individual projects, Kessel walks through the room answering questions and discussing the unit with students.

"The beauty of this system is that I actually counsel and see more students on an individual basis than I could in a regular classroom," he said. "The time after classes used to be tied up with just the kids having problems."

THE NEW SCIENCE program also "puts the burden of learning on the kids — they're responsible for their own projects," according to Kessel.

"I give them the objectives but they have some choices to make. It's up to them to steer themselves through," he said.

Kessel also refrains from handing out easy answers to students, instead of referring them to a particular text or chart.

"I don't tell them much — I think it sticks with them more if it takes a little extra effort to find the answer," he said.

KESSEL WORKS in tandem with math teacher George Amundsen, frequently sending a youngster across the hall to seek help on a problem. The two teachers coordinate the program for seventh-grade students so that math and science lessons are interrelated.

The science teacher notes that eighth grade science may be a sharp contrast to his independent study program, but said that students "will have a good foundation in learning."

"And they'll still have enthusiasm," he said. "Hopefully, we won't have killed that."

Park district wrapup

No-rental bus policy approved

The Des Plaines Park Board this week decided against renting the park district bus to non-park district clubs or organizations.

The park board adopted a policy last month setting forth rules for rental of the bus including a fee schedule, which was approved for a 30-day period. When the park board was confronted with the matter of establishing a permanent fee schedule at its meeting Tuesday, the board decided to eliminate rental completely.

The bus will be used for park district programs and will be available to groups that sponsor park district related programs for a fee of 25 cents per mile plus reimbursement for the driver's time.

The bus was available to non-profit community groups on a low-priority basis but David Markworth, superintendent of recreation, said during the past month no groups had sought to rent the bus.

Club dues approved

The board voted to pay service club dues for Park Director Robert Kunkel and Markworth to join the local Kiwanis and Rotary clubs. The cost for the memberships is estimated at about $600.

New vehicle bids sought

The board will readvertise for bids for two 1975 autos and one 1975 flat-bed truck. Only one bid on the vehicles was received and Kunkel told the board if the bids are readvertised, at least three would be submitted. Several bids for the vehicles were submitted after the bid opening deadline, Kunkel said.

Bike path finished

A $10,000 asphalt bike path has been completed around Lake Park. Park district crews will grade dirt along the edges of the path and erect barriers to keep cars off the path.

Renovation work is continuing at Rand Park and has been completed at Blackhawk and Tomahawk parks.

All parks have been fertilized and sprayed with herbicide.

$8,199 for tree fund

Kunkel reported the park district's tree fund has received $8,199.16 while spending $5,756.45. The tree fund was established to finance the cost of replacing and planting trees in parks. Funds are collected through donations.

Parks seek $20,000

The park district has submitted a request to the city for $20,000 in revenue-sharing funds for 1975.

Lake Park closes Nov. 3

Lake Park will close for the season on Nov. 3, Markworth said. The recreation superintendent also told the board a football awards party for youths who participated in the Punt, Pass and Kick contest will be Oct. 26 at Rand Park.

Halloween and Goblin Give-Away parties will be Oct. 31 at West and South parks for children in grades kindergarten through fourth.

The 1974-75 Children's Theatre program has been organized with performances scheduled for Dec. 5 at Orchard Place, St. Mary's and Plainfield schools and Feb. 26 at Maple and Central schools.

The park district and the schools will share production costs.

False picture of mental health facilities

Center tries to shed 'looney bin' tag

by JERRY THOMAS

The Elk Grove-Schaumburg Mental Health Center is trying to shed the image of being just a "looney bin," said executive director Jordan Rosen.

"It is a false image and impression our center, like other mental health facilities has been branded with in the past," Rosen said.

The center, located in a farmhouse on Blesterfield Road near the Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village, instead serves as a therapy facility for people who need help.

It offers several programs designed to appeal to people who are interested in retaining a healthy mental attitude, as well as to those who need therapeutic services for either being seriously or mildly emotionally disturbed.

ELK GROVE VILLAGE has been the primary financial supporter of the center and was responsible for its start in 1966. It then was known as the Community Services and Mental Health Board and served Elk Grove Village only. In those beginning years the center's main job was working with delinquent teen-agers.

Until 1969, with additional funding from Elk Grove Township and the Elk Grove United Fund, the center began expanding its services to include families.

The five-room farmhouse, an old frame building, has been expanded to meet the demands of the communities the center now serves. It is now a 10-room facility.

"In 1970 we operated on a $36,000 a year budget with a staff of three people; today it has 25 persons on the staff and a budget of approximately $300,000 and we are still growing," Rosen said.

FUNDING TO OPERATE the center now comes from the two townships, the Illinois Dept. of Mental Health, the United Fund of Schaumburg and Elk Grove Village and clients' fees.

With the state aid in 1971 came a directive to serve the full Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships area. In 1972 the community service board created the Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center. The new agency continued to be partially funded by and worked with Elk Grove Village until this year when the center became totally independent of the village. The center is now governed by and responsible to its board of directors.

Rosen has put about 95 per cent of the building's total space to use as conference rooms for therapists and clients with one small room housing the center's seven clerical and administrative staff members.

"Several months ago the center had a waiting list; today thanks to a recent United Fund cash allocation we've an almost non-existent waiting list and more staff," Rosen said.

THE FACILITY is handling a full patient load that averages 55 cases a month. Some of the cases are whole families. "We are OK for now, but since we don't terminate treatment of exactly 55 cases a month before long we will be hard pressed to meet the demands of the ever growing communities we serve," Rosen said.

In addition to the facility in Elk Grove Village, the center operates an outpost at Roselle and Schaumburg roads in Schaumburg.

Doors are open Monday through Thursday, from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. and Friday and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

"We welcome drop-ins and are open anytime to just talk or explain what's available in the way of enrichment or therapeutic programs," Rosen said.

THE CENTER accepts anyone regardless of his ability to pay and has established a sliding fee scale for those who can afford payment.

The following are some of the services now offered:

- Sustaining care for post hospital patients from either the Dept. of Mental Health or private facilities. This includes medication maintenance; outreach with staff members working with patients while they are hospitalized to enable a smoother transition to the outside world; social and community support; crisis intervention and a sheltered workshop and work activity service.

- Emergency evaluation to determine the need for hospitalization or mental health care.

- An out-patient treatment program that includes diagnosis, psycho-social evaluation, counseling and treatment for individuals, families or groups.

- A program directed toward the seriously emotionally disturbed and behaviorally disordered child and adolescent. Also individual and group therapy treatment for adolescents who have poor peer relationships, are underachievers, or have venereal diseases or other problems that could be treated to prevent serious psychiatric problems later in life.

From the library

Several new programs are starting this month at the Des Plaines Public Library.

Every Saturday is "fun happenings day" for grade school children. Kindergarten through third grade level pupils are invited to attend the program from 9:30-10 a.m. in the children's room. A program for children in fourth through sixth grade is held from 10:30-11 a.m.

A new group is being formed for junior high school students called "Glad About Books." The first meeting will be held Thursday, Oct. 24 from 4-5 p.m. The adult book discussion group meets every third Wednesday of the month at 7:30 p.m.

A Halloween party is planned for Wednesday, Oct. 30 at 7 p.m. The whole family is invited to come dressed in costume and see the spine-chilling movie "The Comedy of Terrors."

Maine West to score big with Virg Carter as guest

An assembly featuring Chicago Fire quarterback Virgil Carter will kick off homecoming activities at Maine West High School Friday afternoon.

The 1974 homecoming parade, featuring the marching band, twirling corps and floats, will get under way at 3 p.m. Friday. IS THIS THE Cheryl Fischer party? Dropping in as an early birthday present for Cheryl, who'll be 16 later this month, is her brother, Michael, 20. The jump Wednesday was above St. Alphonsus School, Prospect Heights.

Birthday gift a flighty affair for chutist

Michael Fischer, 20, of Prospect Heights jumped 3,000 feet Wednesday to bring his younger sister a birthday present.

Fischer, a skydiving enthusiast, and a friend jumped from a single-engine airplane at 5:30 p.m. and landed in a field south of St. Alphonsus School, 411 N. Wheeling Rd., Prospect Heights. The jump was an early birthday gift for his sister, Cheryl, who will be 16 Oct. 28.

"Cheryl and my parents really never saw me jump before," Fischer said, explaining his unusual gift. And Cheryl's reaction was that "it was neat but I was scared to death."

Fischer's mother shared a bit of anxiety. "It was frightening until his chute opened up," she said, admitting having had a few fleeting thoughts the parachute would not open.

The jump went smoothly, Fischer said. It was his 260th jump and he has yet to be injured. "There are very few injuries in this sport," he explained.

IN ADDITION TO family members, about 35 neighbors and friends watched Fischer and his companion, Norm Prien of Park Ridge, descend toward their aluminum foil marker.

The pair jumped on the fourth pass, having dropped a wind indicator on the second pass. They rode in a friend's airplane and took off from the Chicagoan Airport on Milwaukee Avenue.

Fischer landed nearest the onlookers and was greeted with a bottle of wine, while Prien was quickly surrounded by a group of football players who were practicing nearby.

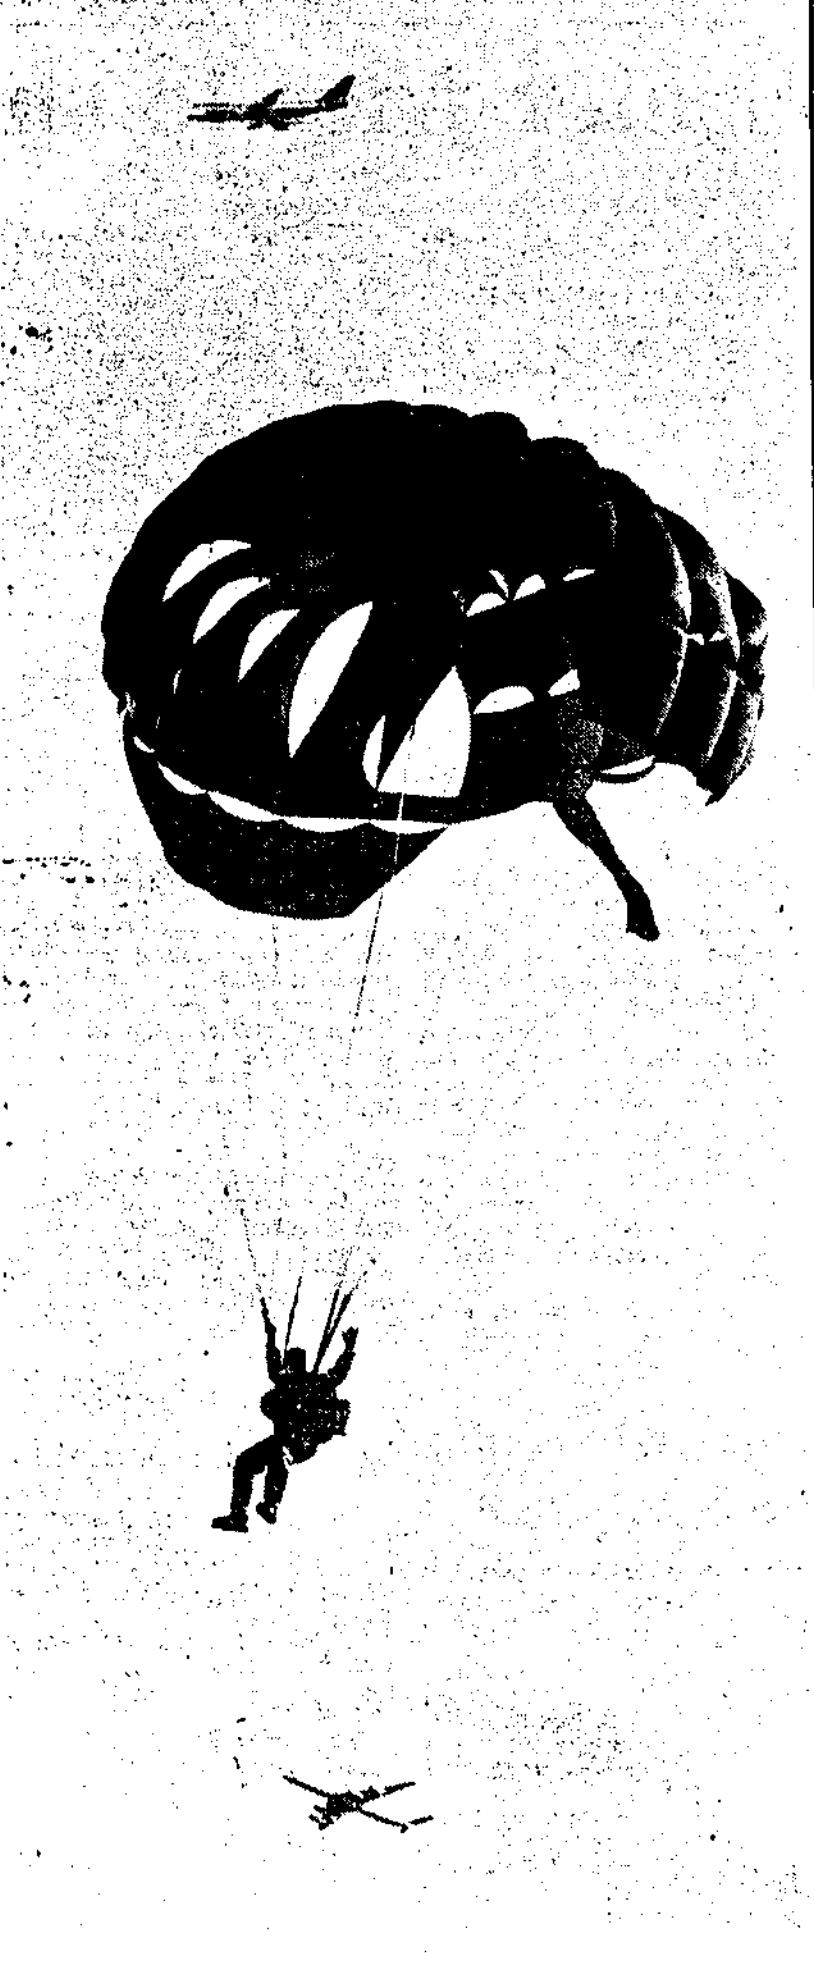

Fischer, who lives at 200 E. McDonald Rd., has been skydiving for three years and is a member of the Northern Illinois Sky Divers Club. As of Jan. 1 he will be the new owner of the club, which is based in Hebron, Ill.

The costs of owning the club will be small, he said, because the $20 annual dues and the $4 jump fees are used to cover expenses. "It's not a business, it's just a club," he said.

Policeman's grievance hearing Oct. 31

The Des Plaines Police and Fire Commission has set a tentative Oct. 31 hearing date to consider a grievance filed last month by the Combined Counties Police Assn. on behalf of Patrolman Scott Broehl.

Broehl was suspended for one day last month for allegedly violating the department's hair code. Broehl was told his hair was not in compliance with the code because it hung over his ears, although he was reinstated when he combed his hair in back of his ears. He did not get his hair cut.

According to the police hair code, hair may extend one-quarter inch over the rear of the uniform collar. No mention is made of hair length in reference to the ear.

Patrolman Mike Albrecht, president of the local CCPA chapter, Wednesday said he has not received confirmation of River Trails schools to fill vacancy Nov. 5

The River Trails Dist. 26 Board of Education is expected to appoint an assistant superintendent at its Nov. 5 meeting.

Board Pres. Michael Sheyker said Wednesday the new administrator will assume the duties of assistant superintendent and business manager. The board is considering several applicants for the job.

The vacancy in the administration resulted from the transfer of James Retzlaff from assistant superintendent to principal of River Road School. The post of business manager opens Oct. 25 when the resignation of Jean Meister takes effect.

The board decided to combine the two positions at a budget hearing last month. Supt. John Fridlund is in charge of selecting a replacement for the position.

Vandals break windows at 2 schools

Windows at two Des Plaines schools were reported broken Tuesday apparently by vandals, police said.

At both Iroquois Junior High School, 1836 E. Touhy, and South School, 1535 Everett, the wire mesh safety glass in the front doors were reported broken. Police said an unknown object was used at Iroquois and caused an estimated $150 damage.

At South School police said it appeared as if a BB gun or a pellet gun was used to cause the hole in the 3-by-7-foot glass. Damage was estimated at $200.

Store windows will turn into 'Hobgoblin Row'

Ghosts and goblins this year again will line the windows of stores in Des Plaines for the annual Halloween Window Painting Contest sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and the Junior Woman's Club.

The contest is open to all Cub Scouts, Junior Girl Scouts and Camp Fire Girls in Des Plaines and will take place from 4 to 6 p.m. Oct. 24-25. Windows must be painted solely by children and must be completed by the morning of Oct. 26 when judging will take place.

Prizes will be awarded and each child who participates will receive a gift.

Applications for the contest are available by calling Marilyn Kellerman at 827-2947 or 299-3898. Application deadline is Friday.

Troops and dens will supply brushes and the ideas for each Halloween scene. Tempera paint will be supplied to each entrant for a $1.25 fee or entrants may supply their own paint.

Window scenes will be displayed through Nov. 1, after which each den and troop will be responsible for cleaning its displays from windows.

Lawmaker aid sought in bike safety plan

Elk Grove Park District and township officials will seek help from local legislators to introduce bicycle licensing or safety laws and plan to seek outside help in funding a bike-safety plan.

Further financial support to establish a bicycle-safety program, including a permanent bike riding course, was pledged Tuesday to park officials by Elk Grove Township auditors.

Township Supervisor Richard Hall said the township has earmarked $10,000 for bicycle safety.

"In addition to the money, what the program needs is some help from lawmakers who can help us make bike education a part of every school child's curriculum," said Hall.

The bicycle-safety plan was compiled by the park district with a $1,000 grant from the township.

JACK CLAES, director of parks and recreation, outlined a program for township officials Tuesday.

It calls for close cooperation with school districts and the use of the state school superintendent's bicycle safety lessons, designed to be included in the school curriculum in kindergarten through eighth grade.

Claes said that in contrast to the present programs available, where youngsters are exposed to brief drills in bike safety, the program would closely parallel driver education courses.

Claes said local police statistics in villages served by Elk Grove Township show four died in bicycle accidents last year and that more than 100 cyclists were injured seriously enough to require medical attention.

"These statistics alone are enough to show us we need a bike safety program," he said.

CLAES ADDED that while everyone agrees there is a need for bicycle safety measures, few have really done anything substantial to solve the problem of educating the young in bicycle safety.

"There are about 50,000 bicycles in cities served by Elk Grove Township and for the most part those are manned by some 40,000 youngsters between the ages of 3 and 17," said Claes.

Claes said that in addition to the township's support, Elk Grove Village officials and police department and Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59, the state, Schwinn Sales Midwest, the Elk Grove Village Jaycees and the park board have pledged help and offered to participate in the program in some way.

The officials Tuesday established a committee composed of Claes, township auditors Bernard Lee and Larry Hintze and will seek representatives from District 59 and Elk Grove Village.

THE COMMITTEE'S task will be to determine how much a training course and permanent licensing and educational facility will cost, draw up a plan of action and seek a land donation and costs estimates.

It will also attempt to draw both financial and other support from neighboring townships, and communities within the township.

In addition to these, the committee will seek out legislators who will work for mandatory bicycle safety laws.

AN OLD FARMHOUSE acts as the headquarters for the Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center, next to Alexian Brothers Medical Center. Officials hope to find new facilities because of the increased demand being made for the health center's services.

cause of the increased demand being made for the health center's services.

False picture of mental health facilities

Center tries to shed 'looney bin' tag

by JERRY THOMAS

The Elk Grove-Schaumburg Mental Health Center is trying to shed the image of being just a "looney bin," said executive director Jordan Rosen.

"It is a false image and impression our center, like other mental health facilities has been branded with in the past," Rosen said.

The center, located in a farmhouse on Blesterfield Road near the Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village, instead serves as a therapy facility for people who need help.

It offers several programs designed to appeal to people who are interested in retaining a healthy mental attitude, as well as to those who need therapeutic services for either being seriously or mildly emotionally disturbed.

ELK GROVE VILLAGE has been the primary financial supporter of the center and was responsible for its start in 1966. It then was known as the Community Services and Mental Health Board and served Elk Grove Village only. In those beginning years the center's main job was working with delinquent teenagers.

Until 1969, with additional funding from Elk Grove Township and the Elk Grove United Fund, the center began expanding its services to include families.

The five-room farmhouse, an old frame building, has been expanded to meet the demands of the communities the center now serves. It is now a 10-room facility.

"In 1970 we operated on a $36,000 a year budget with a staff of three people; today it has 25 persons on the staff and a budget of approximately $300,000 and we are still growing," Rosen said.

FUNDING TO OPERATE the center now comes from the two townships, the Illinois Dept. of Mental Health, the United Fund of Schaumburg and Elk Grove Village and clients' fees.

With the state aid in 1971 came a directive to serve the full Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships area. In 1972 the community service board created the Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center. The new agency continued to be partially funded by and worked with Elk Grove Village until this year when the center became totally independent of the village. The center is now governed by and responsible to its board of directors.

Rosen has put about 95 per cent of the building's total space to use as conference rooms for therapists and clients with one small room housing the center's seven clerical and administrative staff members.

"Several months ago the center had a waiting list; today thanks to a recent United Fund cash allocation we've an almost non-existent waiting list and more staff," Rosen said.

THE FACILITY is handling a full patient load that averages 55 cases a month. Some of the cases are whole families. "We are OK for now, but since we don't terminate treatment of exactly 55 cases a month before long we will be hard pressed to meet the demands of the ever growing communities we serve," Rosen said.

In addition to the facility in Elk Grove Village, the center operates an outpost at Roselle and Schaumburg roads in Schaumburg.

Doors are open Monday through Thursday, from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. and Friday and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

"We welcome drop-ins and are open anytime to just talk or explain what's available in the way of enrichment or therapeutic programs," Rosen said.

THE CENTER accepts anyone regardless of his ability to pay and has established a sliding fee scale for those who can afford payment.

The following are some of the services now offered:

- Sustaining care for post hospital patients from either the Dept. of Mental Health or private facilities. This includes medication maintenance; outreach with staff members working with patients while they are hospitalized to enable a smoother transition to the outside world; social and community support; crisis intervention and a sheltered workshop and work activity service.
- Emergency evaluation to determine the need for hospitalization or mental health care.

- An out-patient treatment program that includes diagnosis, psycho-social evaluation, counseling and treatment for individuals, families or groups.

- A program directed toward the seriously emotionally disturbed and behaviorally disordered child and adolescent. Also individual and group therapy treatment for adolescents who have poor peer relationships, are underachievers, or have venereal diseases or other problems that could be treated to prevent serious psychiatric problems later in life.

Resident found dead in car in garage

Police and County authorities are investigating the death of an Elk Grove Village man found Wednesday in the garage of a home he rented at 503 Ridgewood St.

Dead is Raymond Wals, 24. Police said the body was discovered in a car in the garage by a friend who shared the house with Wals.

Police said the ignition was on and the gas tank empty and some indications of carbon monoxide poisoning were evident. The county coroner's office will conduct an inquest into the cause of death.

4 youths held for raping girl, 14, here

Four Elk Grove Village boys, each 14 years old, are in the custody of county juvenile authorities after being charged with the rape of a 14-year-old Elk Grove Village girl.

Police said the youths were apprehended Wednesday after being identified by the victim and are being held in the Audy Home in Chicago. Police have filed a petition and are seeking a declaratory judgment of rape against the youths by juvenile court authorities, according to Police Lt. William Kolinko.

Lt. Kolinko said the rape occurred in a residential area on the north side of the village, after the girl was dragged between two houses while she was walking with a friend.

Nov. 2 tentative date Voters to weigh free-text plan

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Parents may pay more for textbooks in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 if voters reject a referendum for free textbooks next month.

Dist. 54 has tentatively scheduled a referendum Nov. 2 calling for the elimination of textbook fees. The referendum asks voters to allow the district to pay for the books out of its own budget with tax money instead of passing the cost on to parents.

But the cost of textbooks has increased in the last few years and parents may find themselves shelling out several dollars more for books if the referendum is defeated.

ARLENE CZAJKOWSKI, Dist. 54 board member, said the board's attorney has told the district it must pass on the actual cost of books to parents. Dist. 54 has not increased its book rental fee for several years but has been making up the difference in cost out of its own funds. The board probably will have to raise the book fees if the referendum doesn't pass, Mrs. Czajkowski said. "We won't have much choice."

Last year Dist. 54 spent $168,882 on books and collected $112,796 in fees, Associate Supt. Milton Derr said. In 1971, Dist. 54 had a slight surplus of fees, Derr said, but since then has had a deficit. During the last four years the district collected $404,300 and spent $531,280 on books. Dist. 54 is in effect subsidizing about 24 per cent of the cost of books, he said.

Derr said it is difficult to pass along the costs to the penny because textbook prices vary from year to year. "I don't think there is any school district to my knowledge that passes on the actual cost," he said. "They could get close, but they couldn't be exact."

Books are currently rented to parents in Dist. 54 at a cost of $3.50 per year for kindergarten and $7.50 for students in first through eighth grades. School officials figure the average life of a book at five years and divide the cost of the book by five to come up with the rental price. Workbooks, however, are purchased new each year, and they have "increased tremendously in price," Derr said.

STUDENT ENROLLMENT in Dist. 54 increases by 800 to 900 students per year so each dime lost on books is multiplied by the number of students each year. Most schools, including Dist. 54, have been using more individualized instruction in the classroom, said Derr, requiring more books and instructional materials.

Derr said the Dist. 54 assistant superintendent for finance has asked board members if they would consider raising book fees to gain revenue for the textbook account. Instead the board decided to eliminate textbook fees and let the district pick up the cost. Dist. 54 is required by law to hold the referendum to get the go-ahead for free books.

No book fees were charged to parents this year pending the outcome of the referendum. This year's budget includes district payment of all textbook costs and it still has a surplus of $318,268, Derr said.

Derr said a five-year projection of district finances shows a surplus each year due to increased assessed valuation in Schaumburg Township. The district lowered its tax rate this year because the revenue from assessed valuation increased.

MRS. CZAJKOWSKI said the district will not have to raise the tax rate to pick up the tab because it has a surplus in its budget which can be used for books.

Derr said the district can afford to pay for books without raising taxes and he has heard little opposition to free textbooks. He said he heard one parent whose child attends a parochial school say she is opposed to paying taxes for free books in public schools. If there is any opposition to the referendum Derr said it probably would come from these parents.

$7,000 in antifreeze stolen from dealer

Antifreeze valued at $7,000 was reported stolen from an Elk Grove Village distributor Wednesday.

Police are investigating the theft of the antifreeze from the M. Loeb firm, 1925 Busse Rd. The antifreeze was discovered missing from a warehouse area sometime Wednesday.

Ask boycott of Palatine shops

Knolls commuters rip higher parking rate

by TONI GINETTI

Some residents of the Winston Knolls subdivision of Hoffman Estates don't think it's fair that they have to pay a higher rate than Palatine residents to park in Palatine commuter lots.

Letters from the homeowners' association to the village objecting to a parking increase approved this summer have not changed the minds of Palatine officials.

So, now the association has called on its estimated 2,500 members to boycott Palatine shops and make their purchases in Hoffman Estates instead.

AND THAT CALL, which some residents say is a good idea, is not being met happily by Palatine merchants.

"You better believe I'll be affected," Steven Sherwin, manager of the Radio Shack shop in the Palatine Transportation Center plaza, said of the proposal. "I have a lot of customers from Hoffman Estates."

"If that is the reaction, then certainly as a merchants group we are sorry to hear that," said Michael Morman of the Downtown Merchants Assn.

The proposed protest stems from the Palatine Village Board's decision to raise the monthly parking cost for non-resident commuters near the Chicago and North Western station from $10 to $11. At the same time the residential rate was reduced by $1 from $8 to $7 monthly.

THE DIFFERENT RATES were put into effect in 1972. Before that, rates were the same for residents and non-residents.

"Quite a few people (from the subdivision) park there," said Tom McGuire, association president. He said the shopping boycott was proposed in this month's newsletter after residents brought the matter to the attention of the association.

McGuire sent a letter to Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones last month, saying since the village derived sales tax from Winston Knolls residents who shop in Palatine they should be entitled to the lower rate.

McGuire said a letter from Village Mgr. Anton Harwig said the rate was justified because the village bears the expense of providing the lots.

HARWIG SAID THE different rates are "the most just and equitable approach to the problem of one community furnishing parking facilities for users other than residents."

McGuire said he thinks "people should consider" the boycott and some residents Wednesday agreed.

"I think it's a good idea," said Mrs. Kostas Kapsimalis, 207 Winston Dr. She said she already does most of her shopping in Hoffman Estates.

"It probably would be "an effective measure," said Robin Nelson, 410 Mason Dr. She said most of the family shopping is now done in Hoffman Estates.

The Schweitzer family, 102 Park St., also shops in Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg, but LuAnn Schweitzer said "it might help if a lot of people follow the boycott."

ANOTHER RESIDENT, Mrs. R. W. Nellis, 108 E. Freeman Rd., said she did not think the move would work because residents will shop where it is convenient. "I do 95 per cent of my shopping in Palatine because it's closer."

If a reduction in Palatine shopping takes place, "it would serve the merchants right," Radio Shack manager Sherwin said. He said merchants have raised the parking matter before with the village because of fear of losing business, but got nowhere.

Morman added he would "certainly take it up" with Jones if the boycott becomes effective.

Improvements rolling along

$2.5 million parks work should be done in 2 years

Park improvements financed last year by two bond issues totaling $2.5 million are rolling along in Schaumburg Park District despite construction woes such as the recent cement truckdrivers' strike.

"I couldn't be more happy about how fast we're moving on the project," said Paul Derda, park district director.

Ronald Dudley, superintendent of parks, said most of the three-year project should be completed after two years, barring unforeseen problems.

IN OCTOBER 1973, voters approved a referendum calling for $700,000 for land acquisition for the Spring Valley Nature Area and $1.8 million for park improvements.

Only a few promised development items have not been started. They include purchase of a collapsible bubble top for year-round swimming at Atcher Pool, construction of an outdoor hockey rink and nine tennis courts and landscaping at Einstein School park, which has to be delayed until Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 completes expansion of the school.

Negotiations are under way for the nature area, which is planned to be about 200 acres somewhere near Schaumburg and Plum Grove Roads. So far, developer Jack Pritzker has donated two acres on Plum Grove Road about a half mile north of Weathersfield Way. The nature area club has cleaned up the area, where different varieties of trees are growing.

Improvements are under way at 13 park sites. Large sites like Hoover School, Shapiro and Cedarcrest-Sienna parks have been turned into smooth contoured areas from pot-holed terrain. Grass seed has been planted on some of the sites and athletic field lighting should be installed this fall.

Work on the olympic-sized pool at Meineke Park has progressed a lot since the end of the cement strike. It is still scheduled to open in June 1975.

IT WAS ESTIMATED that $30,000 to $40,000 may have been saved by having the park district maintenance crew plant trees and grass and install playground equipment. Dudley said the savings were used to offset inflation-spurred price increases on other construction.

Dudley's crew has planted about 200 trees since last year and worked on landscaping for six park sites. They have installed equipment like the district's massive, $10,000 Mark IV — a collection of slides and children's playground amusements.

Park district employees have hauled more than 300 truckloads of black dirt to the Hoover site. Dudley said recent hiring of "talented" personnel and purchase of $30,000 worth of equipment has enabled the department to complete projects that would cost more if contracted with a commercial firm. The referendum funds included $150,000 for purchase of the department's 10,000 square foot facility in the Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Park.

The department completed small projects including installing a gravel walk across the Hoover site after area residents voiced concern that their children would have to walk around the site and along busy Springguth Road.

Park district officials said the cement strike delayed things like the tennis courts, but construction should start this spring. Officials also are looking at new materials for the pool bubble top and seeking lower bids for hockey rink construction.

A 3,000-FOOT drop was Michael Fischer's birthday present to his sister, Cheryl, 16, when he parachuted to a field in Prospect Heights Wednesday.

The 20-year-old Prospect Heights resident said his sister and parents had never seen him jump, although he has completed 260 drops.

Body identified as Schaumburg youth, 19

by JOE SWICKARD

Sheriff's investigators have identified a body discovered two weeks ago in Deer Grove Forest Preserve as a Schaumburg youth missing for 17 months.

Investigator William Bufford said the remains were those of David Shotsberger, 19, of 527 S. Plymouth, Schaumburg. Shotsberger was reported missing by his parents May 18, 1973, Bufford said.

Shotsberger was identified through dental charts. The cause of the young man's death is listed as unknown, Bufford said. There were no signs of foul play, according to reports.

The badly decomposed body was discovered Oct. 4, by hikers in Grove No. 1 of the large forest preserve near Palatine. The remains were found lying in a dry creek bed about 100 yards from the path where the hikers came across part of the skeleton, Bufford said.

Bufford said they believed the remains were Shotsberger, but were only able to identify them positively Wednesday.

SHOTSBERGER WAS A passenger in a car involved in a crash near the site where the body was discovered. Witnesses to the May 1973 accident said Shotsberger got out of the car in a dazed condition and staggered into the darkened woods.

Despite searches of the area after the youth was reported missing, no trace of him was unearthed until the hikers made their discovery two weeks ago.

Bufford said until recently the bed was covered by a flowing stream.

Identification of the remains were hampered by the advanced state of decomposition. Clothing and other things which might have helped with identification had deteriorated to a condition unusable for testing, officials said.

Bufford said the family "took it hard" after comparison of dental charts and the remains provided conclusive identification.

"They took it hard, especially the mother and the grandmother. They kept hoping he would turn up some day," he said.

Shotsberger's father, Richard, said he did not wish to comment on the discovery and final identification of his son Wednesday.

Alcohol abuse No. 1 drug problem here?

Alcohol is apparently again becoming the major drug problem in Schaumburg Township and is being used increasingly in combination with barbiturates, members of a drug symposium panel said Wednesday.

The mixing of alcohol and barbiturates among youth and adults is a particularly dangerous development because quick death can result, the panel warned.

"Fire department officials have told us almost all the ODs (overdoses) they take to the hospital in the last few years have been people 25 to 35 who have mixed beer with some kind of barbiturates," said Joanne Reid of the Spectrum Youth Services bureau in Schaumburg Township.

A PANEL OF THREE, including Miss Reid, Sheriff's Patrolman Ronald Sievers and County Youth Services worker Charles Jahn, told an audience of some 30 persons at Schaumburg High School the use of alcohol with other drugs is on the rise.

The trend differs from the situation a year ago when the use of other types of depressant drugs was apparent, Miss Reid said.

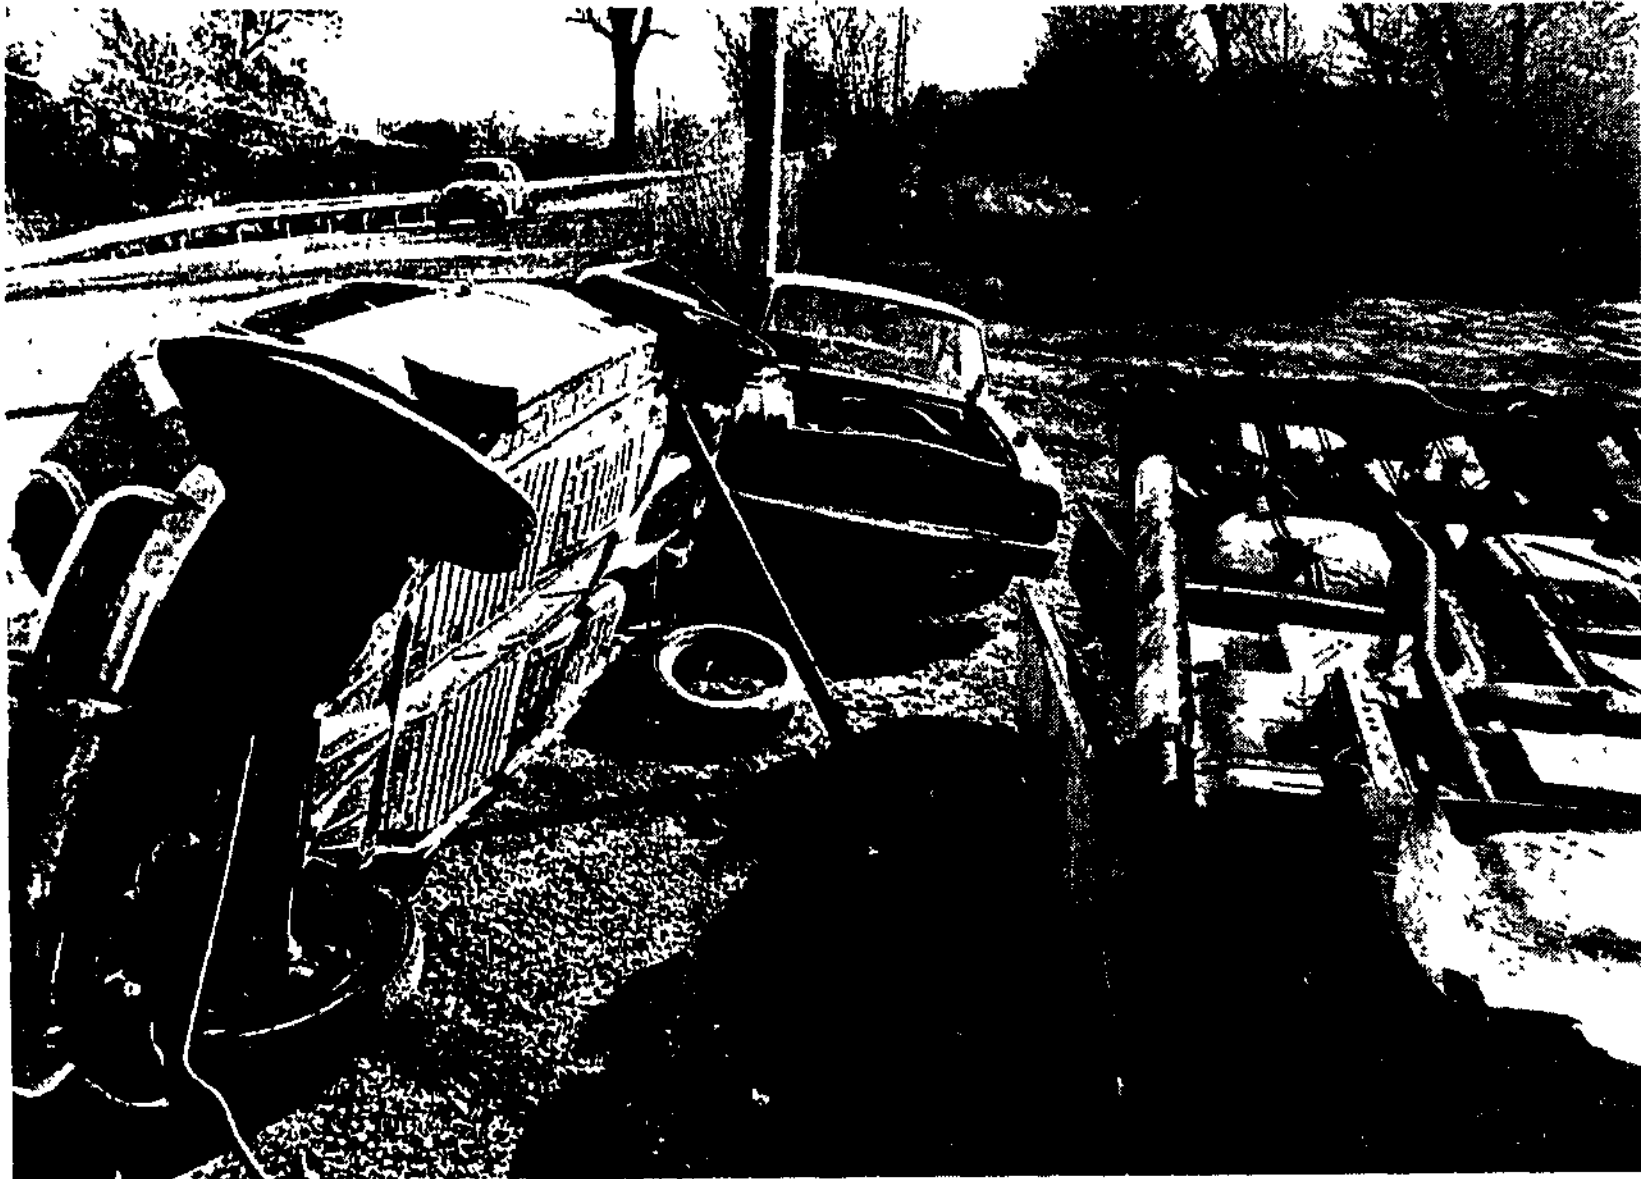

The panel blamed the national drug epidemic in part on overproduction of pills by major pharmaceutical companies across the country. Sievers, who is a member of the Sheriff's Youth Services Dept., said only about 7 million of the 70 million pills produced by companies reach the legitimate market.

He said it is difficult to monitor pill production because most pills that are not marketed are declared spoiled, and may later be stolen by employees or others who can market the pills on the street.

JAHN SAID THE drug scene has changed today from 8 years ago when pure drugs were sold to the sale now of adulterated stock and pharmaceutical drugs. He added the biggest influencing factor in drug use is peer pressure.

The panel, while discouraging youths from getting involved in drug use, at the same time criticized the media for what they called inaccurate reporting of medical findings on the effects of marijuana.

Sievers said recent reports that marijuana use could cause brain damage were taken out of context in a medical report studying the effects on users. He said the media "prints what makes good copy" in reporting the drug problem.

NOW YOU SEE them . . . soon you won't. Schaumburg Police Chief Martin J. Conroy said Wednesday junk cars visible this week on the south side of Schaumburg Road, west of Meacham Road, will be removed. The cars were moved from the back to the front of the Herman Redeker property as part of an effort to clean the land. Reserve Officer Fred Schoeller has notified Redeker he is in violation of a village ordinance forbidding abandoned vehicles on road sides beyond 96 hours. Redeker has assured officials the junks will be removed.

Referendum tentatively set Nov. 2

Voters to consider free textbooks

by KATHERINE BOYCE
Parents may pay more for textbooks in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 if voters reject a referendum for free textbooks next month.

Dist. 54 has tentatively scheduled a referendum Nov. 2 calling for the elimination of textbook fees. The referendum asks voters to allow the district to pay for the books out of its own budget with tax money instead of passing the cost on to parents.

But the cost of textbooks has increased in the last few years and parents may find themselves shelling out several dollars more for books if the referendum is defeated.

has not increased its book rental fee for several years but has been making up the difference in cost out of its own funds. The board probably will have to raise the book fees if the referendum doesn't pass, Mrs. Czajkowski said. "We won't have much choice."

Last year Dist. 54 spent $168,822 on books and collected $112,796 in fees, Associate Supt. Milton Derr said. In 1971, Dist. 54 had a slight surplus of fees, Derr said, but since then has had a deficit. During the last four years the district collected $404,300 and spent $531,280 on books. Dist. 54 is in effect subsidizing about 24 per cent of the cost of books, he said.

Derr said it is difficult to pass along the costs to the penny because textbook prices vary from year to year. "I don't think there is any school district to my knowledge that passes on the actual cost," he said. "They could get close, but they couldn't be exact."

Books are currently rented to parents in Dist. 54 at a cost of $3.50 per year for kindergarten and $7.50 for students in first through eighth grades. School officials figure the average life of a book at five years and divide the cost of the book by five to come up with the rental price. Workbooks, however, are purchased new each year, and they have "increased tremendously in price," Derr said.

STUDENT ENROLLMENT in Dist. 54 increases by 800 to 900 students per year so each time lost on books is multiplied by the number of students each year. Most schools, including Dist. 54, have been using more individualized instruction in the classroom, said Derr, requiring more books and instructional materials.

Derr said the Dist. 54 assistant superintendent for finance has asked board members if they would consider raising book fees to gain revenue for the textbook account. Instead the board decided to eliminate textbook fees and let the district pick up the cost. Dist. 54 is required by law to hold the referendum to get the go-ahead for free books.

No book fees were charged to parents this year pending the outcome of the referendum. This year's budget includes district payment of all textbook costs and it still has a surplus of $818,268, Derr said.

Derr said a five-year projection of district finances shows a surplus each year due to increased assessed valuation in Schaumburg Township. The district lowered its tax rate this year because the revenue from assessed valuation increased.

MRS. CZAJKOWSKI said the district will not have to raise the tax rate to pick up the tab because it has a surplus in its budget which can be used for books.

Derr said the district can afford to pay for books without raising taxes and he has heard little opposition to free textbooks. He said he heard one parent whose child attends a parochial school say she is opposed to paying taxes for free books in public schools. If there is any opposition to the referendum Derr said it probably would come from these parents.

Delays slow transfer of fire services to Hoffman Estates

Transfer of services from the Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District to the village will not be completed until mid-November.

The transfer, which was expected to take place this month, is being delayed because certain areas of the village located within other fire districts have not yet consented to the move. Their approval is necessary for the creation of a municipal fire department to serve the entire village.

Attorney George Knickerbocker, an associate of Village Atty. Edward Hofert, who is handling the transfer, said Wednesday some of the land is owned by other governing bodies, including the county and the Mosquito Abatement District, whose authorization for the transfer has yet to be obtained.

"There have been problems with some of the adjacent areas," he said. Some parcels also are owned in land trusts and therefore the signatures of more than one person are required, he said.

BEFORE THE MOVE can be made, certain other legal steps also will have to be followed, including filing a petition for the move, setting a hearing date on the matter in Circuit Court and advanced publication of the hearing, he said.

Knickerbocker said the necessary petition is being prepared and will be filed within several weeks. Action on the petition must then take place within two to four weeks, he said.

Village ordinances also must be passed before the hearing, Knickerbocker said, to create a municipal fire department and fire department pension board and to authorize the village to assume the fire district's bonded indebtedness.

The fire district annexation was agreed to by the village in part to attempt to eliminate a growing deficit in the district's budget. The district's taxing power is limited by law, but expenses, especially salaries, have continued to increase.

AN AUDIT OF THE fire district's records is under way. Estimates by district and village trustees have placed the deficit at $240,000, a figure that some have said could double by fiscal 1975.

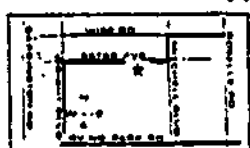

To offset the deficit, the village will impose a 5 per cent utility tax from Jan. 1 to Dec. 31, 1976 on gas, electric and telephone bills. The tax, which is expected to cost average homeowners $20 to $50 yearly, is anticipated to raise $300,000 to $400,000 per year.

The village also has authorized construction of a fourth fire station at Freeman Boulevard and Mumford Drive near the planned 497-acre Westbury residential development. The station is expected to be completed in the spring.

Drug counts against two youths dropped

Drug charges against two Franklin Park youths were dismissed Wednesday in the Schaumburg branch of Circuit Court because laboratory tests on marijuana seized as evidence had not been completed.

Possession of marijuana charges against James Drennan, 10, and Joseph Mancuso, 17, were stricken from the court docket by Associate Judge Francis Glowacki. The state's attorney's office may reinstate the charges within 30 days.

The two were arrested July 30 along with a group of juveniles during a traffic stop near Ill. Rtes. 53 and 62, police said. Wednesday marked the youths' fourth appearance in court. Results on testing of the substances seized after the arrests had not returned to the police department from the laboratory in Joliet.

THE REAR OF THE O'Neill home, 1432 Lake Louise Dr., Palatine, was gutted by flames and smoke early Wednesday. The fire began in the recreation room on the first floor of the bi-level home. Fire officials do not know the origin of the fire that took the life of the family's only daughter, Kathleen, 7.

7-year-old killed in early-morning blaze

by DIANE MERMIGAS

It was nearly 3 a.m. when two Palatine policemen broke down the door at 1432 Lake Louise Dr. and tried to save the lives of the six members of Bernard O'Neill's family. They rescued five persons but couldn't rescue 7-year-old Kathleen O'Neill.

"The little girl's brothers were in shock and there were flames and smoke pouring out of the back of the house," said Palatine Police Sgt. Ralph Winkelhake.

Winkelhake was one of the first to arrive at the fire-ravaged house early Wednesday.

ANOTHER POLICEMAN JACK McGregor, and Winkelhake responded to the fire call at 3 a.m., broke down the front door of the house and rescued the parents who were unconscious and lying by the front door. Bernard O'Neill, 42, and his wife, Joann, 41, are in serious condition at Northwest Community Hospital. They are suffering from smoke inhalation and burns.

McGregor helped rescue three brothers from the roof of the house before firemen arrived. Michael O'Neill, 17, had jumped from the roof to get a ladder from the garage.

Michael was helping his brother, Bernard Jr., 14, down the ladder from the roof when McGregor arrived at the scene. The officer suffered smoke inhalation but was not seriously hurt when he climbed the ladder to the roof and brought another brother, Thomas, 4, down to safety, Winkelhake said.

Kathleen was found later by firemen in the hallway outside her second-floor bedroom. Fire officials said she died of smoke inhalation.

"THE SITUATION was really bad because the smoke was so thick. Officer McGregor and I did all we could for the five family members until the fire department arrived," said Winkelhake.

Palatine fire officials said that the fire originated in the first floor recreation room in the back of the rustic bi-level home. They have not determined the cause of the fire.

"I just can't believe that something like this happened to a family who is as nice as the O'Neills," one neighbor said as she stood with other neighbors looking at the O'Neill house.

"They are such a close-knit family and very active in the St. Thomas of Villanova Church and the PTA in Palatine," she said.

NEIGHBORS WERE aroused from their sleep by the sounds of 17 Palatine firemen fighting the blaze. A close friend of the family's that lived across the street accompanied the three O'Neill boys to the hospital.

"All three boys were confused and frightened. The poor kids didn't know what to think or say, and all of us were just trying to do everything we could to help them," he said.

Neighbors supplied clothes for the boys; Tom, 4, Bernie, 14 and Michael, 17, to wear after leaving the hospital. An older son, Patrick, who is a freshman at St. Norbert College in Wisconsin, was not home at the time of the blaze.

THE O'NEILLS, long-time residents of Palatine, lived in the house on Lake Louise Drive for five years. Kathleen O'Neill had been a student at the Lake Louise Elementary School, located directly behind their home, for the past two years. Her second-grade teacher, Rena Marcotte, said she was a "freckle-faced tomboy" who was always "smiling and friendly with everyone."

A fund to aid the family has been established at the First Bank and Trust Co. of Palatine, 35 N. Broadway. Contributions may be made payable to "O'Neill Fire Fund" and brought to the attention of Carol Halpaus at the bank.

Katherine Portera, whose husband works with Mrs. O'Neill, said the fund was established as a means of helping the O'Neill family when personal help is difficult to give.

Chicago-suburb bus service may come to a halt

Bus service between the Northwest suburbs and downtown Chicago is in jeopardy of being discontinued.

The North Suburban Mass Transit District (NORTAN) has petitioned communities served by United Motor Coach Co. to contribute money to help offset the bus company's operating deficits.

"Without such funding we will have no choice but to eliminate those routes serving your area," said Joseph DiJohn, executive director of NORTAN in a Sept. 27 letter to area officials.

UNITED MOTOR Coach makes two bus trips daily along Northwest Highway from Barrington to Des Plaines, with stops in Palatine, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Des Plaines. From Des Plaines, riders can transfer to a number of other routes, including one to downtown Chicago.

Two municipalities already have turned down the plea for financial assistance. The Elk Grove Village Board said No to a $13,279 request, and this week Mount Prospect rejected a request for $1,997.

Requests are still pending before Palatine, Arlington Heights, Des Plaines and Wheeling. NORTAN has asked for the following amounts: Palatine $1,274, Arlington Heights $1,484, Des Plaines $52,000, and Wheeling $1,630.

The subsidy requests were determined by the number of miles that the bus company services in each community.

MOUNT PROSPECT's refusal to grant funds could end the twice daily bus service along Northwest Highway from Barrington to Des Plaines, including service in Palatine and Arlington Heights.

NORTAN's application for funds from the Regional Transportation Authority has been held up because of RTA's inability to choose a chairman. "We're caught in the middle of that whole political squabble," DiJohn said, referring to the controversy over the nomination of Milton Pikarsky to head the RTA.

Palatine officials plan to ask NORTAN to make a formal presentation to the village board before acting on the subsidy request. The trustees are concerned about the number of Palatine residents using the bus service, number of bus runs, fares, the time and place the bus service is available, in addition to the company's financial condition.

Questions were raised about the necessity of a bus line paralleling the Chicago and North Western Ry. line by both Palatine officials and Arlington Heights Assistant Village Mgr. Darryl Kenning.

Wheeling officials are considering NORTAN's request and are expected to act on it by Nov. 1.

Hazel Steinke, 100 Deborah Ln., Wheeling, this week told the village board that a group of senior citizens are disturbed over the possibility of the bus service being ended.

"If the bus service is discontinued they (senior citizens) won't be able to get anywhere without a cab and cabs are costly," she said. "We would like to see the buses remain and be increased if possible."

Mrs. Steinke suggested the village board negotiate with NORTAN for more buses and better service before making a decision on the subsidy.

"We need not only a complete, but a dependable bus service," she said. "We hope the village fathers will do something to help the poor people who have to walk."

Village board wrapup

Police dispatch system approved

A plan joining the Buffalo Grove Police Dept. with three other departments in a central dispatch system was approved Monday by the village board.

Buffalo Grove police will share a radio frequency with police from Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Elk Grove Village. The three other departments already are using the cooperative system.

Police Chief Harry Walsh says the Buffalo Grove end of the system should be operational by next month. The plan will make police communications among the three towns more efficient, Walsh said.

New gambling law planned

The board has decided to defer repealing the village gambling ordinance until another code can be drawn up prohibiting game machine "arcades."

Trustee Thomas Mahoney Tuesday said the village wants to repeal the nine-year old ordinance but is seeking to prohibit the establishment of game machine areas in village businesses.

Even though the ordinance is removed, officials say the village will still be protected by overlapping state statutes governing gambling.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said the old law is out of step with state codes on game machines, bingo and lottery ticket sales.

2 cops get commendations

Special commendations were given to two Buffalo Grove policemen, Sgt. Ronald Gozdecki and Patrolman Charles Weidner by the village board.

Weidner was cited for nearly 30 hours of off-duty work aiding in the capture of three men charged with the burglary of a Buffalo Grove home in which eight weapons were stolen.

The board commended Gozdecki for capturing a fleeing suspect wanted for the armed holdup of an Arlington Heights grocery store Sept. 18.

Property rezoning approved

The board approved an ordinance calling for rezoning a piece of property in the village from R-1 residential to the B-1 limited retail business district.

The change will allow for a building on the property, Arlington Heights Road and Ill. Rte. 63 to be used as a real state office.

Body identified as missing youth from Schaumburg

by JOE SWICKARD

Sheriff's investigators have identified a body discovered two weeks ago in Deer Grove Forest Preserve as a Schaumburg youth missing for 17 months.

Investigator William Bufford said the remains were those of David Shotsberger, 19, of 527 S. Plymouth, Schaumburg. Shotsberger was reported missing by his parents May 10, 1973, Bufford said.

Shotsberger was identified through dental charts. The cause of the young man's death is listed as unknown, Bufford said. There were no signs of foul play, according to reports.

The badly decomposed body was discovered Oct. 4, by hikers in Grove No. 1 of the large forest preserve near Palatine. The remains were found lying in a dry creek bed about 100 yards from the path where the hikers came across part of the skeleton, Bufford said.

Bufford said they believed the remains were Shotsberger, but were only able to identify them positively Wednesday.

SHOTSBERGER WAS A passenger in a car involved in a crash near the site where the body was discovered. Witnesses to the May 1973 accident said Shotsberger got out of the car in a dazed condition and staggered into the darkened woods.

Despite searches of the area after the youth was reported missing, no trace of him was unearthed until the hikers made their discovery two weeks ago.

Bufford said until recently the bed was covered by a flowing stream.

Identification of the remains were hampered by the advanced state of decomposition. Clothing and other things which might have helped with identification had deteriorated to a condition unusable for testing, officials said.

Bufford said the family "took it hard" after comparison of dental charts and the remains provided conclusive identification.

The Oct. 31 performance will begin at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 1 and 2 performances will begin at 8 p.m.

THE REAR OF THE O'Neill home, 1432 Lake Louise Dr., Palatine, was gutted by flames and smoke early Wednesday. The fire began in the recreation room on the first floor of the bi-level home. Fire officials do not know the origin of the fire that took the life of the family's only daughter, Kathleen, 7.

Gould speeds up construction of office center

Gould Inc. has revised its construction schedule for its Rolling Meadows office-sports center on Golf Road at the Northwest Tollway.

But the revision does not indicate any change in plans for a sports facility in the complex, said Forster A. Massnick, vice president of corporate communications.

Massnick said Wednesday that Gould accelerated its construction schedule for its management development facility, a two-story, 60,000-square-foot building Massnick described as a miniature college.

Original plans indicated the management facility would be built in the third construction phase, after the sports complex that is to be part of the $30 million international corporate headquarters.

Construction has begun on the management facility, but work has not started on the sports complex, which will have tennis, squash and handball courts, swimming pools and an ice rink in a semipublic club arrangement.

Also under construction is the 10-story tower in the center. Structural work is complete, and occupancy is slated to begin in about a year, Massnick said. The sports center still is planned for completion at the same time, he said.

"We have every intention of building" the sports center, Massnick said, adding

"what we did was to accelerate the building of the management development center."

The decision was not prompted by general economic factors, but stems from Gould's own needs, Massnick said. The management center will provide classrooms, audiovisual facilities and sleeping quarters for management trainees who live out of town but are attending courses at the center.

IS THIS THE Cheryl Fischer party? Dropping in as an early birthday present for Cheryl, who'll be 16 later this month, is her brother, Michael, 20. The jump Wednesday was above St. Alphonsus School, Prospect Heights.

Birthday gift a flighty affair for chutist

Michael Fischer, 20, of Prospect Heights jumped 3,000 feet Wednesday to bring his younger sister a birthday present.

Fischer, a skydiving enthusiast, and a friend jumped from a single-engine airplane at 5:30 p.m. and landed in a field south of St. Alphonsus School, 411 N. Wheeling Rd., Prospect Heights. The jump was an early birthday gift for his sister, Cheryl, who will be 16 Oct. 28.

"Cheryl and my parents really never saw me jump before," Fischer said, explaining his unusual gift. And Cheryl's reaction was that "it was neat but I was scared to death."

Fischer's mother shared a bit of anxiety. "It was frightening until his chute opened up," she said, admitting having had a few fleeting thoughts the parachute would not open.

The jump went smoothly, Fischer said. It was his 280th jump and he has yet to be injured. "There are very few injuries in this sport," he explained.

IN ADDITION TO family members, about 35 neighbors and friends watched Fischer and his companion, Norm Prien of Park Ridge, descend toward their aluminum foil marker.

The pair jumped on the fourth pass, having dropped a wind indicator on the second pass. They rode in a friend's airplane and took off from the Chicagoand Airport on Milwaukee Avenue.

Fischer landed nearest the onlookers and was greeted with a bottle of wine, while Prien was quickly surrounded by a group of football players who were practicing nearby.

Fischer, who lives at 208 E. McDonald Rd., has been skydiving for three years and is a member of the Northern Illinois Sky Divers Club. As of Jan. 1 he will be the new owner of the club, which is based in Hebron, Ill.

The costs of owning the club will be small, he said, because the $20 annual dues and the $4 jump fees are used to cover expenses. "It's not a business, it's just a club," he said.

Resident charged in theft of cop's uniform, star

A Rolling Meadows man was arrested by Arlington Heights police this week for the theft of a policeman's uniform and star.

According to reports, Patrolman Robert A. Gerth's uniform, hat, star and flashlight were stolen from his car at a restaurant last month.

On Oct. 8, the star was discovered in the glove compartment of a burglary suspect arrested by Buffalo Grove police. The suspect, Michael McGrath, 18, of Arlington Heights, told police he had received the star from friends. After further investigation, Arlington Heights police obtained an arrest warrant for Roger Curtis, 18, of 1436 S. Hicks Rd., Rolling Meadows, for the theft of the uniform.

Curtis surrendered to police Tuesday and was released on $1,000 bond pending an Oct. 25 appearance in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court.

McGrath was charged with possession of stolen property. Freed on $1,000 bond, he also has an Oct. 25 court date.

Ecology group to honor efforts of firms, citizens

The Rolling Meadows recycling, ecology and beautification committee will award certificates of recognition to local businesses and individuals who make continual efforts to improve the appearance of the city.

Martha Atherton, a committee member, said the certificates are being printed and nominations will be taken at the November committee meeting. She said the committee will be looking for businesses or citizens who consistently try to beautify their surroundings with upkeep, landscaping and decorating.

The recognition certificates are an outgrowth of the committee's tour of the city Aug. 29. After comparing well-kept property with some of the city's less attractive spots, the committee felt conscientious property owners should be commended. The committee also wrote letters of complaint to property owners with poorly kept grounds.

Mrs. Atherton said nominations from residents are welcome. She added that recognition certificates will be awarded on a continual basis after the first awards are announced in December.

Open house planned at police department

The Rolling Meadows Police Dept. will open its doors next week for tours by community residents as part of National Law Enforcement Week.

Several groups, totaling an estimated 250 persons, already have arranged for tours of department facilities at 3600 Kirsch Rd. Others may do so by calling Police Chief Lewis R. Case at City Hall, 304-8300. Individual visitors may drop in at the police station any time during open house hours, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday through Saturday.

Those who do visit will be treated to demonstrations of such police procedures as fingerprinting and breathalyzer tests. Police also will be demonstrating use of firearms in the pistol range for scheduled groups.

Visitors will tour the police station, including the cell area, said Case. The department also has prepared a film intended to show that police officers are like any other suburban residents during their off-duty hours, said Case.

7-year-old overcome by smoke

No cause cited in fire that took girl's life

Kathleen O'Neill

by DIANE NERMIGAS

It was nearly 3 a.m. when two Palatine policemen broke down the door at 1432 Lake Louise Dr. and tried to save the lives of the six members of Bernard O'Neill's family. They rescued five persons but couldn't rescue 7-year-old Kathleen O'Neill.

"The little girl's brothers were in shock and there were flames and smoke pouring out of the back of the house," said Palatine Police Sgt. Ralph Winkelhake.

Winkelhake was one of the first to arrive at the fire-ravaged house early Wednesday.

ANOTHER POLICEMAN JACK McGregor, and Winkelhake responded to the fire call at 3 a.m., broke down the front door of the house and rescued the parents who were unconscious and lying by the front door. Bernard O'Neill, 42, and his wife, Joann, 41, are in serious condition at Northwest Community Hospital. They are suffering from smoke inhalation and burns.

McGregor helped rescue three brothers from the roof of the house before firemen arrived. Michael O'Neill, 17, had jumped from the roof to get a ladder from the garage.

Michael was helping his brother, Bernard Jr., 14 down the ladder from the roof when McGregor arrived at the scene. The officer suffered smoke inhalation but was not seriously hurt when he climbed the ladder to the roof and brought another brother, Thomas, 4 down to safety, Winkelhake said.

Kathleen was found later by firemen in the hallway outside her second-floor bedroom. Fire officials said she died of smoke inhalation.

"THE SITUATION was really bad because the smoke was so thick. Officer McGregor and I did all we could for the five family members until the fire department arrived," said Winkelhake.

Palatine fire officials said that the fire originated in the first floor recreation room in the back of the rustic bi-level home. They have not determined the cause of the fire.

"I just can't believe that something like this happened to a family who is as nice as the O'Neills," one neighbor said as she stood with other neighbors looking at the O'Neill house.

"They are such a close-knit family and very active in the St. Thomas of Villanova Church and the PTA in Palatine," she said.

NEIGHBORS WERE aroused from their sleep by the sounds of 17 Palatine firemen fighting the blaze. A close friend of the family's that lived across the street accompanied the three O'Neill boys to the hospital.

"All three boys were confused and frightened. The poor kids didn't know what to think or say, and all of us were just trying to do everything we could to help them," he said.

Neighbors supplied clothes for the boys; Tom, 4, Bernie, 14 and Michael, 17, to wear after leaving the hospital. An older son, Patrick, who is a freshman at St. Norbert College in Wisconsin, was not home at the time of the blaze.

THE O'NEILLS, long-time residents of Palatine, lived in the house on Lake Louise Drive for five years. Kathleen O'Neill had been a student at the Lake Louise Elementary School, located directly behind their home, for the past two years. Her second-grade teacher, Rena Marcotte, said she was a "freckle-faced tomboy" who was always "smiling and friendly with everyone."

A fund to aid the family has been established at the First Bank and Trust Co. of Palatine, 35 N. Brockway. Contributions may be made payable to "O'Neill Fire Fund" and brought to the attention of Carol Halpaus at the bank.

Katherine Portera, whose husband works with Mrs. O'Neill, said the fund was established as a means of helping the O'Neill family when personal help is difficult to give.

Body identified as missing youth from Schaumburg

by JOE SWICKARD

Sheriff's investigators have identified a body discovered two weeks ago in Deer Grove Forest Preserve as a Schaumburg youth missing for 17 months.

Investigator William Bufford said the remains were those of David Shotsberger, 19, of 327 S. Plymouth, Schaumburg. Shotsberger was reported missing by his parents May 18, 1973, Bufford said.

Shotsberger was identified through dental charts. The cause of the young man's death is listed as unknown, Bufford said. There were no signs of foul play, according to reports.

The badly decomposed body was discovered Oct. 4, by hikers in Grove No. 1 of the large forest preserve near Palatine. The remains were found lying in a dry creek bed about 100 yards from the path where the hikers came across part of the skeleton, Bufford said.

Bufford said they believed the remains were Shotsberger, but were only able to identify them positively Wednesday.

SHOTSBERGER WAS a passenger in a car involved in a crash near the site where the body was discovered. Witnesses to the May 1973 accident said Shotsberger got out of the car in a dazed condition and staggered into the darkened woods.

Despite searches of the area after the youth was reported missing, no trace of him was unearthed until the hikers made their discovery two weeks ago.

Bufford said until recently the bed was covered by a flowing stream.

Identification of the remains were hampered by the advanced state of decomposition. Clothing and other things which might have helped with identification had deteriorated to a condition unusable for testing, officials said.

Bufford said the family "took it hard" after comparison of dental charts and the remains provided conclusive identification.

"They took it hard, especially the mother and the grandmother. They kept hoping he would turn up some day," he said.

Burglars ransack home in Inverness

A woman's fur coat and an undetermined amount of jewelry and cash were stolen from an Inverness home late Tuesday.

John Bordelle, 1745 Pheasant Tr., told Palatine police he and his wife found their home ransacked when they returned from a dinner engagement that night.

Entry was gained through the service door of the garage which was pryed open with an unknown tool, according to the police report.

THE REAR OF THE O'Neill home, 1432 Lake Louise Dr., Palatine, was gutted by flames and smoke early Wednesday. The fire began in the recreation room on the first floor of the bi-level home. Fire officials do not know the origin of the fire that took the life of the family's only daughter, Kathleen, 7.

Chicago-suburb bus service reported in jeopardy

Bus service between the Northwest suburbs and downtown Chicago is in jeopardy of being discontinued.

The North Suburban Mass Transit District (NORTRAN) has petitioned communities served by United Motor Coach Co. to contribute money to help offset the bus company's operating deficits.

"Without such funding we will have no choice but to eliminate those routes serving your area," said Joseph DiJohn, executive director of NORTRAN in a Sept. 27 letter to area officials.

UNITED MOTOR Coach makes two bus trips daily along Northwest Highway from Barrington to Des Plaines, with stops in Palatine, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Des Plaines. From Des Plaines, riders can transfer to a number of other routes, including one to downtown Chicago.

Two municipalities already have turned down the plea for financial assistance. The Elk Grove Village Board said No to a $13,279 request, and this week Mount Prospect rejected a request for

Requests are still pending before Palatine, Arlington Heights, Des Plaines and Wheeling. NORTRAN has asked for the following amounts: Palatine $1,274, Arlington Heights $1,484, Des Plaines $52,000, and Wheeling $1,630.

The subsidy requests were determined by the number of miles that the bus company services in each community.

MOUNT PROSPECT'S refusal to grant funds could end the twice daily bus service along Northwest Highway from Barrington to Des Plaines, including service in Palatine and Arlington Heights.

NORTRAN's application for funds from the Regional Transportation Authority has been held up because of RTA's inability to choose a chairman.

"We're caught in the middle of that whole political squabble," DiJohn said, referring to the controversy over the nomination of Milton Pikarsky to head the RTA.

Winston Knolls commuters rap higher parking fees

by TONI GINETTI

Some residents of the Winston Knolls subdivision of Hoffman Estates don't think it's fair that they have to pay a higher rate than Palatine residents to park in Palatine commuter lots.

Letters from the homeowners' association to the village objecting to a parking increase approved this summer have not changed the minds of Palatine officials.

So, now the association has called on its estimated 2,500 members to boycott Palatine shops and make their purchases in Hoffman Estates instead.

AND THAT CALL, which some residents say is a good idea, is not being met happily by Palatine merchants.

"You better believe I'll be affected," Steven Sherwin, manager of the Radio Shack shop in the Palatine Transportation Center plaza, said of the proposal. "I have a lot of customers from Hoffman Estates."

"If that is the reaction, then certainly as a merchants group we are sorry to hear that," said Michael Morman of the Downtown Merchants Assn.

The proposed protest stems from the Palatine Village Board's decision to raise the monthly parking cost for non-resident commuters near the Chicago and North Western station from $10 to $11. At the same time the residential rate was reduced by $1 from $8 to $7 monthly.

THE DIFFERENT RATES were put into effect in 1972. Before that, rates were the same for residents and non-residents.

"Quite a few people (from the subdivision) park there," said Tom McGuire, association president. He said the shopping boycott was proposed in this month's newsletter after residents brought the matter to the attention of the association.

McGuire sent a letter to Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones last month, saying since the village derived sales tax from Winston Knolls residents who shop in Palatine they should be entitled to the lower rate.

McGuire said a letter from Village Mgr. Anton Harwig said the rate was justified because the village bears the expense of providing the lots.

HARWIG SAID THE different rates are "the most just and equitable approach to the problem of one community furnishing parking facilities for users other than residents."

McGuire said he thinks "people should consider" the boycott and some residents Wednesday agreed.

"I think it's a good idea," said Mrs. Kostas Kapsimalis, 207 Winston Dr. She said she already does most of her shopping in Hoffman Estates.

"It probably would be an effective measure," said Robin Nelson, 410 Mason Dr. She said most of the family shopping is now done in Hoffman Estates.

The Schweitzer family, 102 Park St., also shops in Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg, but LuAnn Schweitzer said "it might help if a lot of people follow the boycott."

ANOTHER RESIDENT, Mrs. R. W. Nellis, 108 E. Freeman Rd., said she did not think the move would work because residents will shop where it is convenient. "I do 95 per cent of my shopping in Palatine because it's closer."

If a reduction in Palatine shopping takes place, "it would serve the merchants right," Radio Shack manager Sherwin said. He said merchants have raised the parking matter before with the village because of fear of losing business, but got nowhere.

Morman added he would "certainly take it up" with Jones if the boycott becomes effective.

2 area youngsters win P, P & K zone

Two winners in the recent Ford Punt, Pass and Kick competition at Pioneer Park went on to win Chicago zone competitions Saturday in Chicago's Portage Park.

Robert Fish, 9, of 530 Exner Ct., Palatine, and Jeff Liljeberg, 11, of 1319 N. Walnut, Arlington Heights, will advance to the district competition this Saturday at Chicago's Grant Park. Should either one of them win there, they will represent the Chicago Bears in regional competition in November.

Punt, Pass and Kick is an annual competition for boys 8 years old through 13 years old sponsored by the Ford automobile dealers. The competition ends with finalists appearing at the National Football League's playoff game, Dec. 29.

MAN AND BOY. Robert Pries, 64, played "grandpa" to fourth-graders from Addams School in Palatine when they took a field trip on a sunny day to Crabtree Nature Center. Pries, who lives in Greenacres, Vill., took a day off to make the trip. Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 is seeking more chaperone volunteers for field trips.

Suburb bus service

TRAN to make a formal presentation to the village board before acting on the subsidy request. The trustees are concerned about the number of Palatine residents using the bus service, number of bus runs, fares, the time and place the bus service is available, in addition to the company's financial condition.

Questions were raised about the necessity of a bus line paralleling the Chicago and North Western Ry. line by both Palatine officials and Arlington Heights Assistant Village Mgr. Darryl Kenning.

Wheeling officials are considering NORTTRAN's request and are expected to act on it by Nov. 1.

Hazel Steinko, 100 Deborah Ln., Wheeling, this week told the village board that a group of senior citizens are disturbed over the possibility of the bus service being ended.

"If the bus service is discontinued they (senior citizens) won't be able to get anywhere without a cab and cabs are costly," she said. "We would like to see the buses remain and be increased if possible."

Mrs. Steinko suggested the village board negotiate with NORTTRAN for more buses and better service before making a decision on the subsidy.

Location of library 'up in air'

by LYNN ASINOF

The location of the new Mount Prospect public library now is up in the air, but Mayor Robert D. Teichert said this will not affect either the purchase of the Central School site or the issuance of bonds to finance library construction.

Teichert said he expects plans to proceed despite a Tuesday night recommendation from a consulting firm that the library be located at the northeast corner of Emerson Street and Busse Avenue. The board had previously agreed to purchase the Central School property at Central Road and Main Street for the new library.

The consulting firm, Barton-Aschman Associates, Chicago, said the library would be closer to other municipal facilities if located at Emerson and Busse, across from the present library.

ALTHOUGH BOARD members Wednesday expressed varying opinions on the location of the new library, most said they could set the size of the bond issue at a special meeting Tuesday night even if the location is undecided. The size must be established at that meeting if the bonds are to be issued this year, according to Trustee Kenneth Scholten.

Teichert said the village can authorize a bond issue large enough to cover contingencies, including the acquisition of additional land for a new library site if needed. He said he was not concerned about the specific location of the library since the two sites are in the same general area.

Several board members said the village also was committed to the purchase of the Central School site even if the library is built elsewhere. If the village fails to purchase the property by Dec. 26 for $675,000, it will pay a $3,000 penalty fee, according to an agreement with the owner.

"I DON'T THINK we would not go through with the purchase," Trustee E. F. Richardson said. "We've gone that far and we are not going back on it. The question would be the purchase of the other property at Emerson and Busse and the use of it."

Teichert and Scholten said they also were committed to the purchase, and Scholten said the property could be used for senior-citizen housing if the library is built elsewhere.

Scholten and Trustee George Anderson, however, said they both favor the Central School site for the new library. They said that while they would consider other locations if recommended by the two downtown consulting firms, alternative sites might require lengthy condemnation proceedings. This, they said, would delay construction at a time when construction costs are skyrocketing.

Other trustees, including O. T. Gustus, said they could be influenced by the recommendations of the consulting firms developing plans for the downtown area. Barton-Aschman is developing traffic studies, while Property Consultants Inc., Northfield, is developing market studies.

Construction time change unacceptable

Any change in the site of Mount Prospect's new public library that would disrupt the existing construction timetable would be unacceptable to the library board of directors.

Board President John Parsons Wednesday set three conditions that must be met before he or the library board would consider a change in the library's location from the Central School property, Central Road and Main Street, for which months of planning have already been completed.

He said a new site, such as the northeast corner of Busse Avenue and Emerson Street as proposed Tuesday by Barton-Aschman Associates, would be acceptable "as long as they have 114,000 square feet on which to build a library, the site fits the standards and the site is available on time."

Designs for the library building are nearing the final stage and bids are to be sought in January.

"We want to hit the 1975 building season," Parsons said. "Those standards necessary to make a good library will be met."

"The very best site location we have to date is the Central School site. It fits all the standards as close as you can. We meet 10 of the 20 standards there."

In addition to the time that may be needed for land acquisition at the proposed site, Parsons said time would be needed for testing, such as soil borings to determine even if it is a workable site for a library facility which may be expanded upward at a later date.

IS THIS THE Cheryl Fischer party? Dropping in as an early birthday present for Cheryl, who'll be 16 later this month, is her brother, Michael, 20. The jump Wednesday was above St. Alphonsus School, Prospect Heights.

Birthday gift a flighty affair for chutist

Michael Fischer, 20, of Prospect Heights jumped 3,000 feet Wednesday to bring his younger sister a birthday present.

Fischer, a skydiving enthusiast, and a friend jumped from a single-engine airplane at 5:30 p.m. and landed in a field south of St. Alphonsus School, 411 N. Wheeling Rd., Prospect Heights. The jump was an early birthday gift for his sister, Cheryl, who will be 16 Oct. 22.

"Cheryl and my parents really never saw me jump before," Fischer said, explaining his unusual gift. And Cheryl's reaction was that "it was neat but I was scared to death."

Fischer's mother shared a bit of anxiety. "It was frightening until his chute opened up," she said, admitting having had a few fleeting thoughts the parachute would not open.

The jump went smoothly, Fischer said. It was his 260th jump and he has yet to be injured. "There are very few injuries in this sport," he explained.

IN ADDITION TO family members, about 35 neighbors and friends watched Fischer and his companion, Norm Prien of Park Ridge, descend toward their aluminum foil marker.

The pair jumped on the fourth pass, having dropped a wind indicator on the second pass. They rode in a friend's airplane and took off from the Chicagoland Airport on Milwaukee Avenue.

Fischer landed nearest the onlookers and was greeted with a bottle of wine, while Prien was quickly surrounded by a group of football players who were practicing nearby.

Fischer, who lives at 208 E. McDonald Rd., has been skydiving for three years and is a member of the Northern Illinois Sky Divers Club. As of Jan. 1 he will be the new owner of the club, which is based in Hebron, Ill.

The costs of owning the club will be small, he said, because the $20 annual dues and the $4 jump fees are used to cover expenses. "It's not a business, it's just a club," he said.

Village board wrapup

Renewal study group delayed

The establishment of a permanent downtown development commission has been delayed until after the Mount Prospect Village Board reviews a progress report from two consulting firms studying the downtown area.

Trustee E. F. Richardson, chairman of the judiciary committee, said the matter will stay in his committee until after Saturday's quarterly breakfast meeting. At that meeting, the two consulting firms are scheduled to report on their progress.

Richardson said his committee needs more information on the direction of downtown redevelopment before drafting an ordinance to create the permanent commission. The commission would replace the ad hoc downtown planning committee, an arm of the village's planning commission.

The ad hoc group has been pushing for the establishment of a permanent downtown commission, saying the matter should be studied in depth by a group created for that purpose.

Library bonds step taken

The village board took the first step toward issuing bonds for construction of a new public library by passing an ordinance that sets forth the procedure for issuing bonds under its home-rule powers.

The ordinance is similar to one passed last year before the village issued its flood-control bonds. That ordinance, however, was not made part of the village code book, and thus had to be reenacted for the upcoming library bond issue. It also will establish procedures for any future bonds issued under the village's home-rule powers.

Trustee Richard N. Hendricks carefully questioned the village attorney on the relationship between the ordinance and the library bond issue before voting to establish procedures for the bond issue. Hendricks has opposed the library bond issue, saying residents would defeat the issue if the matter were put to referendum.

Alley project unopposed

No opposition was voiced by village board members during the first reading of an ordinance setting a special assessment for a $94,443 alley improvement project in downtown Mount Prospect.

The board can either approve or reject the project, recommended by the board of local improvements, but cannot change it. The special assessment would finance the paving of gravel alleys along Prospect Avenue between Pine Street and Wa-Pella Avenue and along Northwest Highway between Mount Prospect Road and Owen Street.

Final reading of the ordinance is scheduled for Nov. 5. If the assessment is approved, a motion will be filed in Circuit Court to levy the assessment. A public hearing will then be scheduled, at which time objections will be heard.

If the court approves the special assessment, the board of local improvements will advertise for bids on the work and award a contract.

Prospect Heights request for water before panel

The public works committee of the Mount Prospect Village Board tonight will consider a request from the Prospect Heights Park District for water service for its new community center-sports complex.

The complex, to be built at the Lions Pool site on Camp McDonald Road at Elm Street, will lie outside the village. Some board members said it might be unwise to provide water for the complex because it may become part of Prospect Heights.

Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley recommended approval of the water service because the request came from a governmental body. He said if Mount Prospect does not provide water, the park district will either have to drill a well or purchase the water from Citizens Utilities Co., Addison.

The committee also is scheduled to review proposed ordinances that would allow the village to contract with Huntington Commons for police traffic enforcement on two of the development's streets.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the village hall, 112 E. Northwest Hwy.

Motorist charged with four violations

A 19-year-old Mount Prospect man was arrested by Des Plaines police early Wednesday and charged with four traffic violations.

Stanley E. Bednar, 201 Lee St., Mount Prospect, was charged with eluding police, driving while under the influence of alcohol, resisting arrest and improper lane usage.

Police said Bednar was driving northbound on Wolf Road weaving in the lanes. Police tried to stop him when he approached Central Road but he continued onto Foundry Road, turned left onto Lee Street and pulled into the driveway at his home, police said.

Police said Bednar refused to get out of his car and police had to break the vent windows of his car to unlock it and remove Bednar from the vehicle.

Bednar is scheduled to appear in the Des Plaines branch of Circuit Court Dec. 5.

INDIVIDUAL HELP is the aim of the Individual Resource program, getting started this year at all High School Dist. 214 schools. Buffalo Grove High School English teacher Donna McVey helps students with their speech class work, with the aid of a tape recorder. The recorder allows the students to hear how they sound and helps them improve speaking techniques.

New program gives teens a second chance to learn

by BOB GALLAS

John, a high school dropout from a broken home, was described by his teachers as a nonattending, nonconforming, unmotivated student with a poor chance for success.

Despite his classical description as an underachiever with a variety of learning problems, John decided to return to school two years after dropping out and was accepted back by High School Dist. 214.

A year later, John was "involved, motivated, making reasonable grades" and even joined the track team en route to graduation.

A few years ago, the story might have been different — John would have been turned away or just "pushed along" to graduation.

TODAY, HOWEVER, dropouts, underachievers and others are receiving special help in a new Dist. 214 program aimed at helping students with learning problems get back into the mainstream.

"It used to be that we'd say, 'We have done everything we can for the student,'" said Richard Stanowski, head of pupil services at Forest View High School in Arlington Heights. "Now we ask, 'Have we done everything we can for the students?'"

The program is called the Individual Resource program and it is being used districtwide after a one-year pilot program at Elk Grove High School.

It provides individualized help for students with poor reading ability, social immaturity, poor motivation, lack of skills in a particular area or any other problem that hinders the student from functioning properly in class.

STUDENTS ARE given special help on a variety of levels, starting during their free time and progressing to permanent removal from class to work with a specialist.

A forerunner of the program, the Cooperative Work Agreement, offered special classes for underachievers at the freshman and sophomore levels only. The present program has been expanded to accommodate juniors and seniors as well as average students and those with special learning abilities.

"Experience showed us that the old program was good for 50 per cent of the kids, who were in it, but the other 50 per cent still had problems," said David Whiteside, district coordinator of special education services. "Besides, you don't always stimulate and change in two years, when the pattern has been set for 10 years."

THE INDIVIDUAL Resource Program revolves around a "resource center" at every school, staffed with learning disabilities teachers, counselors, teachers with special training in a subject area, and aides.

Students can use the center to study for a test, meet with a teacher or counselor for help, take advantage of study materials or, in some cases, just relax and play a game of table hockey with a fellow student.

Police identify body as missing Schaumburg boy

by JOE SWICKARD

Sheriff's investigators have identified a body discovered two weeks ago in Deer Grove Forest Preserve as a Schaumburg youth missing for 17 months.

Investigator William Bufford said the remains were those of David Shottsberger, 19, of 527 S. Plymouth, Schaumburg. Shottsberger was reported missing by his parents May 18, 1973, Bufford said.

Shottsberger was identified through dental charts. The cause of the young man's death is listed as unknown, Bufford said. There were no signs of foul play, according to reports.

The badly decomposed body was discovered Oct. 4, by hikers in Grove No. 1 of the large forest preserve near Palatine. The remains were found lying in a dry creek bed about 100 yards from the path where the hikers came across part of the skeleton, Bufford said.

Bufford said they believed the remains were Shottsberger, but were only able to identify them positively Wednesday.

SHOTSBERGER WAS A passenger in a car involved in a crash near the site where the body was discovered. Witnesses to the May 1973 accident said Shottsberger got out of the car in a dazed condition and staggered into the darkened woods.

Despite searches of the area after the youth was reported missing, no trace of him was unearthed until the hikers made their discovery two weeks ago.

Bufford said until recently the bed was covered by a flowing stream.

Identification of the remains were hampered by the advanced state of decomposition. Clothing and other things which might have helped with identification had deteriorated to a condition unusable for testing, officials said.

Bufford said the family "took it hard" after comparison of dental charts and the remains provided conclusive identification.

"They took it hard, especially the mother and the grandmother. They kept hoping he would turn up some day," he said.

Shottsberger's father, Richard, said he did not wish to comment on the discovery and final identification of his son Wednesday.

Burglars get $130

Burglars took $130 in cash Wednesday from the apartment of Gregg J. Pasdora, 1500 W. Dempster St., Mount Prospect police said.

The money was taken sometime between 9:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. There was no sign of forced entry, police said.

No cause cited in Palatine fire that killed girl, 7

by DIANE MERMIGAS

It was nearly 3 a.m. when two Palatine policemen broke down the door at 1432 Lake Louise Dr. and tried to save the lives of the six members of Bernard O'Neill's family. They rescued five persons but couldn't rescue 7-year-old Kathleen O'Neill.

"The little girl's brothers were in shock and there were flames and smoke pouring out of the back of the house," said Palatine Police Sgt. Ralph Winkelhake.

Winkelhake was one of the first to arrive at the fire-ravaged house early Wednesday.

ANOTHER POLICEMAN JACK McGregor, and Winkelhake responded to the fire call at 3 a.m., broke down the front door of the house and rescued the parents who were unconscious and lying by the front door. Bernard O'Neill, 42, and his wife, Joann, 41, are in serious condition at Northwest Community Hospital. They are suffering from smoke inhalation and burns.

McGregor helped rescue three brothers from the roof of the house before firemen arrived. Michael O'Neill, 17, had jumped from the roof to get a ladder from the garage.

Michael was helping his brother, Bernard Jr., 14 down the ladder from the roof when McGregor arrived at the scene. The officer suffered smoke inhalation but was not seriously hurt when he climbed the ladder to the roof and brought another brother, Thomas, 4, down to safety, Winkelhake said.

Kathleen was found later by firemen in the hallway outside her second-floor bedroom. Fire officials said she died of smoke inhalation.

"THE SITUATION was really bad because the smoke was so thick. Officer McGregor and I did all we could for the five family members until the fire department arrived," said Winkelhake.

Palatine fire officials said that the fire originated in the first floor recreation room in the back of the rustic bungalow home. They have not determined the cause of the fire.

"I just can't believe that something like this happened to a family who is as nice as the O'Neills," one neighbor said as she stood with other neighbors looking at the O'Neill house.

"They are such a close-knit family and very active in the St. Thomas of Villanova Church and the PTA in Palatine," she said.

NEIGHBORS WERE aroused from their sleep by the sounds of 17 Palatine firemen fighting the blaze. A close friend of the family's that lived across the street accompanied the three O'Neill boys to the hospital.

"All three boys were confused and frightened. The poor kids didn't know what to think or say, and all of us were just trying to do everything we could to help them," he said.

Neighbors supplied clothes for the boys; Tom, 4, Bernie, 14 and Michael, 17, to wear after leaving the hospital. An older son, Patrick, who is a freshman at St. Norbert College in Wisconsin, was not home at the time of the blaze.

THE O'NEILLS, long-time residents of Palatine, lived in the house on Lake Louise Drive for five years. Kathleen O'Neill had been a student at the Lake Louise Elementary School, located directly behind their home, for the past two years. Her second-grade teacher, Rena Marcotte, said she was a "freckle-faced tomboy" who was always "smiling and friendly with everyone."

A fund to aid the family has been established at the First Bank and Trust Co. of Palatine, 35 N. Brockway. Contributions may be made payable to "O'Neill Fire Fund" and brought to the attention of Carol Halpaus at the bank.

Katherine Portera, whose husband works with Mrs. O'Neill, said the fund was established as a means of helping the O'Neill family when personal help is difficult to give.

The 'average' teacher holds master's degree

The average teacher in High School Dist. 214 is a 33-year-old man, holds a master's degree, has been teaching nine years and makes close to $16,000.

That composite picture is drawn from data in the district's 1974-75 annual personnel report prepared by Robert Cudney, director of instructional staffing.

According to the report, which is used to assess patterns in the makeup of the staff, the district is "growing academically." Last year, statistics showed that 47 district teachers had earned a master's degree plus 60 hours credit toward a doctorate, or had attained a doctorate degree. In 1972-73, only 28 had done so.

This year, 74 of the district's 1,044 teachers, or about 7 per cent, have earned a master's and either have a doctorate or have 60 hours credit toward a doctorate.

Sixty-nine per cent of all district teachers have earned a master's degree or more.

ALTHOUGH THE district hired more female than male teachers this year, the number of female resignations increased the percentage of male teachers on the staff from 81 to 31 per cent.

The district received 3,001 application, up 1,000 from last year, for only 129 jobs.

About one-third of the new staff consists of teachers new to Dist. 214, according to Cudney's report. About 40 per cent of the new staff holds advanced degrees.

Salaries of new teachers jumped from $10,000 last year to $11,695 this year. Cudney's report cited the teacher salary increase and an interest in hiring more experienced teachers as the reason for the increase.

NEW TEACHERS at Wheeling High School average the highest salaries ($12,811), followed by Buffalo Grove ($11,999), Forest View ($11,892), Prospect ($11,570), Rolling Meadows ($11,334), Elk Grove ($10,948), Arlington ($10,818), and Hersey ($10,700).

Of the new staff, 35 graduated from either Northern Illinois University or the University of Illinois, Champaign-Urbana. The rest come from colleges and universities across the country.

The most popular subject area applied for by teachers was English, with 557 applications, and physical education, with 508 applicants.

According to the report, there was an increased number of applicants for every area, with the exception of industrial arts, "which continues to be a very difficult area in which to find quality candidates." Only 57 people applied for industrial arts positions.

Barking dog credited with curbing burglar

A dog apparently frightened a burglar out of his loot Tuesday night in Mount Prospect.

Police Wednesday said a burglar broke into the home of George Simmons, 1010 Westgate Rd., just before 9 p.m. and stole a television set. However, when the family dog started barking and chasing the thief, he left the television set on the ground and ran off.

A neighbor, hearing the dog, told police she saw a young man, about 5 feet 6 inches tall and wearing dark clothes, running through the Simmons' yard.

In their investigation of the burglary, police said they stopped a motorist whose car contained several speakers and music tapes.

The car's occupants, a 16-year-old Prospect Heights boy and a 15-year-old Mount Prospect boy, allegedly admitted to police the items were stolen from cars at Hersey High School, 1900 E. Thomas St., Arlington Heights.

The youths have been turned over to the Arlington Heights police.

PARKVIEW SCHOOL student Kathy Gordes, left, sketches off a sketch. Miss Gardner, who visited the school last week, demonstrates art concepts by drawing quick sketches of individual children and showing how figures can be formed from lines.

False picture of mental health facilities

Center tries to shed 'looney bin' tag

by JERRY THOMAS

The Elk Grove-Schaumburg Mental Health Center is trying to shed the image of being just a "looney bin," said executive director Jordan Rosen.

"It is a false image and impression our center, like other mental health facilities has been branded with in the past," Rosen said.

The center, located in a farmhouse on Biesterfeld Road near the Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village, instead serves as a therapy facility for people who need help.

It offers several programs designed to appeal to people who are interested in retaining a healthy mental attitude, as well as to those who need therapeutic services for either being seriously or mildly emotionally disturbed.

ELK GROVE VILLAGE has been the primary financial supporter of the center and was responsible for its start in 1966. It then was known as the Community Services and Mental Health Board and served Elk Grove Village only. In those beginning years the center's main job was working with delinquent teenagers.

Until 1969, with additional funding from Elk Grove Township and the Elk Grove United Fund, the center began expanding its services to include families.

The five-room farmhouse, an old frame building, has been expanded to meet the demands of the communities the center now serves. It is now a 10-room facility.

"In 1970 we operated on a $36,000 a year budget with a staff of three people; today it has 25 persons on the staff and a budget of approximately $300,000 and we are still growing," Rosen said.

FUNDING TO OPERATE the center now comes from the two townships, the Illinois Dept. of Mental Health, the United Fund of Schaumburg and Elk Grove Village and clients' fees.

With the state aid in 1971 came a directive to serve the full Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships area. In 1972 the community service board created the Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center. The new agency continued to be partially funded by and worked with Elk Grove Village until this year when the center became totally independent of the village. The center is now governed by and responsible to its board of directors.

Rosen has put about 95 per cent of the building's total space to use as conference rooms for therapists and clients with one small room housing the center's seven clerical and administrative staff members.

"Several months ago the center had a waiting list; today thanks to a recent United Fund cash allocation we've an almost non-existent waiting list and more staff," Rosen said.

THE FACILITY is handling a full patient load that averages 55 cases a month. Some of the cases are whole families. "We are OK for now, but since we don't terminate treatment of exactly 55 cases a month before long we will be hard pressed to meet the demands of the ever growing communities we serve," Rosen said.

In addition to the facility in Elk Grove Village, the center operates an outpost at Roselle and Schaumburg roads in Schaumburg.

Doors are open Monday through Thursday, from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. and Friday and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

"We welcome drop-ins and are open anytime to just talk or explain what's available in the way of enrichment or therapeutic programs," Rosen said.

THE CENTER accepts anyone regardless of his ability to pay and has established a sliding fee scale for those who can afford payment.

The following are some of the services now offered:

- Sustaining care for post hospital patients from either the Dept. of Mental Health or private facilities. This includes medication maintenance; outreach with staff members working with patients while they are hospitalized to enable a smoother transition to the outside world; social and community support; crisis intervention and a sheltered workshop and work activity service.

- Emergency evaluation to determine the need for hospitalization or mental health care.

- An out-patient treatment program that includes diagnosis, psycho-social evaluation, counseling and treatment for individuals, families or groups.

- A program directed toward the seriously emotionally disturbed and behaviorally disordered child and adolescent. Also individual and group therapy treatment for adolescents who have poor relationships, are underachievers, or have venereal diseases or other problems that could be treated to prevent serious psychiatric problems later in life.

Board blamed for sidewalk discrepancy

An "unrepresentative" village board was blamed Wednesday for a policy that forces some Arlington Heights residents to finance sidewalk installation while allowing other residents to go without sidewalks.

William Gallagher, 1103 E. Euclid St., a leader among anti-sidewalk forces, called for scrapping the present at-large system of electing trustees in favor of dividing the village into districts with one representative elected from each.

Gallagher lashed out at the Caucus Party system of selecting village trustees, saying "I think people should be elected or turned out of office on the basis of issues like these (sidewalks), not on whether they coach Little League or belonged to the Boy Scouts. This is a political issue and it should be decided politically."

GALLAGHER is preparing a position paper that will include a call for representative village government such as an aldermanic system where officials are elected from specific areas of town. He hopes to present the proposal to a northeast area citizens meeting Friday night for possible adoption as their position in the sidewalk dispute.

Some 100 homeowners in the area north of Northwest Highway and east of Arlington Heights Road were recently informed by the board of local improvements that they would have to install sidewalks. They may post a letter of credit for the cost of the project before Oct. 25, or face a more costly special assessment next spring when the village would install the sidewalk for them. Citizens in that area have been organizing for over a week to oppose the sidewalks, and plan to hire a lawyer to represent them.

"There is a remedy for all of the people," Gallagher said. "The system should be reviewed. If the village were divided into wards or sections, then we would have a representative from our area that we could deal with. I think the at-large system is to avoid this."

Prior to 1954, the village board of trustees was elected from several local parties, including the Arlington Progress and Civic Service parties. Since the village's incorporation in 1887, however, there has not been an aldermanic form of representative government in Arlington Heights.

"I THINK THE village should get together and petition for a change in village government," Gallagher said. "As long as the village board is village-wide, we have no representation," he added.

Gallagher said northeast area residents are being "stampeded" into sidewalk installation because the board of local improvements gave residents only a month's notice. The board held an informal hearing to explain its sidewalk plans to residents Sept. 26.

Meanwhile, residents of other parts of town are not being required to install sidewalks. "If we had district representation, we'd have a voice on the board," Gallagher said, adding that a district representative would keep residents informed so that "stampeded" projects could not just happen.

Petition fights sidewalk edict

A petition drive is being conducted in Arlington Heights to gain support and raise money for legal fees to fight a village order requiring residents in the northeast section of town to pay for sidewalk installation.

Denise Benton, 316 E. Euclid St., said the petitioners hope to canvass the village for support in the next few days. Although no cost estimate for legal counsel has been set, the fees would run into several thousand dollars, homeowners say.

A meeting of homeowners is tentatively scheduled for Friday night to select a lawyer and continue planning the fight against the sidewalk installation.

Walter Maczka, James Foy, Margery Macconachy and William Gallagher, four of the affected homeowners, were selected by the group last week to investigate hiring a lawyer. The group has come up with several candidates which they will present to the group Friday for selection.

THE COMMITTEE of four has been contacting village trustees this week to determine their view of the situation. Maczka said he had spoken with J. Burton Thompson, Frank Palmatier and Russell Colvin, who all promised to meet with the homeowners when the sidewalk special assessment is brought to the village board.

The sidewalk installation is being ar-

IS THIS THE Cheryl Fischer party? Dropping in as an early birthday present for Cheryl, who'll be 16 later this month, is her brother, Michael, 20. The jump Wednesday was above St. Alphonsus School, Prospect Heights.

Birthday gift a flighty affair for chutist

Michael Fischer, 20, of Prospect Heights jumped 3,000 feet Wednesday to bring his younger sister a birthday present.

Fischer, a skydiving enthusiast, and a friend jumped from a single-engine airplane at 3:30 p.m. and landed in a field south of St. Alphonsus School, 411 N. Wheeling Rd., Prospect Heights. The jump was an early birthday gift for his sister, Cheryl, who will be 16 Oct. 28.

"Cheryl and my parents really never saw me jump before," Fischer said, explaining his unusual gift. And Cheryl's reaction was that "it was neat but I was scared to death."

Fischer's mother shared a bit of anxiety. "It was frightening until his chute opened up," she said, admitting having had a few fleeting thoughts the parachute would not open.

The jump went smoothly, Fischer said. It was his 250th jump and he has yet to be injured. "There are very few injuries in this sport," he explained.

IN ADDITION TO family members, about 35 neighbors and friends watched Fischer and his companion, Norm Prien of Park Ridge, descend toward their aluminum foil marker.

The pair jumped on the fourth pass, having dropped a wind indicator on the second pass. They rode in a friend's airplane and took off from the Chicagoand Airport on Milwaukee Avenue.

Fischer landed nearest the onlookers and was greeted with a bottle of wine, while Prien was quickly surrounded by a group of football players who were practicing nearby.

Fischer, who lives at 208 E. McDonald Rd., has been skydiving for three years and is a member of the Northern Illinois Sky Divers Club. As of Jan. 1 he will be the new owner of the club, which is based in Hebron, Ill.

The costs of owning the club will be small, he said, because the $20 annual dues and the $4 jump fees are used to cover expenses. "It's not a business, it's just a club," he said.

Alleged rapist returns for 'date' with police

Arlington Heights police arrested a man Wednesday night when he arrived for a "date" with a Morton Grove girl he allegedly raped the night before.

Arrested was David A. Jones, 22, who listed his address as East Golf View Terrace, Arlington Heights. He was charged with rape, deviate sexual assault, robbery, unlawful restraint and resisting arrest.

Police said the victim, 18-years-old, was approached by Jones Tuesday night at Woodfield Shopping Center in Schaumburg and asked her for a ride to Arlington Heights.

When they approached the Prince Charles Apartments, near Arlington Heights and Golf roads, Jones reportedly told her to pull over. When she stopped the car, he told the girl he would kill her unless she went to his apartment and submitted to him.

When the victim, whom police did not identify, refused to go into his apartment, Jones reportedly took the wheel of the car and drove to an abandoned trailer park off Arlington Heights Road.

At the trailer park, Jones forced the girl out of the car and behind a shed where he raped her.

After returning to the car, Jones allegedly stole $11 from his victim and forced her to give him her name and telephone number. They then drove back to Woodfield where he left her.

Police said Jones called his victim Wednesday night and asked to meet her across the street from the Jewel Food Store at Arlington Heights and Golf roads. She agreed to the date and then telephoned the police.

Wearing a wig and driving her car, Det. Dick Robinson arrived at the location, which already had been staked out by other detectives.

Police said Jones approached his victim's car and called out her name. Robinson then pulled his gun and identified himself. Jones was arrested as he tried to run away.

He is being held in the Arlington Heights police station pending a bond hearing today in Circuit Court.

Citizens panel to review federal fund law tonight

A special citizens' committee that will direct village efforts to get $2.5 million in federal funds over the next five years will start reviewing the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 at its first meeting tonight.

On the committee are Arlington Heights Village Pres. Ralph H. Clarbough, Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson, Finance Committee chairman Frank Palmatier, Environmental Control Commission chairman Jean Hanlon and Housing Commission member Raymond Warns.

Arlington Heights Park District Pres. Charles Cronin also will attend tonight's meeting and may become a committee member. A representative of the village's homeowners associations also is being sought.

The committee faces a tight schedule to complete the complicated application for federal funds before a mid-March deadline.

ASSISTANT VILLAGE Mgr. Darryl Kenning said tonight's meeting will be devoted to familiarizing committee members with the requirements of the Housing Development Act. A slide presentation explaining the new federal aid program, that was shown to the village board Oct. 1, will be replayed for the committee, he said.

The new so-called block grant program consolidates federal funds formerly available in five categories — urban renewal, neighborhood facilities, open space land, basic water and sewer facilities and model cities.

The Arlington Heights Village Board approved participation in the program Oct. 7.

The federal money can be used for a variety of local projects including land acquisition, redevelopment of blighted areas, public works, including flood control and housing assistance.

To apply for the money, the village will have to prepare a three-year community development plan, a plan to prevent or eliminate blight and a housing assistance plan for low-income families.

THE LAW ALSO requires environmental impact statements for the community programs and certification that the village will comply with all civil rights laws. Public hearings on the projects are another requirement of the act.

If Arlington Heights can meet the mid-March deadline, a total of $125,000 will be paid to it next year, assuming the village's application is accepted by the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development.

The annual grant increases to $295,000 in 1976, and is nearly $500,000 for the next three years after that.

Tonight's meeting, which is open to the public, will start at 8 at the Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Club to mark 12th year

The Arlington Heights Over 50 Club will observe its 12th birthday with a group luncheon today at St. John United Church of Christ, 308 N. Evergreen. A program on perfume, with free samples for all, will follow the luncheon.

The club is planning a Nov. 7 bus trip to the Rustic Barn in Bloomingdale for luncheon at the main performance of "Me and Thee." Reservations are now being taken for the afternoon, which will begin at 11 a.m. at Pioneer Park.

Dance marathon—shades of 1920s

Dancing and lots of it will be very "in" Saturday night at Buffalo Grove High School's dance marathon, from 8:30 to 10:30 p.m. in the school gym, 1101 W. Dundee Rd.

Students will be dancing nonstop for four hours to benefit the school's Choral Guild, a parent organization which supports various activities in the high school's choral department.

Further information on the dance can be obtained by calling 537-5362.

ranged by the board of local improvements, which supervises special assessments for sewer, street and sidewalk projects. The board is observing the village's 1968 sidewalk policy in selecting the 100 homes now up for action. After BOLL holds a hearing on the matter, it will recommend a special assessment proceeding to the village board of trustees. The board has the option of approving or rejecting the special assessment.
